ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Even with all of the ups and downs that life can bring, it still seems impossible that we've been meeting like this for 45 years, doesn't it? And yet here we are, again!

This year's 45th anniversary of the Guide has brought us an incredible roster of cover artists and subjects including Paul Gulacy's Captain Action (with Jesus Aburto's colors), Cary Nord's Bloodshot and X-O Manowar, Greg Land's Captain America and Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. (with Morry Hollowell's colors), Joe Shuster's Superman (with Alex Sinclair's colors), and Dave Johnson's take on The Spirit on our Hero Initiative edition. With Kevin Eastman's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles on The Big, Big Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide #45 (with Ronda Pattison's colors), it's sure an amazing, strong, diverse line-up.

I would like to thank Joe Ahearn, Ed Catto, Richard Comely, Michael Eury, Gene Gonzales, Denis Kitchen, Richard Olson, Dinesh Shamdasani, Mark Squirek and Mark Wheatley for their special contributions to this edition, and our own Mark Huesman, Amanda Sheriff, J.C. Vaughn, Mike Wilbur and Carrie Wood.

Special Thanks to the Overstreet Advisors who contributed to this edition, including Darren Adams, Grant Adey, Bill Alexander, David Alexander, Tyler Alexander, Lon Allen, Dave Anderson, David J. Without their active participation, this project would not have been possible.

Additionally, I would like to personally extend my thanks to all of those who encouraged and supported first the creation of and then subsequently the expansion of the Guide over the past four decades. While it's impossible in this brief space to individually acknowledge every individual, mention is certainly due to Lon Allen (Golden Age data); Mark Avey (Golden Age data); Bill Blackbeard (Platinum Age cover photos); Steve Borock and Mark Haspel (Grading); Glenn Bray (Kurtzman data); Gary Carter (DC data); J. COLLECTORS CHOOSE CGC

Collectors enjoy peace of mind when purchasing CGC-certified comics. Every CGC book has been reviewed by the hobby's most experienced team of professionals. It's the label smart collectors look for — online, at conventions, wherever the hobby takes them.

Our state-of-the-art, tamper-proof holder provides long-term protection for your comics.

"The addition of CGC's independent, third-party certification to the marketplace has been one of the most important changes for collectors and dealers alike in the last decade."

— Robert M. Overstreet
The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide

CGC Grading Services

CGC is the most preferred third-party comic book certification service, having graded more than two million comics in its 15 years. Our industry-leading grading team is prohibited from the commercial buying and selling of comics, to ensure accuracy and impartiality. Each book is evaluated by our team, and any detected restoration is noted.

Community Resources

With a membership in the CGC Collectors Society, collectors can interact on our Message Boards, receive monthly eNewsletters, access our Comics Population Report and more. Most notably, members can showcase their collections online in the CGC Registry, and compete in the annual CGC Registry Awards.

The trusted authority for your favorite pursuit.

Founded in 1999, Certified Guaranty Company is the hobby's most preferred third-party grading service for collectible comics, magazines, photos and lobby cards. CGC offers professional condition analysis, including thorough restoration detection, before grading and encapsulating your collectibles in our state-of-the-art, archival-safe holders. CGC does not buy or sell collectibles—we're committed to providing an independent opinion you can always trust, so you can buy and sell with confidence.

SELL

Your Comic Books

www.mycomicshop.com/sell

Visit our web site to find out why collectors and dealers just like you sell us over 120,000 comics a month. Our easy online selling system lets you turn your unwanted comics and graphic novels into cash.

Thanks so much for being there. For personal reasons, I've needed to liquidate my prized comic collection of 40 years. I procrastinated, moved them around, sold a few on eBay, but really just let them sit for a very long time. Then, finding you, you purchased my bulk as a collection, but advised me to sell my older and key issues via your online want list system where I'd likely do better. I appreciated that you tried to help ME on what to do vs. just "sell it to us cheap". I think I'm about at $10,000 just from you. So, finally, I'm about to send my prizes, and I have confidence you will be fair. I'm also impressed that you upgrade many of my comics above the grades I gave them, even though it meant you'd owe me even more money! So, thanks for turning something that could have been very, very difficult into a process that was easy and painless.

Dozens of dealers advertise here. Why choose us?

- We provide the largest comic-buying customer base available. More buyers means your items sell more quickly and fetch higher prices. Mycomicshop.com has more visitors and buyers than any other comic retailer or comic-focused auction service.
- Free eBay listings. Your consignments are listed simultaneously on mycomicshop.com and eBay at no extra charge, giving your items unparalleled visibility in the market. We are the only major consignment service that offers this.
- We make selling "raw" comics as easy as selling CGC-graded slabs. All consignments are graded free of charge, and because our customers trust our grading, you'll get higher prices than if you listed the comics yourself on eBay. We can recommend CGC-grading when the cost/benefit warrants it, and handle the CGC submission for you at our full 20% dealer discount.

We are the fastest-growing consignment service. Why? Low 4-10% commission, strong prices, hassle-free sales, and an industry-leading sales platform. Call 682-232-4855 or visit www.mymcomicshop.com/consign to learn more. Cash advances up to $1M available.

“After inheriting my grandfather’s collection, I knew I’d only have one chance to make the right choice in selling it. I looked at all my options and ComicConnect was clearly the only way to go. The amazing prices they got for the comics for my family was a dream come true.”

DO YOU LOVE ORIGINAL COMIC ART? I DO!

Hello, my name is Nick Katradis. If you love comic art as much as I do, and you are considering selling any of your comic art, please contact me. I am a lifelong collector of comics and I am one of the most serious collectors of comic art, specifically from the Bronze Age.

I want to purchase your comic art from DC, Marvel and Charlton. I collect mostly Bronze Age art from 1968 to 1979. But I will purchase Silver Age and Golden Age art too. I also collect Bronze Age Romance art, from DC, Marvel, and Charlton, from 1964 to 1977.

I collect comic art by Sal Buscema, Jim Aparo, Gil Kane, Gene Colan, Nick Cardy, John Romita, Jack Kirby, John Buscema, Steve Ditko, Irv Novick, Rich Buckler, Curt Swan, Herb Trimpe, Dick Giordano, Dick Dillin, Don Heck, George Tuska, Mike Sekowsky, Jim Mooney, Ross Andru, Marie Severin, etc.

If you are interested in selling your comic art to a fellow collector, or if you would like to purchase any of my comics or comic art on my website, please contact me and we can discuss a possible sale or trade.

PASSION for COLLECTING...

When it comes to passion for collecting, dedication to the hobby, and amassing high-grade, award winning runs... few measure up to Pedigree Comics' CEO and President, Doug Schmell, who sold his personal collection of Silver Age Marvels in 2012 for over 3.94 Million Dollars (a record price for a comic book collection).

So, who is best qualified to help you build your collection and find you the books and upgrades you need?

Over the past 20 plus years, I have amassed over fifteen thousand Marvel comic books, most of which are in very high grade condition. When CGC was in the process of forming in March, 1999, I was one of a handful of collectors asked to attend their start-up meeting and provide input to the creation of this third party grading service. When the CGC commenced operations later that year and began encapsulating and grading comic books for the public, I began submitting my runs of Marvel titles. Now, known as "Captain Tripps" on the CGC Registry and chat boards, I have come to be recognized as one of the leading collectors of Marvel Silver and Bronze Age comics, with many of my books being the highest graded copies in existence. In fact, I received the coveted Achievement in Comics Collecting 2006, awarded by the CGC Comics Registry, in honor of the outstanding runs of Marvel comics I had registered since November, 2003, including the highest graded set of virtually every Marvel Silver Age and Bronze Age title.

Although I sold the majority of my Bronze Age titles when I moved to Florida in 2004, I kept and continued to add to my Silver Age sets, looking for upgrades on any individual issue whenever possible. The formation of this collection, which has been painstakingly pared down to around 700 books, took an incredible amount of effort, time, expense, and patience. The stories I could tell of meeting at diners, post offices in Northern New Jersey, law offices, street corners in New York City, dealers' tables, and comic stores around the country in order to obtain that missing issue or coveted upgrade, would blow your mind. My decision to sell the collection was based on my feeling that I had reached a sort of collector's Nirvana, that I had finally obtained every sought after pedigreed issue or top of the CGC census book I could possibly find. The long journey has taken me to this point in time and I couldn't be any happier.

No longer a problem!

Do you have books that were signed without a witness available, or signed by a vintage creator who has since passed away? CBCS can help you with our Verified Signature Program (VSP).

When you submit a signed book through VSP, we image the signature and have it authenticated by CSA, the leading signature authenticator for comic creators and artists.

Thanks to CBCS, signature authentication is no longer a problem!

Let your first offer be your best offer. I'm going to pay the most, so if you feel like saving yourself a whole lot of hassle just call me first. If you do not like the idea of making ten phone calls, having five guys call back a week later, three of them not interested once they hear you do not have an Action #1, and then waiting months for appointments so they can see you around their schedule. Finally they come over, touch and handle all of your books for hours, then MAYBE make a low offer, or worse not make any offer and play games.

You can avoid all this hassle if you call me now! I will see you today! I can be anywhere in the world in 24 hours and will not make you wait. I will also treat you fairly with courtesy and respect and of course pay an outstanding price for your important lifelong collection.

Last year the most expensive comic book on the planet was sold on eBay for $3,200,000.00, and with our 50,000+ positive customer feedback we have the reputation to sell your treasure. Being the #1 seller of comic books on eBay we have special relationships and can get special marketing from them for your treasure.

I will talk to people and rave about your treasure. Every item gets posted with my direct phone number. You would be surprised on how much personal selling goes into making a buyer feel comfortable. This almost always leads to a higher selling price.

LOWEST PRICE

SAFEST OUTCOME
COMPLETE CONTROL BY YOU

10 DAYS TO SELL

Other auction houses charge anywhere from 10%-30%, do not be fooled by the low sellers fee and then a big buyers premium on the other side. They give you only one chance to sell every three months so your treasure is tied up. The marketing is limited to mostly people only in the comic industry. They do not sell on eBay to the world.

We charge 5% NET PERIOD, can offer your item for sale up to 4 times per month since we sell weekly, so it's like 12 auctions to one. Why put something in the market for so long with only one chance to sell, that is a serious risk. You cannot control the price of your item unless you buy it back which they charge you for, we can protect the price of your treasure.

QUESTIONS TO ASK YOUR PROSPECTIVE AUCTIONEER

- Do you make all of your previous price results available online so I can judge your performance, or do you cite only your most impressive results?
- Do you cross-market my items to bidders from other categories to drive my consignment prices higher?
- Do you have a world-class website that makes it easy for people to track and bid on my lots?
- Do you mail thousands of exquisite, printed catalogs to the top collectors throughout the world?
- Do you offer in-person viewing open to the public, so my premium quality books won't sell for generic prices?
- Do you offer live public auctions for your top items, with both proxy and real-time internet and telephone bidding?

At Heritage Auctions, the answer to all of the above questions is YES.

And there's more at Heritage that no one else in the comic hobby can come close to matching:

- An award-winning website that attracts an average of 35,000 daily visitors.
- 900,000+ bidder-members in 38 cross-marketed specialties.
- $900+ million in annual auction and private sales.
- Over $50 million in equity and owners' capital.
- Every consignor since our first auction in 1976 has been paid in full and right on schedule.

All of the above is why we have successfully u n than 200,000 consignments, 82% of which have come from repeat consignors.

ANOTHER ACTION #1 SOLD FOR $1.5 MILLION JUST A SHORT WHILE AFTER THAT.

MANY OTHERS HAVE SOLD FOR RECORD PRICES IN THE LAST FEW YEARS, EVEN WITH THE TOUGH ECONOMY NATIONALLY.

- Many of the comic books are listed in groups, such as 11-20, 21-30, 31-50 and so on.
- The prices listed along with such groupings represent the value of each issue in that group, not the group as a whole.
- It's difficult to overstate how much accurate grading plays into getting a good price for your sales or purchases.

OVERSTREET MARKET REPORT 2015

GOLDEN AGE BOOKS SMASH PREVIOUS RECORDS WITH ACTION #1 SELLING FOR $3.2 MILLION!

by Robert M. Overstreet

A few examples of noteworthy sales: Action Comics #1 in CGC 9.0 for $3,207,852, Archie Comics #1 in CGC 8.0 for $122,567, Batman #1 in CBCS 7.5 for $237,300 and Pep Comics #22 in CGC 7.0 for $143,400. The presence of two strong, independent certification providers makes an already compelling market that much more interesting.

With more than 2,000 billionaires and 12 million millionaires in the world today, investments in real estate and all top collectible fields including coins, comics, paintings, stamps, watches, wines, antique cars, etc. continue to set records: $195 million for a 25-acre estate in California, $100 million for a 1951-52 bronze sculpture of a woman on a chariot, $9.48 million at Sotherby's for the British Guiana one-Cent Black Magenta stamp, $38.1 million for a 1962 Ferrari 250 GTO, $24 million for the Patek Philippe Supercomplication pocket watch at Sotherby's in Geneva, $1.6 million for a lot of wine sold by Sotherby's, averaging about $14,000 per bottle, $142.4 million for Black Fire I (1961) painting by Barnett Newman and $147 million for an 18-acre beachfront property in East Hampton, New York.

A rare extra fine Roman gold coin, depicting emperor Augustus Caesar, sold for almost $785,000 in Sept., 2014. Also 2014 saw an estimated $5 billion worth of rare coins sold according to PNG (Professional Numismatists Guild). A 1913 Liberty Head nickel, NGC Proof 64 sold by Heritage Auctions for $3,290,000. A 1927-D Saint-Gaudens Eagle, PCGS 63+ sold for $1,410,000 by Heritage and a 1794 Half Cent, PCGS 66 sold for $1,121,250.

The bull stock market of 2013 continued in 2014 with the Dow Jones Industrial average up 7.52% and the Nasdaq composite index up 3.4% by year's end.

As you can see, investment dollars are chasing a diversity of rare items, including comic books. Record prices continued to be paid for most key Golden and Silver Age issues throughout 2014. Barry Sandoval and Lon Allen of Heritage Auctions reported: "Heritage Auctions was privileged to once again sell over $30 million worth of comics and original comic art in 2014."

The comic book market continued to do well in 2014 as Bill Alexander stated, "2014 appeared to be more volatile than ever before. Keep in mind comics that shoot up in prices paid for them based on movie hype are subject to plummeting down as fast as they went up. Major auction houses continue to set record sales with well established key books in the hobby from all ages, especially with Marvel, DC and Archie". Dave Anderson, DDS agreed: "The comic book market is strong and healthy! Sales are strong in all areas, especially high grade books. Demand for key Golden Age comics like Action Comics #1, Detective Comics #27 and other significant key issues surpasses supply, especially in unrestored condition. When one of these books surfaces and comes to auction, bidders expect to have to pay over-Guide prices."

Todd Warren wrote, "Before 2010, no comic book had ever sold for $1 million. Since then, six have eclipsed that number. Comic books have entered the rarified air previously reserved for fine art. Each of the six times, the media coverage was widespread, bringing lots of attention and possibly new collectors with it."

Golden Age: Golden Age comics again had a strong year in 2014-2015 especially with the keys selling for record prices, such as Action #1, Archie #1, Detective #27, Whiz #2 (#1), Batman #1, Captain America #1, Jackpot #4, Pep Comics #22, Superman #1, etc. These books enjoy high demand even for coverless copies and copies with missing pages.

Dan Gallo wrote, "The Golden Age of comics may be behind us but one can make the case that we are in the Golden Age of the genre. The characters created in the comic books themselves are the engine to a multi-media machine that will never let our favorite heroes fade away."

Eric Groves pointed out, "Golden Age comics remain a solid bet not only for their status as artifacts but for their stable values. Very few titles are stale or subject to volatility. Those with World War II covers are the most desirable."

Peter Bilelis wrote, "more surprising was that Marvel Family #1 (1945) was a very hot book throughout the summer convention circuit and is still heating up! This was caused by the announcement of the upcoming film that will feature Captain Marvel and his arch-enemy Black Adam."

Ted VanLiew said, "There's a huge demand for Hitler covers across the board, from every publisher." He continues, "Funny that editors didn't realize for decades how important the great villains were, as the most sought after issues are the ones featuring them, especially on the cover."

Timely/Atlas Horror and War comics enjoyed increased interest as Jim Berry mentioned: "One niche area of note that I found interesting was the explosion of value in several Timely/Atlas Horror comics."

Barry Sandoval and Lon Allen agreed, "We have long extolled the virtues of pre-hero Marvels in nice condition. We have had the opportunity to sell a few score of these recently (regularly selling for 300%-1000% of Guide). The pre-Code Atlas Horror comics are even more elusive. They sell at auction for a minimum of Guide in low grade to many multiples of Guide in Fine to Very Fine or better condition.

Terry O'Neill also agreed: "Atlas Horror/Monster in VG or better are in super high demand as are many other genres. DC War titles have slowed down quite a bit, but the DC Sci-Fi titles such as Strange Adventures and Mystery in Space are picking up. Anything with Matt Baker art sells fast."

Canadian Whites: Stephen Lipson reports, "In 2014, it can be stated that it was a remarkable year for Canadian Whites in terms of both bringing awareness to the marketplace, and prices realized at auction. The wartime era comics hosted a stable of superheroes that were both analogous and indigenous to Canada. A few sales: Nelvana One-Shot nn, CGC 6.5 - $13,750, Super Comics/Pep #22 Hybrid nn, CGC 4.5 - $7100, Triumph Comics #12, CGC 1.5 - $2600, Active Comics #1, CGC 3.5 $1450, and Dime Comics #20 uncertified 4.0 $625."

Silver Age: Most Silver Age keys continued to be in high demand throughout the year with record sales being reported.

Terry O'Neill reported, "As in years past, the bulk of revenues from comic conventions come from Silver Age sales. All first issues and key appearances sell very well." Lon Webb concurred, "The Silver Age market has given us our most numerous sales this past year, with Marvel being far ahead of the pack. Extremely high grade Marvels and DCs simply sell - end of story."

Ben Lichtenstein pointed out, "While all key issues are red-hot, low to mid-grade examples of key issues have really moved up in price. As the high-grade examples reach into the thousands and sometimes tens of thousands, many buyers are happy to get a copy at an affordable range."

Tom Nelson agreed, "The mega key Showcase #4 has almost doubled in value in the past year in grades below fine."

Dan Gallo wrote, "The biggest Marvel character yet to have his day on the big screen is Namor the Sub-Mariner. This guy can be a good guy or a bad guy and has history with the Fantastic Four, Captain America, and the Avengers." He continued, "From the Silver Age, I love Tales To Astonish #13, the first appearance of Groot. This book came out in 1960 and just doesn't exist. Unlike other movie driven books, dealers aren't going to be able to dig through their storage units and pull out 10 copies. Also, this character has some serious long-term potential as evidenced by the massive success of Guardians of the Galaxy."

Sandoval and Allen reported, "As more Silver Age comes on the market, collectors have recognized that there are a lot of high-grade collections from this era out there, at least in the Marvel department. However, we can't wait for the next time a collection with truly high-grade copies of late-1950s DCs comes out. Average runs of mid-1960s Marvels are consistently selling for 75-125% of Guide values, week in and week out."

Eric J. Groves agreed, "Perhaps the first important thing to recognize about the Silver Age is that unlike previous eras, people around 1962 began seriously saving comic books rather than disposing of them. Second, Fandom was becoming organized, also bringing about accumulations of comics. The end result is that only a few Silver Age books can be accurately characterized as scarce, much less rare. For the most part, copies are available across the board in all grades, with some exceptions, such as the DC books of the mid to late 1950s which were simply not well constructed to begin with."

Bronze Age: "Bronze and Modern Age comics are selling briskly, but in mainly high grades," stated Lon Webb. He continues, "keys are the Key here, and the higher the grade, the better."

Terry O'Neill wrote, "This is the largest amount of comics we sell by volume and it is closing fast on Silver Age in total sales dollars. Incredible Hulk #181 is always in super high demand with many dealers selling a copy and then having to pay the same price or more to replace the one sold. I cannot keep most Bronze Age keys in stock with show demand so intense."

He continued, "Back in the late 1990s, the talk among my peers included what we might be doing in ten years' time when no one wanted old paper anymore. We also wondered what would happen if all the comics went digital and made paper obsolete. It seems our fears were unfounded."

Steven Houston pointed out, "Comics of the 1970s are dominated by movie related sales, The release of the Guardians of The Galaxy movie still resonates today, with prices holding firm of the keys created by the movie; Incredible Hulk #271, Marvel Preview #4 and #7, Strange Tales #180, including "rumor keys" such as Nova #1 from 1976 and even Captain America #217 - the first appearance of Marvel Man (later Quasar) whom fandom believes will make an appearance in a future GOTG movie. Marvel has announced a host of new movies and this has of course, resulted in raised demand for each character related to the announced movie. The Doctor Strange movie has created demand for Marvel Premiere #3 and Doctor Strange #1 (1974), the Ant-Man movie has sparked interest in Marvel Feature #4 and more explosively on Marvel Premiere #47. The Captain Marvel movie has sparked perhaps the most voracious demand in recent history, with sales of Ms. Marvel #1 reaching astronomical levels."

Copper Age: Paul Clairmont reported, "These books have been strong for more than two years and back issues of these once considered "dollar bin" books are highly sought after in high grade."

Tom Nelson wrote, "The biggest book is Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1, however, it is traded infrequently in comparison to other Copper Age keys. The two big heavy hitters from the Copper Age that trade with high volume are Amazing Spider-Man #300 (Venom) and New Mutants #98 (Deadpool). Regardless of how many copies come up for sale, the demand is so strong they liquidate just as quickly."

Jamie Newbold said, "We have noticed an interesting shift in consumers and readers: Women. More and more women seem to be getting drawn into the comic book world. Due to the intense interest of comic book movies and shows, the old stigma of comics only being for secular nerds is crumbling and being replaced with a more general and far reaching acceptance."

O'Neill agreed, "I am also pleased to see quite a few women collecting comics; it's not just for men over 40 anymore! All the movies and TV shows with comic characters and comic book references have certainly helped get a new generation interested in collecting."

Michael Pavlic also agreed, "Speaking of under-served, the amount of women entering the hobby in the last few years has been noticeable and quite frankly welcomed. They are enthusiastic readers and collectors. We, as retailers, should do everything we can to make this hobby as inviting as we can, for everyone."

Modern Age: D'Arcy Farrell writes "Many movies and TV series are making this period very high demand! Constantine in Swamp Thing #37-40 is a perfect example, or Incredible Hulk #272 (first app. of Rocket Raccoon). From 1985-1995 the industry had many first appearances and important stories into the 21st century. Now, with reviving old stories like Secret Wars, Infinity War, Crisis On Infinite Earths, the demand for these issues is becoming crazy!"

Another title to watch is Manifest Destiny by Image where there is speculation that this, like The Walking Dead, may become a series on TV.

O'Neill wrote, "New Mutants #98 and Batman Adventures #12 are the two hottest comics of the Modern Age. I sold a copy at one show and then had to pay more to replace it at the next show."

Michael Pavlic pointed out, "The titles or genres where demand far outstrips supply: Harley Quinn (any comic where she appears), Deadpool, Wonder Woman, Lobo, World's Finest, Superman, Maxx, Transformers (Marvel), etc."

Michael Tierney agreed, "Harley Quinn had a breakout year, as publishers started making more content for women."

Webb wrote, "Batman Adventures #12 (1st Harley Quinn), Batman #6 (first Joker's daughter), Black Canary, Catwoman, Ms. Marvel, and the many strong female characters that have hit a note with readers are causing them to expand their interests into the back issue market. Modern comics offer much for the female reader and numerous store owners in the know have capitalized on that by fostering knowledge and awareness of the many varied independent titles to their customer base.

Original Comic Art: The upswing in demand for original comic art (both covers and interior pages) continued to set record prices throughout last year. More and more collectors are buying displayable original art to enhance their comic book collections.

"We were able to tie our own record auction price for a piece of American comic art this past year. $657,250 was the price for a key piece, the last page of Incredible Hulk #180 featuring Wolverine's very first appearance," Sandoval and Allen said. Jim Berry pointed out "Prices for original art continue to reach incredible heights without much in the way to explain how to arrive at a value for a piece other than to put it up for auction."

A few EC covers and stories sold: Haunt of Fear #19 cover art by Graham Ingles $55,269, Weird Science $11 cover art brought $22,705, Panic #4 cover art - $5,736, War Against Crime #10 cover art $13,145. War Against Crime #11 "The Mummy's Curse 8 pg. story by Feldstein - $20,315.

Heritage Auctions added live bidding to their weekly Internet sales late last year. The difference in prices for their consignors has been dramatic as reported by Barry Sandoval and Lon Allen, "An interesting sidelight here has to do with the Overstreet values which we always have, and always will, put in every lot listing. People following the live sessions are quite obviously using the Guide values as their main criterion when deciding to throw in an impulsive bid, and complained when on some lots the Guide value wasn't visible in the frame on-screen. It's proof of how important this reference book remains to the comic book hobby."

eBay Sales: Jim Berry reported, "I've noticed a trend that has become prevalent this year. Sellers are now regularly auctioning their comics with prices that are, essentially, starting at Guide or better. It's not much different than a BUY IT NOW sale and, instead of a low starting bid that encourages action and ensures the book will sell to the highest bidder, the insertion of these books at Guide discourages folks who are interested to watch the progress of an organic auction."

Pedigree collections 2013: Books from historic Pedigree collections appeared sporadically in all the top auctions held last year. Mile High (Edgar Church), Larson, Pennsylvania, White Mountain, Gaines file copies, Northford, and others were represented selling to eager buyers.

In Summary: 2014 was another year in which hundreds of thousands of comic books were sold off websites, from mailing lists, at conventions and at comic book stores. Prices realized were again mixed depending on rarity, character and grade.

The following market reports were submitted from some of our many advisors and are published here for your information. ## DARREN ADAMS PRISTINE COMICS

Last year, a super-spectacular event in comic book history took place. We sold the holy grail of the comic book history known as Action Comics #1. Not only the holy grail, but it was tied with the Nicolas Cage copy as the nicest one ever graded, with the exception that our copy had perfect white pages.

From the first day this copy was listed for sale, interest was worldwide and the onslaught of media coverage was amazing.

Bidder scrutiny and qualification may have been stricter than necessary, but considering the significance of the "Super Bowl" of auction events, (as many dubbed it) bidder integrity was of utmost importance. The event resulted in comic books staking its claim as "King of the Hill" over trading cards in terms of a most valuable single piece ever sold.

While the sports card industry continues to struggle in terms of current market share, comic print runs are at 20-year highs and superhero merchandise and movies are as abundant and hot as ever.

With this increased awareness came several calls from people claiming to have their own copy of Action Comics #1. Alas, they were sadly mistaken when told they had a Famous 1st Edition copy, or some other reprint.

Many people questioned my choice in choosing eBay as the auction house for this historic piece. Perhaps it was my belief that vintage comics have yet to be recognized for the historical significance they truly are, and that had something to do with it. This prompted me to go slightly outside the industry in search of reaching others who may not have heard of, or taken interest in this copy to bid on it. My goal was to awaken not only new and established dot.com interest, but perhaps even museum backers who would then display this comic for all to enjoy.

In my humble opinion, the comic could have sold north of 5 million and I still would not have been surprised. As always, the value is what one is willing to pay for it.

It was with this enthusiastic belief that I chose to market the book, and that this copy represents a historical piece of Americana. A museum piece that one day may be difficult to place a value on, and actually be priceless.

In reaching outside the hobby industry and into mainstream media, this comic represents a bargain as compared to at least a dozen other categorical items that have sold for 10 times more.

I felt that early interviews and interest were fixated on the price estimates I had given, whereas later interviews were more in awe of the piece than the price. The good fortune to lay claim to the fact that I owned this copy, also came with a responsibility. I not only wanted to favor the odds defying existence of such a copy in the best light possible, but I wanted the same for the comic industry as a whole.

In the end, the winning bidder was certainly from the industry, but...the under bidder was not.

The door was already open for outsider comic valuation appreciation. However, the fact that it superseded the sale for the infamous $2.8 million dollar T206 Honus Wagner card, as well as shattering the previous record for the highest comic sold, and in breaking the $3 million threshold, it might have opened the door further in gaining wide stream historical significance.

I believe this bodes well for the Golden Age market as a whole. Vintage comics have heated up with keys setting record prices as a whole, while speculative undervalued GA books continue to dry up.

Exhibit A of books fitting this description are any key Wonder Woman books such as All Star Comics #8 (if anyone has a copy in any condition, please give me a call or email darrenwccg@aol.com), Wonder Woman #1 or Sensation Comics #1. The hunt for high grade Golden Age keys goes on and on.

I would like to issue thanks to Jeff and Mark at Overstreet for bringing to fruition my request for a two page fold out advertisement in last year's price guide. I felt it gave the auction additional prestige, and both of these gentlemen burnt the midnight oil in accomplishing it. Thanks also to Harshen Patel and the gang at CGC for utilizing this comic to introduce the QR code that allowed the video interior viewing, as well as the support shown by showcasing the auction event on their own website. And of course, to Metropolis Comics for their winning bid.

Special thanks is also due to eBay for the Herculean efforts they put forth in the sale of this comic book.

Here's hoping lightning strikes twice !

GRANT ADEY HALO CERTIFICATION - AUSTRALIA

Halo Certification Year 1: With a full 12 months under our belt, it's been a year of very good progress. Let's get right into the market report. In the first three months we saw mostly low to mid-grade Silver Age, keys in low grade. At the six month mark, grades moving up to 6.5 - 7.0 on Silver Age and a healthy market for collectors buying the low grade as the more advanced collectors upgrade, natural progression. From what I can gather, most collectors first choice is the local comic book shop or U.S. or U.K dealers, second Facebook, third local Internet markets, fourth eBay (not the driving force it was.)

In for grading, Avengers is a title on fire, with #4 fairly common in VG/VG+, #1 in GD/GD+, a bunch of VG/FN in the teens. For Tales to Astonish Ant-Man/Wasp issues, #45 is the most common, plus a few #44s in the lower grades and a couple of #13s in 1.8. Doctor Strange is getting a "giddy up," very affordable in the 6.5 to 7.5 range. Nice in VF- is a very solid book and they are priced nicely. Early crossovers are in the sights of more advanced collectors, and here are a few coming in for certification: Journey into Mystery #109 Thor/Magneto cover and #108 early Dr. Strange, Brave and the Bold #50 1st Martian Manhunter x-over brilliant yellow cover, Dr. Strange #179 Spidey cover cheap in 7.5, Tales of Suspense #55 Mandarin having a conniption. Tales of

CALL: 253-941-1986

Hello,

My name is Darren Adams, owner of West Coast Sports Cards and Pristine Comics.com

Some of you may know me as the guy from Seattle who sold the THREE MILLION DOLLAR COMIC BOOK. (see right)
This sale was viewed by over one million people, marking it as the most watched comic sale in history.

This comic book was originally offered to other dealers prior to myself. Yet in the end, only one company stepped up to meet the demands of the seller..... And that was my company.

You don't need to have the world's most valuable comic book to sell to us.

We are also one of the largest Buyers of Magic the Gathering Cards.

We are also interested in:

Comic Books, Magazines & Original Comic Art / Entertainment items such as Autographs, Movie Props etc. / Magic The Gathering - Sports Cards & Memorabilia

- Personal collections
- Estate inventories
- Warehouse finds
- Dealers closing
- Storage finds
- Any and all Comics from the 1900s thru the 1980s.

Before selling anything, please consider these attributes that we genuinely offer:

DISCRETION: 100% CONFIDENTIAL

We have non-disclosure forms available for those who prefer discretion. We have made other significant purchases that you will not read nor hear about. Quite often for any number of reasons, a seller will prefer discretion.

AN HONEST APPRAISAL:

We know what your comics are truly worth and so will you. Anyone can estimate a value of what a collection might sell for at auction. The fact remains that this is a guess with no guarantees, other than a guarantee only to themselves. They take 10-20+ % of your money regardless of what your comics sell for. YOU pay all shipping cost, have to accept returns in the event a bidder does not pay, take 100% of the risk of getting lower prices than originally estimated, and then have to wait for bidders to pay them, then wait for the auction house to deduct ALL of their fees and send you a check. Sound like fun? Just like in Vegas, the house always wins. Why shouldn't you? After all, it is your collection.

We provide you with a valuation of what your collection is truly worth in today's market and make an offer to purchase your entire collection. If you prefer to sell only certain books within the collection, we can make offers on those as well. We can also provide you with other favorable suggestions after evaluating your collection.

CONVENIENCE:

We can discuss this by telephone, email and in person.

100% PAYMENT IN FULL NOW:

We pay you 100% in full when purchasing your collection. Period. For those clients who prefer to be paid over time for reasons of their own, we have contracts available.

Consignment centers make you wait until after your items are sold & they have been paid.

Auction houses make you wait until after the auction ends, and after the bidder's funds clear their bank, which oddly enough can take several weeks.

YOUR CHOICE OF PAYMENT:

We can pay by bank wire, cashier's check or CASH. For those who prefer, we also trade.

Suspense #66, #92, and #74 are popular choices in 7.0 - 7.5. Tales to Astonish #70 is not rare but still a must for Subby collectors. The price for this book is down in the VF- range and #77 is looking very smart in VF. Avengers #47 Magneto cover and #18 are popular choices, Hawkman #26 black cover Kirby 1968 about $40 in VF, Green Lantern #9 first Sinestro cover, Flash #174 classic cover, Aquaman #12 Nick Cardy cover from 1963 - there are definately bargains afoot. Many submissions are from collectors who favor Marvel, yet DC treasure has caught their eye.

The last six months of grading has been a joy with huge improvements in the quality of the books, the variations of choice. The collectors exploring their hobby, very much widening their view with joyous results. In VF the price jumps pretty much across the board, but FN/VF to VF- is affordable and still a solid book. Returning restored books to collectors has slowed, fraction to what it was. I spend as much time as I can with each Halo customer. My advice firstly is buy the Grading Guide, and I give them an OWL (Overstreet Whiteness Level) card, help them understand the Guide, have them ask questions, teach others. It's working with great results.

Movie/TV mania is driving current modern issues to fever pitch, with New Mutants #98 and X-Factor #6 topping the charts. Then BAM! Hermes Press rings the bell with Lee Falk's The Phantom #1, 10 variant covers. Australia's love affair with The Phantom is well known, with collectors and dealers sending in submissions of all variant covers. New issues are on the menu for certification, current trends show the young have a taste for some speculative favourites. Modern comic Saga #1 was popping up more than once in 9.8. Y The Last Man and Marvel's Civil War are represented strongly.

So let's move along, we're talking about the Overstreet price guide, market report, values. To determine a Guide price, guide being the operative word, first you have to know the condition. An Overstreet Guide to Grading Comics is essential as is an OWL card. OK, the OWL card has some imperfection - matching PMS ink colours to paper tone is difficult, but I still think it's an excellent teaching tool, a guide. Here's an excerpt from The Overstreet Guide to Grading Comics: "At Halo Cert. we are Overstreet all the way. The Overstreet Guide to Grading Comics is our one and only manual that relates to comic book grading. Collectors in possession of a Overstreet grading guide and an OWL card can get fairly close to what grade they will receive. A change is sweeping across Australia like wildfire. No longer is it acceptable to say "NM except for half a page missing".

We have three labels: Graded, AO (archival only), and certified Autograph. Restored books are returned free of charge. No qualified grade, defects are graded accordingly. We use Mylar archive inserts in all our cases. From The Overstreet Guide to Grading Comics, to quote Bill Cole, "Mylar is an exceptionally strong transparent film that does resist moisture, pollutants, oils and acids, with a life expectancy of hundreds of years." Cole writes an excellent report on preservation and storage of comic books.

I should reflect my team's experience in the industry, all have served at the counter of a working bricks and mortar comic shop, service ranges from minimum 10 years to over 30 years serving the public. Buying, selling, trading, Diamond ordering, Wednesday night shipment break to box customers and everything in between often operating in extremely difficult economic conditions. The AU$ being a commodity currency it can lose 25% pretty much overnight to the U.S. dollar. Guiding a full service comic book store takes experience that only comes with in-the-trenches day-to-day bump-'n'-grind.

Halo is working on a trial exercise with Ace Comics and Games in Brisbane, as an exclusive offer to their customers and whole-sale clientele, three Halo graders will come in on shipment break up night setting up the necessary equipment in a designated area and sift certain titles to try and find the elusive 9.9s. All three graders will do the preliminary sorting, 2 senior graders to finalize. Returning them certified in 7 days. No guarantees to find a 9.9 after 14,000 miles of freight. 9.8s will be sectioned into a separate lot to fill desired orders for that grade. The on-site grading section will be visible to interested collectors who wish to watch the procedure. Part of the trial includes the certification label which carries the Ace Comics and Games exclusive banner with an Ace ID, serial number. If the exercise is successful the service will be expanded to all other shops. I have readied my graders to 9.9 and we will be grading according to The Overstreet Guide to Grading Comics.

The future Halo Cert. Case development will incorporate a micro RFID computer chip with encrypted entry. A small gold computer chip located on the header card custom developed for Halo Cert. by Prudential Associates in Maryland. Our UK division of Halo Certification will be available to the public spring 2015. Darryl Jones and his team at Silveracre comics will be the sole Halo Certification distributors for the United Kingdom. I welcome Darryl, Melloney and staff at Silveracre comics and look forward to working with them on this project. I have done business with Silveracre for over a decade and always found Darryl prompt, trustworthy, and reliable, I have recommended many of my Australian customers to Silveracre over the years who say the same.

Many thanks to the team for a very productive year: Mr Greg Rowe minister of finance. Tony Nasser 2IC to M/Director, grader & data entry. Russel Page & Greame Cliff senior graders & Australian comic book authorities, Glenn Ungerer senior advanced grader. Diane convention/office coordinator. ## BILL ALEXANDER COLLECTOR

Hi from Sacramento California. The comic book market in 2014 appeared to be more volatile than ever before. Keep in mind many comics that shoot up in prices paid for them based on movie hype are subject to plummeting down as fast as they went up. Major auction houses continue to set record sales with well established key books in the hobby from all ages especially with Marvel, DC and Archie. One of the exciting things I came across in 2014 was a Dell Four Color Comics 2nd series #12 (Bambi #1) sporting a 15 cent cover price. It is very possible that Dell Four Color Comics #9 2nd series (1st Carl Barks Donald Duck) a major key could exist as a US published 15 cent Canadian price variant?

Now a short mention of the Bronze Age. I often think back to prior to 1998 when no Bronze Age key books would sell for over a thousand dollars. Now look today at how many certified graded Bronze Age books sell for over a thousand dollars, even some that are not key books. Speaking of key books and the Bronze Age, I can't help but mention how difficult Marvel Spotlight #2 (1st Werewolf By Night) is to find in 9.8 grade with still no copies seen in that high of grade on the CGC census last I checked. I strongly believed back in the early '90s that book was the hardest Marvel key Bronze Age book to find in high grade and it appears to hold true today. Imagine the enormous price a 9.8 certified graded copy of Marvel Spotlight #2 could bring at auction?

Archie, Archie, Archie. More than ever, now is the time to start buying up those early Archie Silver Age key books while they are still very cheap in comparison to the Marvel and DC Silver Age key books. Think back to how inexpensive and affordable Silver Age Marvel and DC key books once were around 20 years ago compared to today's Guide prices.

I came across some printed error issues that exist of Archie Copper Age books, like Life with Archie #268, Archie Giant Series Magazine #586 and #587 (1st appearance of Explorers of the Unknown). Earlier and later examples may exist as well. The books were printed as 9-10/88 direct market 95 cent editions when Archie's direct market 95 cent editions were not intentionally published until Archie comics cover dated 6/89 were released. These error printed direct market copies were distributed and sold in Canada on the newsstands amazingly. I know of at least one Archie digest comic printed with the same type of error and that is Katy Keene Comics Digest Magazine #3 dated 9/88 printed as a direct market $1.50 edition. It was not until Katy Keene Comics Digest Magazine #6 1989 was released that direct market edition copies of Katy Keene Comics Digest Magazine intentionally were published with a $1.50 cover price by Archie.

The rare Archie Silver Age test market 15 cent price variants with 77 of 112 of them known to have surfaced including three of the five key books, but they remain unlisted in the Guide. Also seldom seen are Giant Size Archie 35 cent US published Canadian price variants 1953-1965 are identical to their 25 cent counterparts in every way except for cover price and appear scarce based on the Overstreet annual price guides glossary definition of scarce (20-100 existing copies). The Archie Giant Size 35 cent cover price variants are sometimes misidentified as being Canadian editions when they truly are not. An Archie Giant Series Magazine #10 VF- 7.5 (35 cent cover variant) in ComicConnect's November 2014 event auction did very well going for $398 about 2x Guide.

A few eBay sales observed in 2014 were Josie #1 FN (1963) $960, VG $500, Josie #106 VG+ $50, Archie's Mad House #22 VG+ $374, Archie Annual #9 VG+ $82 and Pep Comics #155 FN $172.01. Happy collecting to all out there.

DAVID T. ALEXANDER TYLER ALEXANDER & EDWARD WENDT CULTURE AND THRILLS, INC.

Everyone is hyped up about comics now that the film industry has taken the concept mainstream. Many film goers have become avid comic book collectors in the last few years. Remember a few years ago when the average person had only a vague notion of who the Avengers were? Now everyone has a connection to the top Marvel and DC characters and the trickledown effect has generated interest in scads of older comics. The tip with the film-related comics is to get the current hot book the minute a character is rumored to be in an upcoming film. Of course, this is not always easy to do and the alternative is to get as many comics as you can all the time and hope you have some winners when the new film concepts hit the internet chat boards. Demand has been very strong for comics related to the current and future films. With the studios announcing plans several years in advance we feel that the demand for the movie related comics to continue to expand.

Some of our top sellers in this area have been: Marvel Team-Up #95, Avengers #57 both graded and ungraded copies, Legends #3, Suicide Squad #1, Daredevil #1 graded and ungraded copies, Incredible Hulk #181 many copies sold, this is currently the most popular single issue, Fantastic Four #45, She-Hulk #1, Captain Marvel #18, Strange Adventures #187 and Ms. Marvel #1.

Comic book conventions have had a strong positive influence from the film publicity. Comic collecting is a very popular activity now. We can remember 20 and even 10 years in the past when collecting was looked down upon by many non-collectors and was considered "America's Secret Hobby." That is no longer the case and the conventions are an entry to the hobby for many people. We did more shows last year than in the past three years combined, and there was not a loser in our schedule. Our goal is to double our schedule this year. When the internet strangled conventions in the early 2000s, there was a letdown in the collector community that was fostered by a lack of face-to-face communication. While the giant conventions still thrived during this era, the regional events were unable to attract sufficient attendees to cover expenses. The conventions began to make a comeback by the late 2000s and many have morphed into media events.

We have all seen the costume wearing fans at various shows. A lot of dealers have complained to me about the volume of cosplay fans at shows but if we put a positive spin on that part of fandom we will realize that the promoters are increasing attendance and covering their costs by including such activity and they are still promoting comics so it is not a totally bad thing. Many of the larger regional events have attendance in the 20,000 to 80,000 range and this just creates more attention to our hobby. I used to say that I had never sold an old comic book to anyone in costume but a fellow in a Batman suit bought a couple of Golden Age Batman issues from me at the Charlotte Con so maybe things are changing a bit. The general opinion from many dealers is that they are being squeezed out of the big shows as costs increase and attention is not significantly on older comics. The best conventions for buying and selling seem to be the small to medium sized events that draw around 500 to 3000 people. We purchased tons of books at similar events last year and will be attending many more this year. If you see me in the aisles please stop me and show me what you are offering. Fortunately we were able to meet several long time clients at a variety of shows last year. Some of our closest friends are collectors that we have met at shows. Our best shows of the year were the Megacon in Orlando and the Tampa Bay Comic Con which is now held at the Tampa Convention Center. Both were mob scenes filled with local and out of state collectors and fans. It really is worth a trip to Florida if you have not attended either of these events.

What Are People Collecting? Golden Age is our favorite and based on our sales a lot of collectors feel the same way. By volume pre-Code Horror books have been our quickest sellers. At one point we had a spectacular group of about 500 come in and over half were gone in a couple of weeks. Needless to say we are feverishly looking for other large lots, but we are happy when only a few trickle in. The Horror comics are a unique icon in American publishing history and warrant an examination by those who are unfamiliar with them. DC Golden Age superhero books are like the blood in a collector's veins. They keep the flow going and keep collectors breathing. As a group they are clearly the most popular and sought after Golden Age books. We received several memorable collections and had various copies of Adventure, Batman, Detective, More Fun, Superman, Flash, Sensation, World's Finest, World's Fair, All Star, All-American, Comic Cavalcade and many others. One good benchmark to determine your success at acquiring Golden Age books is to note the earliest copy of Action Comics to come in. Last year we had the historic copy of Action #1 as our earliest copy, and this year an Action #8 has been the earliest issue to arrive here. We still have a few months to go so maybe we will see another Action #1 this year. I can assure you we are looking.

Timely Comics are on a lot of people's minds but the sales were a little slower in the last year due to depleted inventory. We have been paying over professional prices and still have very few available. Fawcett superhero books have been steady but not spectacular sellers. Most issues will sell at Guide values or slightly higher. Their average price is much lower than similar time period DC and Timely titles, and we feel that the pricing structure contributes to their steady demand.

Silver Age Comics: Books from the Silver Age era out-sell Golden Age issues rated by volume. There are more Silver Age books in existence and many collectors feel comfortable with this time period. Advanced collectors who enjoyed these as kids find them to be a connection to their childhood while investors and speculators seek the thrill of making the correct analysis and turning a quick buck. Super-hero movie fans love the comics as way to find more adventures and info about their film favorites. History has proven that Amazing Spider-Man is the most popular comic book in the eyes of collectors. This will not change anytime soon. When I had my chain of comic book stores in Southern California in the early 1970s thru the late 1980s there were tons of collectors who were avidly collecting the entire set of Spider-Man comics. Recently I have noticed more collectors who are searching specifically for the keys of this title, including: the first 17 issues, plus 20, 28, 39, 40, 41, 50, 100, 121, 122, 129, 194, 200, 238, 252, Annual 1 and a few other issues that are just getting the surge. The same situation applies to Fantastic Four with the most recent high demand issues being those that feature the Inhumans. Again this is demand generated by movie rumors and promotion, which is not a bad thing. The Marvel films have been uncanny in translating the style, substance and feel of the comic pages to film. Everyone we have spoken to feels that is a fitting tribute to have a Stan Lee cameo in the films. We still recall the 1970s when Stan moved to Los Angeles and would frequent our store in Studio City picking up back issues for reference. The highlight of this era was when Stan used my store to be filmed for his first TV spot using my copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 as a prop.

Some of our recent Silver Age sales include: Amazing Spider-Man #1 signed by Stan Lee, Amazing Fantasy #15, Fantastic Four #1, Hawkman #1, Journey Into Mystery #1 and others, Tales To Astonish #27 & 44, Lois Lane #70, Flash #139, Action #252 - we sold 3 copies in two weeks, Justice League #1, Green Lantern #1, Showcase - various early issues, X-Men #1 and tons of other Marvel and DC key issues.

Other Golden Age Comics: The Teen Queen Good Girl Art style comic has had a strong demand in the last few months. Millie the Model is on the pole in this race and Patsy Walker issues are close behind. It seems like prices increased every week. Most pre-1962 issues are really hard to find, so try to locate copies of issues #25 to #75, and then try to dig up a copy of #100. The Marvel/Atlas/Timely comics in this genre are particularly interesting as many have fantastic art and double meaning covers. Look closely at them when you see them at conventions this year.

Western comics had increased demand last year. There has always been an undercurrent of interest, but sales had more than tripled last year as several new clients presented their want lists that other dealers had been unable to fill. The most requested were Atlas issues featuring the continuing characters Kid Colt, Two-Gun Kid, Rawhide Kid and Western Kid. Next were the anthology titles that featured those Western heroes including Wild Western and Gunsmoke Western. Joe Maneely and John Severin cover art issues were very hard to keep in stock. These comics sold easily for 1-1/2 to 4 x Guide values depending on the grade. Higher grade copies are no longer floating around and there are sufficient buyers to absorb all of them. The real sleepers in this area are the Atlas/Marvel transition issues that appeared in the early 1960s. Some issues with Kirby art have hit 5 times Guide in higher grades. We did locate a stunning batch of Dell Four Color Westerns which was highlighted by a copy of the first Roy Rogers issue, Four Color #38. It had been over 20 years since I had my hands on a copy of that rare issue.

Magazine Enterprises comics were again quite popular. It is interesting to note that their Western heroes were almost all secret identity characters. The Ghost Rider by Dick Ayers is by far the most popular and is the iconic secret identity western character. Since these comics had a pre-Code Horror element there are a multitude of crossover collectors seeking the more than 50 issues that ME produced with stories featuring the Ghost Rider. The character has had long legs and was picked up by Marvel in the 1960s and transitioned to a motorcycle riding fireball in 1970s Marvel issues.

It is interesting to track the ongoing influence of some of these 1950s Golden Age characters. When the Golden Age super-heroes ended abruptly around 1950, the Western comics immediately took center stage. All Star Comics died with issue #57 and All Star Western #58, which is quite scarce, appeared the next month. The lead feature was the Trigger Twins, a secret identity duo. The costumed hero secret identity theme created with the early Golden Age superheroes continued in the Western genre of comic books. The Western heroes did not have super powers but they were superheroes to the kids who loved the comics. Marvel, Atlas and ME comics really thrived on the secret identity Western characters while Dell and Fawcett stuck to the movie and TV Western stars and issued most of their comics during the era with photo covers. The Westerns are such an iconic part of Americana that I don't think demand will ever go away. Too many kids got too many thrills from their cowboy heroes.

Our most interesting find of the year was a near complete set of Basil Wolverton comics. Wolverton's unique art style attracted a lot of people in the 1940s and 1950s. He was a master of humor strips and his most famous was Powerhouse Pepper. Everyone should read a couple of these, they will crack you up. His earliest sci-fi strips were Space Hawk that appeared in Target Comics and Space Patrol that appeared in Amazing Mystery Funnies. These are quite hard to find and provide an exciting comic book experience. The pre-Code Horror comics he did are among the best. Generally his mid-grade comics have been selling for around double Guide values. We were also fortunate to get a set of the first 15 issues of Fantastic Comics. We almost never see these and getting a long run is just like living a dream.

Pulp Magazines: We have always maintained a large inventory of pulp magazines. The best publishers had it figured out in the 1920s and really hit their peak in the mid and late 1930s before the decline after WWII. Although there were a few stragglers, they basically died by the mid 1950s when television became a part of every home. This means the last pulps published are now around 60 years old. These historic magazines carried America through some of its most trying days and we really suggest that you try a few and add them to your collections. There are now about a dozen pulp oriented conventions that take place annually and the latest one was held in early 2015 in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. If you are interested in more info about these events, feel free to contact me anytime. Many comic collectors have a crossover interest in several titles and some of the best pulps were produced by publishers who also had extensive experience with comic books. Among the best sellers this year were Fiction House issues which had art by Graham Ingles and Weird Tales with covers and interior art by Atlas/Marvel artist Matt Fox. Currently the most sought after genre is the hard-boiled Detective and Mystery titles. The leaders of this group are Black Mask and Dime Detective.

Foreign Comics: Comics printed outside the US are the rage these days. Many foreign editions reprint American books with variant covers, and an entire website is devoted to the study of these unique comics. We have had several impressive collections arrive at the warehouse this year. Each collection has expanded our experience and appreciation of foreign material, and we can see there is a lot more ground to cover. Don't be afraid to get involved with this field. The coolest issues we had in this area were the Hong Kong Batman issues. They were printed in a digest format and had original stories and covers. The art was wild and had a resemblance to the most radical of the Underground Comix. These were really fun to get and look at and we are still catching our breath after the prices that they sold for. Actually, we were kind of sad to see them go. Considering that Marvel and DC published comics in 15 to 20 different countries, it seems that there is fertile ground to be covered in tracking these down.

We are entering our 48th year of full time activity in the comic book field, have had ads in more editions of the Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide than anyone else and send our thanks to everyone who has done business with us in the past. Please contact us when you are ready to buy or sell or just want to chat about comics.

DAVE ANDERSON, DDS COLLECTOR

The comic book market is strong and healthy! Sales are strong in all areas, especially high grade books.

Demand for key Golden Age comics like Action Comics #1, Detective Comics #27 and other significant key issues surpasses supply, especially in unrestored condition. When one of these books surfaces and comes to auction, bidders expect to have to pay over-Guide prices. Practically any comic book title that is widely recognized will sell for over Guide if graded in CGC 9.4 grade or higher. When evaluating the census on 9.4 and higher graded books, it becomes very obvious how rare they are, and collectors are buying them up.

Although technically not as rare as Golden Age titles, Silver Age Marvels and DCs are in very high demand in CGC 9.4 and higher. Prices on Silver Age DCs have lagged behind their Marvel counterparts, both in Guide values and prices realized over the years, but with demand being as high as ever for the DCs, we can expect prices on these books to continue to rise.

STEPHEN BARRINGTON WITH JON CHAMBERS FLEA MARKET COMICS

This past year in comics, we have witnessed big changes in mainstream books. Titles to come out of nowhere claim spots in the Top 10 which were once held by DC and Marvel. Comic-based TV shows and movies have become big hits with an increase in readership evolving into a more diverse spectrum across all ages.

Sales for 2014 are not surprising with Batman titles clearly being the top sellers. The new Amazing Spider-Man is Marvel's best selling comic. Batman itself outsells Amazing Spider-Man by a fair margin.

X-Men titles have sold more slowly this year while other Marvels tend to fluctuate greatly month to month. DC titles seem to sell fairly evenly across the board with the exception of specials. This also applies to Marvel with some of their crossover events.

With Image comics there is no surprise – The Walking Dead sells extremely well, especially the trade paperbacks for those who like the TV show. Fans of the series want to read earlier stories and gravitate to the trades which we sell $3 off of the $15 cover price to make them more attractive. Only hardcore collectors will pay the high prices for early back issues. The first 100 issues are impossible to keep in stock.

Dark Horse sales were slow with Star Wars titles being somewhat popular. However, Marvel is back to publishing the series after Disney bought out George Lucas. Most other independent companies are hit-or-miss with DC and Marvel dominating overall sales.

Marvel made a few head-scratching decisions, especially renumbering and renaming its titles. This has caused some confusion with our regular buyers. Avengers have been a steady seller and the Death Of Wolverine increased sales for this character.

DC's Forever Evil storyline was somewhat popular while Harley Quinn has enjoyed strong interest as well as Green Lantern, Flash and Justice League. Future sales of core DC titles appear to be destined for steady increases. For IDW, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles sells very well.

Silver Age Marvels: With the exception of key issues, Silver Age Marvels are practically dead in the water. Of course, this does not apply to X-Men and Amazing Spider-Man. But the king of all of our Silver Age sales is Amazing Spider-Man. These are very hot sellers with most 1960's issues being in high demand.

Hard to move titles include a number of titles. We tried selling 1964-1965 Journey Into Mystery with Thor in nice shape for 60 percent off and there have been no takers, including on eBay. Fantastic Four, Thor, Avengers, Daredevil, Tales To Astonish (Giant-Man, Hulk issues) and others sit around gathering dust, even at one-half off. Exceptions include Ant-Man issues of Tales To Astonish and pre-new-armor issues of Tales Of Suspense. These have disappeared from our back stock.

Ah, the Marvel keys everyone wants: Tales Of Suspense #39 (Iron Man), #52 (Black Widow) and #57 (Hawkeye) it seems everyone wants. Avengers #1 and #57 (Vision), Fantastic Four #45 (Inhumans), numbers 48-49-50 (Silver Surfer, Galactus) #52 (Black Panther) and Daredevil #1 are impossible to keep and find.

Silver Age DC: Silver Age DCs have done somewhat better for 2014. Hot titles have been Flash, Green Lantern and Superman. Pre-New Look Detective and Batman issues (prior to May 1964) won't sell at even 50 percent off. There was a little action on World's Finest issues from 1964-1968. Most other titles (Doom Patrol, Sea Devils, Superboy, Jimmy Olsen, Lois Lane and Adventure) need to be sentenced to the Phantom Zone.

Bronze Age: It seems everyone wants Incredible Hulk issues #180-181-182 in practically any condition. These Wolverine issues are beyond red-hot, they are white-hot. Amazing Spider-Man #129 (1st Punisher) and the "death" issues of Amazing Spider-Man (#121-122) are also up there. Giant-Size X-Men #1 and X-Men #94 are on most want lists. With DC, it's House Of Secrets #92 (Swamp Thing), Neal Adams Green Lantern issues and Batman featuring the first Ra's al Ghul and Joker appearances.

Children's titles have been very popular with My Little Pony and SpongeBob. Our entire children's section (located at the front of our shop) attracts many new younger readers. The sales for 2014 for this genre have been our best ever (even though we give many away to the younger fans. Parents love this).

Our Silver-Bronze section (with nothing over $5) has enjoyed lot of success. Back issues of Classics Illustrated have been steady. We have X-Men, Spider-Man, Wolverine, Batman and Superman boxes that sell well. Our 4-for-$1 boxes are huge sellers.

Important sales: Amazing Fantasy #15 (6.0 restored) $5,000, Amazing Spider-Man #1-100 in various conditions, $80, Flash Comics #9 (CGC 1.5) $300, Avengers #1 (VG+) $1200, Amazing Spider-Man #300 (NM) $200, and New Mutants #98 (Deadpool, NM) $125.

The first 100 issues of The Walking Dead are impossible to keep in stock.

LAUREN BECKER

WARP 9 COMICS

1980/90s

Fan: "Hey! I'm going to Comic-Con. Want to go?"

Non-fan: "Nerrrrrrrrrrrd!"

2000s

Fan: "Hey! I'm going to Comic-Con. Want to go?"

Non-fan: "They still make comics? Geek!"

Today (2015)

Non-fan: "Hey! Can you get me into Comic-Con? I really like comics! Batman is my favorite Marvel comic!"

Fan: "Poser..."

... And thus, has the business changed. What was once regarded as childish nonsense, where fans had been thought of as nothing more than adolescents in adult bodies, has now become actual CULTURE...POP CULTURE! Is it because of the movies (Thank YOU Marvel)? Is it because of the money (Thank YOU Action Comics #1...$3.2 Million)? Is it because of the population wanting something else MORE in their lives...something that can dilute the ho-hum mundane in their lives...to make their life better and complete?

I'm saying the money.

Don't get me wrong. The average person who has gone to see The Avengers, or Man of Steel, these people (the average Joe), might now have a small taste for comics. They won't go to the shop every week to pick up the newest issue of Spider-Man, but hey, the brand (or in this case, the genre) is visible. There is SOME interest (and don't quote me box office numbers. Yes, The Avengers did like $56 billion in the first hour...but so did Tomb Raider).

No. It's the money.

Once you see a comic book close for $3 million on TV (or whatever media outlet), peoples' eyes light up. "Hey," a non-fan might yell, "I've got me one of them there 1st appearances of Spider-Man! I know it's worth somp'thin, cause I saw the guy on Pawn Stars say it was!" Everybody has that million dollar treasure, and everybody wants to cash in. Or people want to try to get that hot book that just came out for $2.99, but on eBay, it's going for $50! Can't get it at a comic shop, because those shop owners are too savvy/greedy to sell it for cover or less...but hey, Comic-Con has to have it! And even though I'm gonna pay $90 for a one day pass, $16 to park, and $8 for a hot dog and a sip of water, I should be able to find that book for cover!

***sigh***

The truth is, there are still multiple people who love comic collecting, and, for the most part, comic READING. There are more and more comics being published today than there were even a year ago. New fans are coming into the market everyday...some who are the TRUE fan or collector (or both), and some who are "one and done" type mentalities. You gotta take the good with the bad/greedy. It's just the nature of this machine called the comic industry.

Anyways...let's get to the market report...see? It IS all about the money...

Marvel Comics: As of this writing, we just finished a deal with Marvel to do an exclusive variant cover for the new Star Wars #1! Now people always, and I mean ALWAYS complain about the variant covers. "Can't Marvel just sell the book without the crutch of variant covers to boost sales?" To this I say... Keep calm, and choose a different hobby (try needlepoint). People like/love collecting, and variant covers are ONE part of the appeal. As of this writing, our variant (and the sketch cover version) are exceeding our expectations! The ratio variants that are also attached to this book (ie: 1:25, 1:500) are also closing high. We pre-sold a master set of ratio variants (14 covers all together) for $650.

Star Wars isn't the only comic that has done well. Edge of the Spider-Verse #2, which is the 1st appearance of Gwen Stacy as Spider-Woman ("Spider Gwen"), has gone ballistic on the after market! $50 seems to be the average price right now, but I predict as high as $100. The 1:25 variant is at about $150, with CGC 9.8 copies going for $400! The new on-going series was announced, and it seems that the demand will outweigh the supply (in my estimation).

Ms. Marvel #1 featuring the first Muslim solo super hero has been heating up the aftermarket also. #1 1st prints started at $5, and have now going as high as $30!! The new female Thor #1 has also been shooting up as 1st print copies have been selling at $7-10! It seems the resurgence of Marvel female characters in their own titles are safe bets...as of now that is.

DC Comics: DC had a few sparkling diamonds in the rough. Most notably Grayson (#1 has been selling at $10), and New Suicide Squad (#1 also selling at $10). Batman is STILL the king of the New 52 back issues. We had 3 Batman #1s at NYCC at $100 each...all gone on the first day! #4, with 4 copies, gone by Saturday at $50 each. Even #2, which had a HUGE print run, was consistently selling at $10 each.

Harley Quinn... the Deadpool of the DC universe. Here is a title that just sells and sells and sells. One shots, annuals, ongoing, you name it. Speaking of annuals, the Harley annual was a "gimmick" book that had scratch and sniff sections. One of the sections was a "cannibal" quality scent (the "mary jane" if you will). It sold strong in pre-sales and online within the first few weeks, but has died out...for now at least.

Image Comics: The Walking Dead and Saga. The two lynch pins in the Image publishing house. Always selling consistent numbers. Always the most requested back issue sellers. The Walking Dead AMC show is STILL the best advertisement for the comics and trade paperbacks. Most of the other Image titles, however, have dropped off dramatically. Titles like Peter Panzerfaust, Revival, Thief of Thieves, and Sex Criminals...all that sold within the mid double digits, are HALF of what they used to sell. Some are in the SINGLE digits.

Scott Snyder's Wytches seems to be a hot commodity right now. Very under-ordered and a movie deal on the way has sparked MUCH interest in this title. There is also some buzz on some of the newer titles such as Birchbright and Bitch Planet (if anything, the title ALONE makes it a must read). Robert Kirkman's (remember him?) newest title Outcast started off slow (surprisingly), but once it was announced that a cable TV show was being fast tracked, interest AND price went up (#1 1st print $15).

CGC Sales: Some examples of sales we have experienced. I have been finding that low grade books have been on the up-rise within the CGC sales, as 9.8s are just too much for the average pocketbook:

Avengers #4 2.5 for $500

Avengers #2 3.0 for $225

Avengers #16 7.5 (SS Stan Lee) for $500

Adventures into Fear #19 (1st Howard the Duck) 9.0 for $400

Thor #165 (1st Warlock) 8.5 for $400

Marvel Preview #4 9.4 for $650

Marvel Super Heroes #13 (1st Carol Danvers) for $240 (this one was actually CBCS graded)

Batman #47 (1st detailed origin) 4.0 for $800

Wonder Woman #49 (used in SOTI) 7.5 for $500

Incredible Hulk #181 6.5 for $1200!!!

Now on the opposite side, newer issues, especially ones in 9.8, have had insanely high sales...higher than most Silver and Golden Age books. A copy of New Mutants #98 (1st Deadpool) in 9.8 condition sold for $1200 (sadly, NOT my copy). The newer fans WANT these comics, and to them, it's much more affordable (in their minds) than trying to even get a coverless copy of Amazing Fantasy #15! Some examples:

DC Comics Presents #26 (1st New Teen Titans) 9.6 for $300

Preacher #1 9.4 for $300

New Teen Titans #2 (1st Deathstroke) 9.6 for $300

Batman: Harley Quinn (1st continuity app.) 9.8, two copies at $300 each

New Mutants #98 9.2 for $350 and our 8.5(!) sold for $255(!)

Batman #386 (1st Black Mask) 9.8 for $250

Outcast #1 9.8 for $100

Death of Wolverine #1 (Sig. series Charles Soule) four 9.8 copies at $100-130 each.

JIM BERRY COLLECTOR

First, a hearty thank you to Bob Overstreet for his efforts, year in and year out. When you consider the transformation in the world of collecting and dealing old comics since the first Guide was published back in 1970, you must acknowledge Mr. Overstreet's contribution as, possibly, the most influential in the business. In the span of a single generation, we've gone from a hobby where we horse-traded stacks of comics for Tonka trucks to an industry where a single key comic in grade can easily exceed the yearly salary of your average American. Amazing.

I love old comics. I love the art, the stories, the smell of the paper, the history and how you can get a sense of time and culture in a single comic from any era in our recent history. My particular interests include comics from the 1940s and '50s that feature World War II covers, Good/Bad Girl art, wild pre-Code '50s Horror, crazy crime covers ~ anything horrible and curious. I'm also a fan of the typical slate of incredible artists that plied their trade in obscurity during the Golden Age: Alex Schomburg, Lou Fine, L.B. Cole, Joe Maneely, Basil Wolverton, Matt Baker, Bernie Krigstein, Steve Ditko, H.G. Peter, Wally Wood, Al Feldstein (and the entire EC staff.)

I don't own a brick and mortar comic store, but I am active on eBay (as jb233) both as a seller and a buyer. I also run ads in various newspapers in my area and around the country when I travel (something I've done for over 20 years) in an attempt to ferret out collections in regions across the country. This year, I ran ads in Seattle, Portland, Oregon, Palm Springs, California, Gallup, New Mexico, New Orleans, Philadelphia, and Salem, New Hampshire. A note of interest here: I was largely unsuccessful in finding much of anything by way of my advertising which was unusual. Typically, I get, at the very least, a handful of calls from kids wanting to sell their Valiants from the '90s. So, this is the first year, in over 30 years as a serious collector/trader/dealer, that I wondered – Is the great comic hunt over?

As the year wound down, my hopes faded. Do the math and you'll see that we are entering the twilight of the original owner collections from the '40s and '50s. People who were young, building their homes and lives at that time are now in their 80s and 90s. Their possessions are being processed and the last of those old books that have lived in attics for the past sixty years are now being discovered and moved. So, is the great comic hunt over?

It is, I thought, until I got a call from a woman named Alana in Portland, Oregon. Turns out, I met her 10 years ago when her husband was thinking about selling his collection. At that time, I saw the books, a wonderful, eclectic collection of keys and rarities from the '40s and '50s, but he wasn't ready to sell and a deal never materialized. He passed a few years ago and all his comics were sold, all except his copy of Wonder Woman #1 – which Alana sold to me two days before Halloween this past year, at a pancake diner in SE Portland. I never thought I'd own that comic and it restored my faith that maybe The Great Hunt isn't over after all. Clearly, collections aren't going to be as plentiful as they once were, but every dog finds a bone once in a while.

On eBay, I've noticed a trend that has become prevalent this year. Sellers are now regularly auctioning their comics with prices that are, essentially, starting at Guide or better. It's not much different than a BUY IT NOW sale and, instead of a low starting bid that encourages action and ensures the book will sell to the highest bidder, the insertion of these books at Guide discourages folks who are interested to watch the progress of an organic auction. In the immortal words of Marshawn Lynch, "It's about that action, Boss." In this case, the "action" is simply money - and who am I to argue with money? Money will always win. And, besides, the good news is there are still deals to be had on eBay every single day. You just have to be willing to dedicate the time to finding them.

The evolution of Craigslist as a comic marketplace is another area that I've reported on in years past. In the mid-2000s, CL was a fantastic source to discover collections. There wasn't much competition and a diligent collector could find some great treasures. Now, dealers looking to buy, at least in my region, dominate CL. I recently searched for COMICS there and found six out of the top 10 listings were solicitations to buy. A funny note – There was a 7th dealer in that top 10 that posted a warning about one of the first six dealers, calling him a liar and cheat. He went on to encourage potential sellers to sell to him instead(!)

After several years of watching the value of “movie” comics spike and flex, I thought it was interesting to see several books adjust their values this year. It seems as if there is an initial rise and peak soon after a comic film project is announced followed by a slow decline. If the film is a success, like Guardians Of The Galaxy, then a book like Tales To Astonish #13 (1st appearance of Groot) continues to exceed its Guide value. There really is no formula though and each Movie Key has to be considered on its own merits. Plus, if you consider the big Bronze Age keys, they’re mostly all Movie Keys now. Recently, Fantastic Four #45 (1st Inhumans) and #52 (1st Black Panther), Brave and The Bold #28, JLA #1, Tales To Astonish #27 (1st Ant Man), and Strange Tales #110 (1st Doctor Strange) have garnered attention due to the upcoming slate of films announced. Meanwhile, 1st appearances of The Flash, Deathlok, Constantine and others who show up in TV saw little bumps and then went away. What is it that makes one character – like Groot – so much more interesting? My guess is that the Groot book is, obviously, much scarcer than most of the newer stuff.

One niche area of note that I found interesting was the explosion of value in several Timely/Atlas Horror comics. 1st Namora, Marvel Mystery Comics #82 (May 1947), 1st Gorilla-Man, Men’s Adventures #26 (March 1954) and 1st M-11, Menace #11 (May 1954) go for multiples of Guide as do most early ‘50s Atlas horror if it’s in Fine or better. One book, though, Mystery Tales #40, typically goes for eight to ten times Guide because it was featured in the TV show Lost.

Prices for original art continue to reach incredible heights without much in the way to explain how to arrive at a value for a piece other than to put it up for auction (I do believe there is a guide in the works?) One of my all-time favorite covers, an iconic image from my childhood, appeared for auction this year, Dave Cockrum’s original cover art for Iron Fist #15. When I saw it appear, I thought, maybe I could sell some stuff and manage to buy it. Then, it sold for a cool $55K. A little beyond my budget, unfortunately. More than any other sector of comic collecting, I’d say that the old adage, “Collect what you love” applies to original art – if for no other reason than that it’s so bloody expensive.

I went to a few shows this year but, as has been reported by so many over the past 10 years or more, shows have changed dramatically since the old days. The energy is all about blockbuster films and movie stars, kids in costumes, vendors selling energy drinks, and panels about how to get your comic published. Because it’s not the way it used to be, you hear a lot of grumpy old men (including me) complain about the state of the current comic show. Oh, how we long for the good ‘ole days when it was a cramped hall and a bunch of guys thumbing through boxes of yellowing paper. Then two things happened. First, a show called Frankenstein’s Comic Show appeared in Portland. It’s set in an old and cramped Eagle’s Hall in SE Portland, complete with a dark bar in one corner tended by an old time Eagle and it’s populated by folks selling comics and toys. And that’s it. No costumes. No celebrities. There weren’t any blockbuster deals going off but it was fun to walk through, lots of dollar boxes and a guy doing an air brush painting of a bug-eyed Hot Rod Monster on a piece of cardboard. Wow. It all made me feel like a kid again. And that’s what we’re all after right? That time travel moment where you have that feeling of being young and discovering something new that you loved. Keep it up, Frankenstein!

The second thing that happened was that I went to Wizard World in Portland this past year with my six-year old daughter, Willa. She was dressed as Dorothy from The Wizard Of Oz and was welcomed with open arms by the other cosplayers which made her very, very happy. We walked up and down every single aisle and she savored all the bizarre sights and great costumes. The more intricate and crazy the costume, the more delighted she was. So many people stopped her to talk about her own costume. She had a great time and I saw the whole spectacle through her eyes as something wonderful and otherworldly. Being with her made it, without question, the best comic show I’ve ever been to.

Thank you for the kind notes throughout the year and good luck in 2015. Please feel free to contact me (jb233@nyu.edu) with questions regarding your books. I buy, sell, and advise and I don’t charge for my time when it comes to phone calls or appraisals.

PETER BILELIS, ESQ. COLLECTOR

So, 2014 marked 30 years(!) since my first contribution to the Guide. Amazing how much has changed in that time. To me, the biggest changes from a Golden Age (GA) collector's perspective are: (a) GA books are much more plentiful in the marketplace today (even if a whole lot less affordable!); (b) whether you are a fan of the slab companies or not, the numeric grade on the slab has, to some extent, reduced the level of discrepancy (when buying mail order from a dealer with whom you do not regularly transact, etc.) between the book you were expecting and the book that shows up; (c) the internet has created a much more level playing field as well as liquidity, with collectors and dealers often competing for the same material (and collectors able to sell their books for market prices, rather than a fraction of that amount to dealers); and (d) one in paradigm, essentially, where very many hobbyists are now buying books for the numeric grade and hopes of financial return, rather than out of nostalgia and a desire to read (yes, we used to actually read vintage books back then!) the exploits of the book's featured characters. Wonder how much more things will change over the next 30 years...

As I write this Market Report, a few of the larger December 2014 premier auctions have just ended with some reported record-high sales in the GA and Silver Age (SA) hobby segments. One example was a Journey Into Mystery #83 in CGC 9.4. It features the first comic book appearance of The Mighty Thor and was reportedly sold for approximately four times what a similar copy sold for not long before Hollywood popularized Thor to a mainstream audience. Clearly, books don't "naturally" appreciate that quickly, so it would be reasonable to attribute some of this "hyper-appreciation" to Hollywood. And now that Disney is involved, I think we're all in for a lot more superhero treats on the Silver Screen!

In terms of other dynamics, books featuring mainstream characters (e.g. Superman, Batman, Captain America, Subby, etc.) are generally in-demand. This even includes titles like New York World's Fair '39 and '40, World's Best, Marvel Mystery, All-Winners, etc. More surprising was that Marvel Family #1 (1945) was a very hot book throughout the summer convention circuit and is still heating up! This was caused by the announcement of the upcoming film that will feature Captain Marvel and his arch-enemy Black Adam. I also observed that more GA "mainstream titles only" collectors were dabbling in titles like Speed, Green Lama, Master, National, Prize, Punch, Science, most pre-code ECs, etc.

In any event, while the ever-increasing and record sale prices are good indicators, they come with some side-effects, creating a mixed bag as discussed below.

Reported record sale prices for top material are in a sense trumpeting to the greater community that comic books are a serious and stable collectible. Clearly, when a single comic book sells for hundreds of thousands of dollars (or in a few cases one million dollars or more), the hobby has evolved to a higher level of maturity and people outside the hobby are taking notice. Furthermore, if these reported sale prices are an indicator of a broader (and sustaining) interest (bringing people into the hobby that aren't traditionally "comic book collectors") and this ultimately translates into a broader interest in the general hobby (rather than just an interest in the "investment grade" only books), this would be good for the hobby's future.

These reported record sale prices also suggest that more and more material is becoming out of reach to the majority of collectors (the backbone of the hobby). In fact, if you were to survey many of the hobbies "whales" that built their sensational GA collections primarily from the late 1970s through the early 1990s, they would tell you that they could not afford to recreate their collections today. Also, a consequence of record sale prices on top-tier key material is it creates a "drafting effect" on lower grade copies of the same books. When the highest graded tier of top material is so expensive that few can afford it, this pushes prices up on the "next tier" material (for GA, say 8.0 – 9.0), as this "next tier" generally becomes the best available material and, therefore, the new basis for a (relative) good investment. And, as has been seen over the past few years, the top books from this "next tier" have quite often become too expensive for most collectors. This has a tendency to push up the prices of the "next-next tier" (or high mid-grade: for GA, say 6.5 – 7.5) material but this is also the point at which the "drafting effect rub" occurs. There is divergence between actual sale prices for high mid-grade material and some of the (logically derived) estimated values found in the Guide and some dealer pricing. Data indicates (many exceptions noted) that, while estimated values and dealer pricing continue to increase on high mid-grade material, the prices at which the majority of these high mid-grade books have sold over the past 10 years have remained relatively flat.

I've observed that some dealers at shows offer this material at prices at which they estimate it should sell, it doesn't, and they then report "slow sales." And other dealers (as well as collectors) who pay close attention to actual sales data will consistently tell you that this high mid-grade category (both GA and SA) needs to be priced right in order to sell and that it requires the most consideration before making a purchase. The reason is that while there are some books that are scarce in any grade (e.g. More Fun #15, Suspense #3 and 8, Startling #10, Pep #20, many Jumbos and several Prize Comics between #20 – 29, etc.) and, therefore, are highly sought after regardless of grade, this does not apply to the overwhelming majority of books. On this basis, it might not be wise to tie up thousands of dollars in a "non-exception category" high mid-grade book because when it comes time for resale, the mid-grade book likely appeals to neither the high grade nor low grade buyer. It isn't perceived as being investment grade (again, exceptions noted) nor can it compete (on a cost basis) with the 3.0 or 4.0 to a budget-conscious collector that simply wants to own a copy.

And, over the past year, I've actually been talked out of buying some important GA and key SA books in high mid-grade by several long-time dealer friends! The two core arguments: (a) few hobbyists buy books priced at greater than $5k, so be careful when putting a large sum (or an amount over that stated in the Guide) into a book when there are perhaps a dozen or more better known copies; and

(b) by way of analogy: few people are willing to build a stock portfolio comprised of very expensive single shares of stock of risky companies that have flat-lined in appreciation over the past ten years. This same consideration should be a factor when considering the purchase of expensive “non-exception category” high mid-grade books.

Having said that, I believe books in the high mid-grade continue to have a lot of long-term growth potential – if priced right. In some cases, they are already the best available copy, but perception is that a nicer copy could emerge and for the difference in price, the 8.0 would be the better investment – so wait until that nicer copy emerges. If at some point higher grade books just aren’t emerging, or that they are emerging but at truly out of reach prices, perception might shift so that the greater hobby sees this material as the legitimate “best available” and worth aggressively pursuing. Good luck hunting in 2015...

STEVE BOROCK COMIC BOOK CERTIFICATION SERVICE

Forty-five years of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide! It’s hard to believe and, at the same time, so wonderful that a guide that helped shape my enjoyment of our hobby for so many years is still around and going strong today! As always, I would like to give props to Bob Overstreet, J.C. Vaughn, and Mark Huesman and their team for the hard work and dedication they put into this guide. It is a very hard job juggling every adviser’s pricing, opinions and thoughts with the diplomacy that they do day in and day out! And all for the love of this hobby that means so much to them.

Last year my market report mentioned that I had left Heritage Auctions as their Senior Consignment Director and was about to open CBCS (Comic Book Certification Service) and, at the time, I was hoping we would become well established as a third party grading/certification service in a few years. I am happy to say that the collectors and sellers in our hobby rushed to use our service. I could not be happier!

I thought that when we first opened CBCS, we would get some cool comics from collectors and sellers, but I never expected to get in the avalanche of “pre-submission” books we got in even before we opened our doors. I also never imagined that all the major auction houses would be using our service and that we would be getting significant collections as well as top high grade keys right off the bat!

It has been a truly humbling experience having so many of the collecting community have such faith in us. I think the key was not only that we put together a team of true and experienced hobbyists that love our hobby, but the fact that CBCS would listen to the collecting community, be hobby-friendly, truly transparent, and most importantly, 100 percent impartial. I believe it also helped that we developed a crystal clear, archival safe, tamper evident holder to house your prized comic books.

It has been a very interesting transition for me, going from knowing prices on almost every book and watching the comic market on a daily basis, to becoming removed from pricing, to stay impartial, while grading for certification. What is really cool about my gig is that I not only see some of the coolest and rarest comics in the world, but also watching the trends by seeing what is actually being submitted.

When it comes to the Golden Age, as always, the “Blue Chip” comic books are king. I am talking about DC and Timely: Action, Superman, Detective, Batman, Captain America, Marvel Mystery, Wonder Woman, and Sensation, as well as other publishers that have “classic covers” and WWII covers from that time period. What I am surprised about is seeing so many Fawcett books being submitted. It seems that the market is back for these great books, but once again, it’s mostly Fawcett key and classic/cool covers that we are seeing.

Silver Age books are the same as Golden Age, where the hottest characters and covers are king. Amazing Fantasy #15 still leads the pack, but most key books are being submitted all the time. My personal pet peeve is that the first Marvel superhero book, Fantastic Four #1 (the comic that started the “Marvel Age”) is not as popular as AF #15.

Now, can everyone say, “Movie and TV hype?” When a movie or show is announced, an issue that might have been rarely submitted before catches fire and becomes heavily submitted. Deadpool is still on fire and New Mutants #98 comes in on a daily basis. Even if there is only a rumor of a character in a movie or TV show, CBCS will get a slew of that character’s first few appearances. Dr. Strange, Ant-Man, Shazam, Iron Fist, Isis, Power Man, the Inhumans, Vision, the Falcon, Suicide Squad, Ultron, Defenders, Legends, Star Wars (1977), Preacher, Alias, X-Factor featuring Apocalypse, Superman featuring Doomsday, Civil War, Infinity Gauntlet, Cyborg appearances, and even Howard The Duck, as of writing this, are super hot because of “speculation” from the movies or television series. This goes for all comics from Golden Age to Modern.

On the very Modern front, as I write this, there are many hot books. The Walking Dead is king of the non-mainstream comics. WD #1 still a very sought after book. The current most-submitted new moderns are Spider-Gwen/Edge of Spider-Verse #2, Amazing Spider-Man #4 (first Cindy Moon as Silk), Walking Dead #127 (two-year jump issue, preview of Outcast #1), iZombie, Descender, Star Wars #1, Darth Vader #1, Princess Leia #1 (so many variants!), Wytches #1, Outcast #1, Death of Wolverine and the Greg Capullo/Scott

Among Modern books, Edge of Spider-Verse #2 is one of the most submitted to CBCS.

Snyder Batman series. I am sure I have left out some others, such as Saga #1 (another personal favorite), but I see so many books, it's hard to remember them all.

As always, I want to give a shout out to our hobby's greatest charity, The Hero Initiative. The H.I. gives back to those in need who created the wonderful characters we all enjoy. Please check them out at HeroInitiative.org. This marks the sixth consecutive year that there is a Hero Initiative limited edition hardcover version of the Guide. I hope that is the one you are reading right now, as all the proceeds go to this wonderful charity.

Another thing I would love to talk about is the Geppi's Entertainment Museum. A wonderful place! The history of our hobby, combined with special rotating exhibits, makes a trip there one of the most exciting experiences a comic book fan can have. Truly an amazing and magical place to visit!

I will end this report the way I have done for years. This is for the newer collectors in our hobby, as I hope that the more "seasoned" collectors already know this. Even though I believe in this market and its future, and have been in it since I was a kid, there is no such thing as a free lunch.

If you are going to invest in comic books, you had better love what you buy. If the economy ever gets really bad, just like if you own stocks, precious metal, real estate, or anything else considered an investment, you will not be able to sell them for a really high price very quickly and you can certainly not use comics to house or feed you and your family in times of need. The best advice I can give, and been doing so for as long as I remember, is: "Buy what you love and can afford." It's really that simple.

I hope to see and talk to many of you reading this at the conventions that I and CBCS will attend! Thank you for taking the time to read this and, as always, happy collecting!

You can read more about CBCS in an interview with Steve Borock beginning on Page 1126. - RMO

RICHARD M. BROWN COLLECTOR

I believe the recent successes of TV and movies are very beneficial! I believe Steve Geppi's museum and the Illinois Superman Museum, as well as record sales prices, are giving us respect and credibility.

I've been to dinner with four of my fellow Overstreet advisors and I believe we have a very strong group of professionals representing comics. In my hometown of Detroit, we have Comics Continuum. This TV show represents the diversity and expansion of our great hobby. I believe The Flash, Gotham, Agents of SHIELD and Guardians of the Galaxy show the great respect our hobby engenders.

Prices on the Rise: Guardians of the Galaxy characters, Iron Man #55, Marvel Preview #7... anything raccoons and trees. Captain America with Kirby artwork, early Scarlet Witch and Quicksilver (X-Men #4 especially), Tales of Suspense #52 (Black Widow) and Tales of Suspense #57 (Hawkeye)!

Prices on the Decline: Early Green Lanterns, although the upcoming JLA movie may change that. Or there may be an appearance on The Flash TV show. Time will tell. Early Whiz Comics would benefit from a re-vamp of Captain Marvel/Shazam.

Pricing Adjustments?: Again, Guardians 1st appearances and early Barry Allen/Flash like Showcase #4 and Flash #105. Watch X-Men #4 in the near future! Incredible Hulk #181 for Wolverine also.

CHARLES & JEFF CERRITO HOT FLIPS

Hot Flips is mainly a supply company, selling all kinds of comic supplies from polypropylene bags to backing boards.

The Hot Comic for 2015 is the Marvel Star Wars title (1977-1986) The hype of the upcoming movie should generate big revenue for comic book dealers and collectors.

We have had Zenescope Entertainment exclusives (limited to 100 copies). Lots of them sold for $100.

Prices on the Rise: Star Wars #1-107 and Marvel Super Special #16 (the 1st true appearance of Boba Fett & Yoda.) Star Wars #42 had Boba Fett on the cover. This comic was mentioned by Marvel that they reprinted these issues from #39-44 for Marvel Super Special #16, so Star Wars #42 came out after his first appearance. We sold a NM- copy of Marvel Super Special #16 for $100.

PAUL CLAIRMONT PNJ COMICS

As I settle in to write this report I find myself wondering what I should discuss and hope that it has some relevance in the middle of 2015 as it is only November 2014 as I put pen to paper. The challenge of holding your interest as I try to share my experiences and hope it still has merit in nine months when you finally read it is compelling.

As we approach the end of 2014 we are thrilled to have completed our 2nd full year of operations and we're full steam ahead into our 3rd year of business. I thought it would be difficult to duplicate the strong results of 2013 but we even surprised ourselves in 2014! I couldn't believe the health of the comic book hobby during our second full year. We set achievable goals and zoomed past them as we realized a nearly 50% increase in year over year sales.

Many factors attributed to this success. Once again, factors within our control were being "first to market" with some of the highest graded copies of upward trending comic books and magazines. Taking risks on books and willing to spend more than the competition or collecting public. Continuing to focus attention on books that aren't showing up on others' radar has also helped. I can't stress enough how important research is. Knowledge and research are keys in this industry and being able to forecast what can likely be the new hot books has assisted tremendously. Research allowed us to often be 6 to 12 months ahead of the curve of upward trending books. I often joke with my friend and colleague, Doug Sulipa that this has also proven to be a thorn in our side as we end up selling our best copies or selling out before the books realize their true potential once our hunch is validated. Alas, to ensure that cash is flowing for other projects we can't sit and think "what could be". It is important to be satisfied knowing a sale has been made and the bills are paid. Holding a book too long can have the opposite effect and not selling earlier could mean the book is no longer on peoples' want lists and there is no sale at all. This is particularly risky with "hot" comics as that window of opportunity is often short. I wish I could say that there is a fancy mathematical formula to forecast these trending books but it comes down to experience and more often than not, trusting my gut. To help hedge against the risk of only offering hot books, it is important to have a deep inventory so that you can have books ready for clients when they come calling. Having stock to supply peoples' want lists is important and helps to keep those repeat customers coming back as they can rely on us to have what they are looking for. The other point I always stress to others is, "think globally ~ not locally"! Online sales comprise 99% of our business. A comic dealer without an eBay store to complement their own website or brick and mortar store is hindering their ability to increase sales. No matter how big a dealer thinks they are, eBay is still the undisputed champion for people to shop and helps drive traffic to our own website.

Last, patience is a virtue! We never feel pressured to sell a book because the latest data shows a similar copy selling for peanuts. Many factors could be attributed to the poor sale, an eBay seller with poor feedback, poorly described auction listing and running an auction that missing potential customers. Listing a book and willing to listen to offers will often yield better results. Auctions are only truly great if the book is rarely offered for sale or is the "hot book of the month".

The other big reason for the strong year in the comic industry is the growing influence it has on everyday people. Non-comic book people are becoming aware through media with the increase of new super-hero TV shows and character appearances such as Arrow, Flash, Gotham and Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. Suddenly, families are watching these shows together like Bonanza in the '60s and I often hear about my wife's friends discussing shows like Gotham or Flash and asking about this character or that character. No matter what they discuss, the conversation always leads back to where the subject matter originated from: Comic Books! The increase of super-hero movies and TV shows being green-lighted and produced is continually increasing as well. I believe there are approximately 29 super-hero movies greenlighted for the next five to six years. Some folks in the hobby are concerned that this rise will cause things to collapse. A kind of "What goes up, must come down" theory. I believe the increase is good for the industry. People are collecting or taking notice because the material is good and has potential. Sure, many chase the hot books based on the shows and movies but it also opens doors for others to read new stories and peak new interests. Like any good leading economic indicator, these movies and TV shows are helping gauge years of potential interest. So to the folks that feel the industry will collapse on itself, I disagree. The announcement of super-hero movies to be made into the year 2020 tells me the hobby is strong. The seeds are planted to peak our interest and the stories flow from back issues written 30 to 50 years ago.

This growth isn't the boom we saw during the '90s. The hobby nearly choked on itself with weekly gimmick, foil and hologram covered new books while ignoring quality books in the Gold, Silver and Bronze Ages. I still recall dealers going bananas trying to stock up on the latest #1 issue and happily trading away great Silver and Bronze Age books. People are also realizing that it's not so easy to find these Silver, Bronze and even Copper books in high grade and the competition becomes fierce when you mix that rarity of high grade with the desirability of the subject matter.

Collecting has changed from when we were kids and teens over 30 years ago. There has been an interesting trend developing for the past few years. Females are picking up comic books and influencing the industry. There are more people collecting comic books and comic related products for various reasons and it's providing a healthy future catering to all interests, not just collectors but speculators and investors, all with a unique reason for entering the collecting arena.

Canadian Price Variants: We saw a dramatic increase in interest and premiums paid for Canadian Price Variants so we thought it was worth noting again in this year's report with some new information. Marvel and DC are the most common so I'll only discuss them for the sake of example, but there are also Gold Key, Archie and many more. Marvel and DC both released separate pricing for Canada in October 1982 and continued into about 1986. These books are approximately 1/10th the original printing of the U.S counterpart and can be recognized with the single 75¢ or 95¢ cent price on the cover while less common books are $1, $1.60, $2.10, $3.50 etc. (All single Canadian prices).

With a low print run and distribution of these particular books circulated to the general public through venues such as grocery and convenience stores on spinner racks many were abused as they were enjoyed for their intended audience and not die hard collectors buying at specialty shops with direct editions. This has made it very difficult to find the books in high grade. Most copies are in lower condition than Very Fine (8.0).

We sell high grade Canadian Price Variants at strong premiums over the regular print run. As a side note, we did have strong sales with Canadian Price Variants. CGC (9.8) copies of X-Factor #5 were bringing large premiums over the regular edition counterpart as copies sold for $175. We also sold two copies of Marvel Super-Heroes Secret Wars #8 in CGC (9.8) for over $300 each. These are tough books to find in high grade. I'm sure as interest grows we should see an increase of these books coming out from collections.

Non-keys sell for 25%-50% above Guide and keys can bring 100% to 1000% above Guide price. PNJ Comics is proud to have hundreds, even thousands of these books in high grade. Although mainstream titles naturally perform better, when it comes to Canadian Price Variants, all titles sell well. Make no mistake, it's a niche market but has created scarcity amongst an age in books that many people thought were mass produced. Just as difficult to find in high grade are newsstand editions, particularly from the late '80s and throughout the '90s. They are often in lower grade than their direct edition counterparts as mentioned above in the sources of distribution. Although not as scarce as Canadian newsstand editions they are scarce in Very Fine+ or better and once again bring consistent premium over the direct editions.

It is very important to note that these books should not be mistaken as simply Canadian Editions or reprints! These are U.S produced books that were distributed to the Canadian market only. We want to make that distinction clear as grading companies are simply listing "Canadian Edition" on the label when in fact it should be correctly labeled with the notation of "75¢ Canadian Price Variant" for example.

Interesting Trends and Sales: PNJ Comics had excellent sales with individual record breaking prices because we utilized the strategies mentioned above. In 2014 we sold a raw NM/M (9.8) copy of FOOM #2 for $910. This was the book people said had the Wolverine prototype. As a side note, the buyer had it graded by CGC and it did receive a CGC (9.8) – White Pages.

We also sold in auction style on eBay a copy of DC Comics Presents #22 – Whitman Variant CGC (8.5) for over $1,500. We knew going the auction route was the best scenario as it was the single highest graded copy on the planet of a very unique book so we decided to let the market determine the value. We also sold a CGC (5.0) copy of the Golden Age classic The Spirit #22 for $2,500, a record price for a CGC (5.0) copy. We sold a raw VG (4.0) copy of Chamber of Chills #19 with its classic skull and brandy cover for $1,150 along with a raw VG (4.0) copy of Crime SuspenStories #22 with its axe and beheading cover for $1,000. Classic covers from the pre-Code era continue to smash through the ceiling and always bring huge premiums.

Interest in Archie comics is growing steadily and bringing record prices! We mentioned in our report last year that Afterlife with Archie was going to be a hit and we proved that a little by selling two copies of the Life with Archie #23 magazine featuring the Afterlife with Archie variant cover and 1st appearance of "Afterlife with Archie" for $350 and $400, both in CGC (9.8). We just recently sold a copy of Josie #1 in raw VG (4.0) for $500, that's 18 times Guide price. We also sold a copy of Betty and Veronica #75 with its classic "selling my soul to the Devil" story in VG/FN (5.0) for $150. Copper Age keys like Archie's Girls, Betty and Veronica #320 which features the 1st appearance of red headed bombshell, Cheryl Blossom are selling consistently above Guide. All Cheryl Blossom appearances are hot and very tough to find in high grade as Archies weren't typically preserved and usually found their way into the family summer vacation suitcase or camping trip box.

At the beginning of 2014, we were selling undervalued keys such as Ms. Marvel #1 in CGC 9.2 for approximately $75 to $100. As of this writing the book is spiking and copies in CGC 9.6 are being sold for nearly $800 with CGC 9.8 copies selling for upwards of $2,000. The book had a heavy print run so we'll see the price correct itself slightly but it'll continue to command strong prices. New Mutants #98 was selling for approximately $400 in CGC 9.8 in the summer of 2014, but since the announcement of the upcoming Deadpool movie copies were leaping $1,000 with prices stabilizing slightly.

It is difficult to try and keep up with the on-going announcements and hype. Your head will be spinning like a Looney Tunes character if you try, so the best advice is try not to cover all the bases. If you happen to have a book that becomes hot in your collection, congratulations! If you start trying to chase everything that is hot you will quickly find yourself out of cash and exhausted. Something will always come around.

Silver Age: This was a consistent performing category in 2014. Books up to Fine (4.0 – 6.0) realized prices higher than Guide with third-party-graded books bringing Guide. It influenced our choice of books to grade as we saw some flat prices as these third-party-graded books didn't bring premiums above Guide price. There were exceptions and we had excellent results with such keys as Tales of Suspense #52 and #57 featuring the first appearances of the Black Widow and Hawkeye. We sold a CGC (6.0) copy of Tales of Suspense #52 for nearly $700 and mid-grade copies of Tales of Suspense #57 from $300 to $500. We also sold a raw mid-grade copy of Strange Tales #89 boasting the 1st appearance of Fin Fang Foom for nearly $500 followed by a restored CGC (8.5) restored copy for $1,000. That book is a true gem and still undervalued in my opinion.

I will always buy copies when I can find them and we'll pay 150% above Guide in any grade. We also sold a raw FN/VF (7.0) copy of Tales of Suspense #14 featuring the 1st appearance of Colossus for $275. We couldn't keep copies of other keys such as Fantastic Four #45, #46 and #52 in stock. These books are fueled by the speculation of movies and sold for 200% to 500% above Guide price in any grade. Hawkman #4 was another big seller with the 1st appearance of Zatanna. We sold a couple of raw mid-grade copies in the Fine range for north of $300. Stocking the 2nd appearances and origin issues of these key 1st appearance books is becoming tough as they also bring higher than Guide prices in nearly any grade. For instance, people are finally taking notice of Fantastic Four #53 which is part 2 to Black Panther's 1st appearance and features his origin. This book is bringing 100% above Guide in any grade.

Ant-Man is hot and will continue to climb as the movie approaches and then come back in line with strong values. We sold a complete run of Tales to Astonish #27, #35 to #60 in varying low to high grade to a collector in Europe. That's a run that will continue to garner a lot of attention throughout 2015. This is one era of books that people are happy to collect in any grade. It's nice to see people still appreciating these older super-hero books and going back to the root stories.

Bronze Age: I love this era of books. There are so many obscure titles that were released in the early '70s. Reprinting classics of pre-hero monster stories found in titles such as Where Monsters Dwell, Fear and Monsters on the Prowl amongst them. Hard to believe these reprint books are over 40 years old now! They are becoming just as tough to find in nice grades as the originals. Speaking of reprints, we've seen a growing interest in books that reprint expensive hot keys as the originals are becoming too expensive to collect in high grade. For example, Marvel Tales #98 and #99 reprint Amazing Spider-Man #121 and #122 yet there are very few high grade copies to be found as collectors didn't covet these books at the time of their release on newsstands. Marvel Tales #106 also reprints Amazing Spider-Man #129 and is very scarce in high grade, the same holds true for Marvel Super Action #18 which reprints Avengers #57 and the Vision's 1st appearance which is very tough to find in high grade with its dramatic black cover. Then you have Where Monsters Dwell #21, reprinting Fin Fang Foom's 1st appearance from Strange Tales #89. So have fun, go and find these key reprint books in high grade to add a new twist to your treasure hunting. These early 20¢ Marvels are scarce in true VF+ or higher. The prices are climbing as collectors are realizing that they are much more affordable and fun to chase in high grades. Some other overlooked titles that are chalked full of 1st appearances and important events are Marvel Two-in-One, Marvel Team Up and Marvel Premiere. These titles often were used for "try outs" and feature some very important and undervalued keys. Sure, you could easily point out issues such as Marvel Premiere #47 and #48 with the 1st new Ant-Man appearance. But the truly underappreciated keys are the early Marvel Team Up featuring Werewolf by Night and Ghost Rider appearances. These early team ups feature some of the earliest appearances of these characters. Bronze age DC books are super tough to find in VF or better. No matter what title, if I can find affordable copies of any 15¢ or 20¢ book in VF or better I will buy it and I recommend you do too!

Frank Miller books are hot! One Frank Miller cover that appears to be off people's radar is World's Finest #285. We discovered this to be Frank Miller's first Batman cover and a possible undervalued key as it features both Batman and Superman on the cover. We sold a high grade NM/MT raw copy for $75 and continue to purchase copies as we come across them. With the Batman v Superman movie quickly advancing we think books with this content will see a rise. Other titles that are growing in demand are Jungle Action, Amazing Adventures, Inhumans and the break out Jack Kirby titles such as Eternals. I can't stress enough that Jungle Action #6 should be more than Jungle Action #5. Issue #5 simply reprints Avengers #62 but Jungle Action #6 is the 1st true solo Black Panther material.

Finally, we predicted this title would break out in 2014 from our last report and our prediction for the break out title of 2015 is once again, Star Wars which began in this era and continued into the Copper Age. We are already seeing some action with impressive sales figures on individual books from this title. All Darth Vader covers are hot! So is Boba Fett. The first true appearance of Boba Fett is actually in Marvel Super Special #16 (not counting his trade paperback appearance) but it takes time getting the word out to people. Nonetheless, Star Wars #42 is bringing strong numbers. We look forward to bringing to market nearly every issue in CGC 9.8 including highest graded copies of the 75¢ Canadian Price Variants and we will unleash them as the movie buzz continues to grow.

Copper Age: Well, it's no fluke... the Copper Age has been strong for more than 2 years and back issues of these once considered "dollar bin" books are highly sought after in high grade. We have been consistently setting record prices for both third party graded and raw books from this era. Chock-full of overlooked keys, this era is causing a feeding frenzy as collectors and mostly speculators scramble to scoop the latest undervalued key.

As of this writing we have been selling high grade raw copies of books such as Legends #3 for $140 as it boasts the 1st new Suicide Squad which is getting a 2016 film. I think the book could be purchased for less than $3 about 3 weeks ago. I think the most underrated series of this era is The New Teen Titans/Tales of the Teen Titans and Legion of Super-Heroes. Both titles are filled with keys galore. Add to the mix that there are the even more scarce Canadian Price Variants in these titles and you have a potential powerhouse. DC Comics Presents #26 is seeing steady growth with the first appearance of the New Teen Titans so it's just a matter of time that the rest of the title explodes. Speaking of DC Comics Presents, this is another title that was overlooked for years and finally coming into its own. We have set record prices with CGC 9.8 copies of issues such as DC Comics Presents #27 featuring the 1st appearance of Mongul and DC Comics Presents #47 with the 1st appearance of He-Man in comics. Our prediction is that DC Comics Presents #49 will be the big mover and shaker in 2015 and beyond as it features a classic looking Black Adam and Shazam battle cover and is our pick as the Black Adam book to have. X-Factor #5 and #6 saw increased price gains but we think that issues of X-Factor #10, #11, #12, #15 and #19 are just as important. These issues feature the 2nd appearance of Apocalypse but also the 1st appearances of the Four Horsemen individually before being gathered by Apocalypse as a team of minions for him.

New Mutants #87, #98 are red hot and beginning to double in prices realized at the start of 2014. The 1st Cable appearance can be argued by collectors but it's the speculators that will speak with their wallet and ultimately drive the prices of keys up. I still think Uncanny X-Men #201 is the 1st appearance but I'm quickly overshadowed by sales results.

Deadpool is the big climber in 2014. We were selling CGC 9.8 copies of New Mutants #98 from $400 to $450 in the summer of 2014 but as of this writing we are seeing prices climb as high as $1,000 and have recently settled into the $700 to $800 range. This is one category where it can be easy to be the one left holding the "hot potato"! The window of opportunity a s e s s o t e o o will drop like a lead balloon before you get to the comic store and home again. I'm exaggerating of course, but not by much.

Modern Age: Last year, I said this was the most dangerous era to speculate while trying to find that one book to become the new Walking Dead #1. I believe that danger of speculation belongs to the Copper Age at this stage as it seems more harmless to pay cover price for new weekly books than to buy a pricey Copper Age book that can either continue to climb based on a movie being released or quickly slide in price if it's discovered that the perceived 1st appearance of a character is actually in a different issue. I've seen a large increase in the number of #1 issues and variant issues. This is the kind of dilution that hurt the hobby in the 90's but I don't see collectors diving in as I do see them diving into speculative Copper Age books.

The interesting thing about the Modern Age is that if you actually read the books written today they are far superior in subject matter than highly sought after back issues. I'm impressed by the material and I can see why production studios are scooping up the rights to make stories from titles such as Preacher, Peter Panzerfaust and Scalped. I believe Kirkman's latest offering, Outcast is currently being picked up for television. There is even talk of an Archie TV series called Riverdale. I hope they make this show and do it with overtones of Afterlife with Archie and the new horror series Sabrina. If they give Riverdale a 90210 zip code then I'll politely have to pass on that series.

I strongly believe that there will one day be a large following of people seeking nostalgic memories of buying these current modern books and looking to relive their youth just as we all try to collect the books that meant so much to us as we grew up many years ago. The cool thing about today's moderns is that there are even tough-to-find newsstand copies sold at major department stores and outlets that sell newsstand magazines. These will be interesting in 15 to 20 years as print runs of modern books are still lower than any other time in history. Despite the digital medium trying to make everyone read a book on a tablet, there's nothing like picking up a comic. The smell of a comic is still the most intoxicating to us "kids at heart" with our vivid imaginations.

Finally, I have to thank all the clients who gave us the opportunity to be your choice when purchasing comic books. Without our clients we couldn't open our doors and I've enjoyed corresponding and sitting down to chat about the hobby with all of you. It's truly the people that make this interesting so thank you to guys like Adam, Lloyd, John and Brian and everyone that I've had the chance to meet or share emails. PNJ Comics is a family owned and operated business so the most important thank you is always reserved for my family. So I send my love and appreciation to all that put up with me but especially to my amazing wife, Nicole who is my biggest believer, my precious son, Jack who shocks me at his knowledge for the business and finally, where it all started, my father, Rob who took me on adventures that would mold my future.

ART CLOOS COLLECTOR/HISTORIAN

So as December 2014 bears down upon us as this is written and another year comes to an end it is time to look back on both the highlights and the trends of the hobby as I write this in late November. With some 35 comic, art and toy shows attended as a baseline, it is safe to say that there is still a healthy hobby out there with fans and collectors continuing to look to buy. One highlight that stands out is Action #1 once again setting a record for highest price sold. Another was the 75th anniversary of the first appearance of Batman.

A trend that shows no sign of ending anytime soon is that superhero movies continued to be winners at the box office and those movies are impacting the books of the characters that appear in them. With Guardians of the Galaxy of course leading the way in a regard. In 2015 this should continue with the next Thor and Avengers movies coming out.

Another continuing trend is of course that high end books once again continue to lead the pack in any of the ages that have been named in terms of prices realized. DC with Batman and to a lesser extent Superman and Timely/Marvel definitely have the edge in Golden Age sales with Marvel leading in the Silver Age market. As was the case in 2013, the Golden and Silver Age Wonder Woman comics continue to sell in part because Wonder Woman toys and memorabilia continue to influence Wonder Woman collectors to go after Gold and Silver age Wonder Woman comics. The success of the Arrow, Gotham and The Flash TV shows makes the comics in which their characters appeared an enticing opportunity for collectors.

Keep an eye on early Supergirl appearances as CBS has green-lighted a show starring the Girl of Steel with a start date not announced as of this writing. Also there are those companies whose stable of characters have been bought out by other companies and whose characters may soon be back in the spotlight. For example Fawcett comics, now owned by DC, with characters such as Captain Marvel, Captain Marvel Jr., Mary Marvel and Captain Midnight offer fun-to-read comics with art by such noted artists as C.C. Beck and Mac Raboy and stories by the Binder brothers. With a Black Adam movie in the works, there could well be a resurgence of interest in this company. This now offers an opportunity to collect great comics at relatively cheap prices. Quality Comics also taken over by DC offers Jack Cole's Plastic Man and Kid Eternity by Al Bryant and nice copies can be had at reasonable prices.

Silver Age interest by collectors continues to favor Marvel with early Spider-Man selling in all grades and usually at the top of the Guide for low to mid-grade copies and above for high grade books. However I suspect DC will begin to catch up as its TV and movie production efforts continues to ramp up and key books begin to be sought out by collectors for both investment purposes and for just the simple fun of reading them (we do still read comics right, even with all their investment potential?). This could include early Supergirl appearances in Action Comics, Silver Age Flash comics, Silver Age Aquaman, Cyborg and Suicide Squad appearances and Silver Age Green Lantern (if the movie is better than the first one).

As Marvel and DC continue to dominate sales of Gold and Silver Age books whose back issue prices are going past the budget of many would be collectors those collectors who want to find vintage comics they can afford do have other areas to look to. There are genres of both Silver and Golden Age books that can offer both affordability and high enough grades to attract collectors who otherwise feel locked out of the vintage market. Westerns, Romance, Horror and Sci-Fi titles offer opportunities to collect books with well-known artists and characters at reasonable prices. Titles such as Better Publications' The Black Terror, Dell's Popular Comics, Fiction House's Fight Comics, Harvey's Black Cat, MLJ's Zip Comics, Hillman's Air Fighters, DC's Funny Stuff, Lev Gleason's Daredevil and Marvel's Kid Colt are only the tip of the iceberg for those seeking alternatives to higher priced Golden Age books. Silver Age books from companies such as Charlton (its super hero titles also taken over by DC) Attack, Battlefield Action, titles featuring Blue Beetle, Captain Atom and Judomaster all provide alternatives to higher priced DC and Marvel Silver Age books

Local shows continue to be venues where both bargains can still be had and comics that are outside the main stream can be found. It should be noted that by their very nature local and regional shows will vary widely in prices for books and types of books sold from one part of the country to another. If you want more consistency in pricing or selection, look to the national shows.

Documented sales for 2014 include Amazing Spider-Man #27 FN $85, #22 VG $70, #21 (6.5) 130, #39 VF $220, #6 (6.0) $520, #9 (6.0) $600, #11 VG+ $230, #8 (8.5) $850, #194 VF $100, Strange Adventures #208 VG+ $18, #209 VF $68, #212 VF $45, Brave and the Bold #52 VF $120, #30 7.0 $800, #37 VF $80, X-Men #4 FN+ $320, Fantastic Four #15 (5.0) $120, Fantastic Four Annual #1 (8.0) $500, Tales of Suspense #46 FN- $130, Giant Superman Annual #2 FN- $75, #5 VF/NM $350, All-American Comics #43 (7.0) $620, #30 (6.5) $850, #53 (6.5) $280, #72 VF- $485, #102 VF $750, Adventure Comics #275 FN/VF $225, All Star Comics #57 FN- $400, #38 VF $870, Mystery In Space #75 FN/VF $98, Sensation Comics #79 VG+ $125, #38 FN+ $325, #41FN+ $225, #63 FN+ $295, #73 VF- $295, Comic Cavalcade #10 FN- $350, #12 FN+ $325, #25 FN- $250, Amazing Spider-Man Annual #1 FN+ $480, Pep Comics #12 VG+ $300.

Which Prices Should Go Up?: I am going to be company specific first and say most key high grade Silver Age super hero Marvels continue to do well and some might be adjusted upward and the same for Golden Age Timelys. I don't see any change from last year with what I said about DC in that it's still early Detectives and to a lesser extent Actions, but I would add now select All-Americans like #16, 61 and 102.

Archie continues to sell well at the shows I go to. For specific Marvel titles I think Amazing Fantasy #15 and Amazing Spider-Man. Even in lower grade the books are edging up and are in constant demand. Silver Age Marvel books above 9.4 also need an adjustment upward. For DC I think Flash, Justice League and World's Finest Comics need to be watched for potential price increases. Should Action Comics #1, or Action Comics in general, go up given the record sale or is that an anomaly?

Which Prices Should Come Down?: I am going to be company specific first and say Fawcett, Quality, Standard/Nedor/ Better Pub and I could name more but we know who they are already and these make the point. It may well be in time they rebound but right now what I see at local shows is they are very slow and they don't show up at all at many of the bigger shows. The books just sit when they are displayed but this does present buying opportunities as noted in my market report if the prices were attractive enough.

Then I am going to do genre specific and say Western and Humor and with the same comments as for the companies above. Yes I recognize you can't lower half the Guide but perhaps some selective tinkering here and there might motivate buyers for the above and then prices might begin to rise. Just a thought!

Are There Specific Issues That need a Substantial Price Adjustment?: To expand on what I said above, certainly Amazing Fantasy #15, Action #1, Pep Comics #1, Detective #31 and Brave and the Bold #28, and I would add All Star #8, all up. While it's too soon to see if it's just a fad those Marvel keys featuring characters who make it into their movies ie. Guardians of the Galaxy are worth keeping an eye on for future consideration. Early Guardians are asked for at all the shows I go to. No downs this year.

As 2015 begins and with an economy that slowly continues to improve I expect our comic collecting hobby to continue to be a vibrant and exciting one. I also expect there will be more than one surprise in store for us as the year progresses. See you in 2016.

GARY DOLGOFF GARY DOLGOFF COMICS

So, the overall Market is getting increasingly robust with Bronze Age comics all the time playing a stronger role in our field that we enjoy so much.

Yes, this year I was happy to purchase a wide variety of collections, both in size and scope. One collection had both expensive, nice condition CGC Marvels, and beat-up oldies (non-slabbed)'40s through the '80s, plus a group of books from Connecticut that contained runs of comics from the 1980s thru the 2000's.

I'm also "proud 'n privileged" to have doubled my staff (from five good folks, to a staff of 10 "able & capable" assistants) over the last three years. At last, I can output more of my inventory (I have over 800,000 comics presently), putting it on sale for dealers and collectors worldwide. My computer crew also has the "patience of Job" with dealing with all things eBay week after week.

Some of the Collections I have bought this year:

The L.A. (Cali) Deal – This interesting collection came about last August (2014). The seller called me and informed me that he had a combo of early Marvels in nice shape, and a number of boxes of “soup-to-nuts” comics from the ‘40s through the ‘70s, low grade to pretty nice (Fair/Poor to Fine, with some in around Very Fine) covering Superhero, Crime, Horror, Archie, Dell, etc...

I was on the plane to L.A. two days later, with a number of Bank Checks in hand. The seller was quite an okay dude, as he bought me a large lobster (a first for a seller) before I even looked over the entire collection. His collection was quite compelling. The CGC books were all Marvels, highlighted by: two Amazing Fantasy #15s (3.5 & 5.5), Amazing Spider-Man #1 (7.0), Tales of Suspense #39 (8.5), and Strange Tales #110 (8.0; 1st Dr Strange!). He also had Amazing Spider-Man #2 through #20 (CGC 7.0 to 8.0, mostly), Avengers #1 (4.5), Fantastic Four #4 (3.0), Strange Tales #101 (8.0), X-Men #1 (4.5), and some others.

His “random, non-CGC” comics were such a variety, in almost every way: For some examples, Donald Duck FC #9 (two copies in low grade); a pile of Uncle Scrooge issues; some mid-’60s Marvels in nice shape; two boxes of Crime comics; some pre-code ‘50s Horror, smatterings of “tattered” 1940s Superhero DCs (Batman #27 in Fair; a few All Stars and All-Americans; etc.) and much, much more.

He was a tough, though affable negotiator. He assumed the Lotus position before negotiating with me. I ended up paying him 80% of value ($80,000) for the CGC Marvels and $35,000 for the boxes of assorted oldies, for a grand total of $115,000 (and we were both fine with that.)

He also said that he liked selling them to me because he knew that I would properly take everything into account, not just the best books. After that, I FedEx’d the books back to my warehouse and then off I went, heading back East.

The Cape Cod (Ma.) Deal – A “mostly pure” Marvel collection. He elected to come to my warehouse in 3 visits. There he saw many examples of my grading, as well as CGC-graded books. I bought everything from an Incredible Hulk #1 (3/4 cover) and Amazing Spider-Man #1 (coverless), to his runs of 1960s through ‘70s Marvels in Good to Fine shape, basically.

The White Plains (NY) Deal – Yet another collection of 1960s- 1970s Marvels. I never tire of them. A comic book store owner turned me onto this in return for a 10% finder’s fee (which turned out to be $2500). Even though the Amazing Fantasy #15 was Fair/Poor, the ‘70s portion of this collection was in great shape!

The Boston Collection – This fellow regaled me with some hard-luck stories of his life, and when he offered me his small oldies collection (which included a batch of pre-Code Horrors in “so-so shape”) for a too-cheap price of $2000. I voluntarily paid him $4000 instead (and, corny as it sounds, ’twas worth it, when his face lit up like a Christmas tree!)

The Baltimore Collection – I went with one of my capable warehouse compatriots. The seller had a small, but cool variety of Original Art (including a nice Kirby page, a Hogarth Tarzan Sunday- as well as a lot of average strip-art. His collection of Comics contained boxes of 1930s and ‘40s Newspaper reprint books (such as Famous Funnies, Ace, King, Magic, etc.) and some Golden Age Batman and Superman comics.

I (with the help of my assistant) evaluated the collection, paid him a cool $75,000, and then drove the 8 hours back to Home Base.

The Ware, Ma. Collection – This collection consisted almost entirely of 1970s through 1980s comics. The couple who were selling this collection, unfortunately had lost their son, who passed away in his 50s. Dealing with inheritances is often a delicate subject, but for better or worse I happen to have a good deal of experience dealing with collectors’ family members in this situation. It’s often sad and sometimes a bit difficult, but I never mind taking some extra time with the family to go over my process and help in any way that I can.

They were quite happy, as I pointed out a number of comics that were worth $100 and more (they didn’t know anything about comics, but I helped them to the info on these, as I looked through and evaluated the entire collection over a few hours.

The Ohio Collection – I flew out to view this very interesting collection (with my main travelling Warehouse fellow) and took the time to make a worthy evaluation of his collection. He had over 15,000 comics from the 1940s through the present. The only thing is, the vast majority of the 10 cent cover comics were “Fair-something” in condition (for example: Fair/Good, Fair, Fair/Poor, etc.) but the books were cool! There were runs of Rex The Wonder Dog, Kid Colt, Mystery In Space, Superman #31-118, Adventures Into The Unknown, a stack of GA Captain Marvels, Whiz Comics and much, much more.

Some folks don’t like lower-grade oldies, but I have cultivated clientele for all grades, Poor to Mint. To me, the main core of the comics industry are those who collect and enjoy the books.

We bought them, shipped the books, and all that. I was happy that he also had a number of cool 2000s runs too, as the younger folks at the Warehouse have gotten me more into those, as well.

Sooo, even as I pick out some comics from these collections as “keepsies” (not-for-sale) I also get to have more goodies for my crew to process, etc. For much of the mid-’60s and up, I sell as sets. Even when the books are “non-sets”, the books bought often serve to fill the gaps.

Golden Age: A joy to buy and to own, in any grade! As always, Timelys (1940s Marvels) are stupendous sellers, routinely fetching over Guide for their values, especially Captain America issues (although I have little experience selling them over the last several years, as I joyously keep them instead.)

1930s Action and Detective (w/Batman) can sell for serious amounts over Guide, depending on the issue. For instance, I sold a CGC 3.5 Action Comics #13 (4th Superman cover) for over 5x Guide, and a #23 (actually 1940, but the 1st app. of Lex Luthor) in CGC 1.8 for $3000.

Golden Age DCs, for the most part, I get Guide prices by my grading. Another notable “upwards exception”: GA Wonder Womans mostly sell for 20% (or more) over Guide. One recent exceptional sale was when I sold a double of Wonder Woman #7 in CGC 3.5 for $2000. The feature of that cover was “1000 years in the future...Wonder Woman for President”!

Some Centaur and MLJ comics sell for over Guide, while most issues of (1945 & up, roughly) Blackhawk comics, and Fawcett Comics (Capt. Marvel, etc.) as well, sell slowly, even at 20% off of Guide.

Disneys of this vintage still sell pretty slowly, even for “discount off of Guide” (although they just recently seem to be slightly up-ticking in sales.)

Silver Age (10 cent through 15 cent cover-price, plus 25 cent cover Giants):

Marvels - What can I say, except “Movies, movies, movies” - yes, all of those Marvel-ous Marvel movies have made an already popular company “explode!” Regardless of grade, I cannot keep the mainline Marvels in stock for very long and so I must, in particular, seek these out for Warehouse replenishment. Yes, they were grr-reat comics to read, and I feel they are largely responsible for the success of our ever-burgeoning market.

Non-superhero Marvels, however, mostly sell pretty slowly, often for below Guide (a few exceptions: Sgt. Fury #1, #13; early Millie the Model; the 1st 50 issues of Marvel SA Westerns - those sell for Guide or more.)

DCs - They are starting to pick up somewhat in sales. Often, though, I must give a bit of discount off of Guide in order to move them. I recently sold a complete run of The Atom in GD to GD/VG, at 80% of Guide.

Exceptions to this rule, though, are: Batmans (any SA issues), the 1st 24 issues of Showcase and Brave and the Bold, early ‘60s Flash comics; and early ‘60s DC #1 issues. All of these books sell for Guide, and sometimes a bit more. Really high grade, sharp SA DCs are hard to find, and so often go for a premium.

Misc. non-DC and non-Marvel - I sell these for a bit under Guide, more often than not, though runs of SA Walt Disney's Comics and Stories have recently been selling better, lately, than in previous years.

I love buying collections of “all SA titles.” A well-rounded inventory of funny-books means that potential buyers can do more one-stop-shopping with us.

Bronze Age (1972 - Early ‘80s): Comics from this era, in particular, have really picked-up, making me more active than ever in seeking out Bronze Age collections in all grades. All Bronze Age books, especially Marvels, have been carried along by this more recent wave of ‘70s enthusiasm. I myself, must recognize that these books are a few decades old and many of them are still very affordable, making them more attainable for more folks to collect Bronze Age series.

Marvels - Amazing Spider-Man #101-150, and X-Men #94-143, are perennial great sellers. Iron Man issues up to #128 sell great, as does Incredible Hulk up to #182. Ms. Marvel has really picked up in popularity, as has Nova to some extent (both #1 issues are instant sellers.) In general, anything Bronze Marvel sells okay to very well, especially the #1 issues and 1st appearances.

So many Bronze issues could be considered “Enhanced-Value Comics,” worth well over Guide. For instance, just to name a few: Iron Man #55 (1st Thanos), Hero For Hire #1 (1st Luke Cage), Avengers #181, #196, Fear #19 (1st Howard The Duck), Howard The Duck #1, Incredible Hulk #271 (1st comic app. of Rocket Raccoon), Iron Fist #14 (1st Sabretooth), Marvel Premiere #15 (1st Iron Fist), #47 (1st Scott Lang Ant-Man), Marvel Spotlight #5 (1st Ghost Rider),

#32 (1st Spider-Woman), Special Marvel Edition #15 (1st Master of Kung-Fu), Ms. Marvel #1, Nova #1, Star Wars #42 (1st Boba Fett), #107 (last issue), Werewolf By Night #32 (1st Moon Knight), and of course, the “King of the ‘70s”...Incredible Hulk #181 (1st full appearance of Wolverine!) A couple of Marvel Magazines have Enhanced Value as well: Marvel Preview #4 (1st Star-Lord) and #7 (1st Rocket Raccoon.)

For just a couple of examples, I’ve been selling Nova #1s in VG to FINE for at least $25-$50. I recently sold a VG Fear #19 at a show for $70, and I sold some Howard the Duck #1s in VG to VGF for $25- $40.

DC - In general, 1970s DCs, as a whole, don’t sell nearly as well as their Bronze Age Marvel counterparts. One exception (just as it is with the ‘60s issues) is the Batman title. I routinely get Guide for runs from the #200s through #400. In general, I need to discount many of the ‘70s DC sets, whereas I don’t do the same for most of the Marvel runs, though I do feel that most 1970s values are right where they should be. One exception: Shazam! #1 sells for well over Guide. I’ve been getting $50 & up for nice copies so far. Shazam! #28 (1st Black Adam) sells for around $200 in CGC 7.0!

Yes, when I buy Bronze Age runs these days, I must take into account these well-over-Guide books. I greatly enjoy buying collections, as well as dealers’ stock, of these cool books (plus I especially like buying runs of titles of these.)

Modern Comics (later 1980s through the 2000s):

My warehouse assistants (all being in their 20s-40s in age), “hipped” me to the significance, and the values, of many of these books. Since I’ve gotten the (aforementioned) Enhanced Crew, I’ve developed a greater use, and appreciation for collections of comics from these eras. I’ve got over 700 SETS of 1980s- 2000s comics in my eBay store, as of this writing. The very competent, fast, and knowledgeable folks at my place process these books within the 4800 square ft. of space.

In general, some of the best sellers are: Amazing Spider-Man (especially the McFarlane issues, #298-328); Swamp

Saleswise, issues of The Flash from the early 1960s are moving quickly. (#123 shown)

Thing sets (esp. containing #20-50); Batman runs; Sandman #1-75 sets; Transformers #1-80; G.I. Joe #1-155; anything to do with Deadpool, Guardians Of The Galaxy, Harley Quinn, and of course The Walking Dead (We sold a CGC 9.8 of Walking Dead #1 for $1800.)

I sell most of these runs/sets for a wholesale-like price, otherwise, I might quickly run out of space! I do, however, get “enhanced value/prices” out of some comics from this era (if they are in exceptional shape), particularly some Movie tie-in comics, and some of the most popular characters.

Some of these books: Batman Adventures #12 (1st Harley Quinn - this book can sell “for hundreds” in stellar shape); also X-Factor #5, #6 (Apocalypse); New Mutants #87 (1st Deadpool); MSH Secret Wars #8 (1st black costume for Spider-Man); Wolverine ('82 mini-series) #1-4; Batman: Killing Joke; Dark Knight #1 (Miller, '86); Swamp Thing #37 (1st Hellblazer); Next Men #21 (1st Hellboy); and much more. Many of the aforementioned books, in CGC 9.6 or 9.8, get $75- $100 apiece, or more!

Soooo, I now take all of the above into account when I buy these collections (plus, a seller likes it, when they know that you're taking all of their comics into account, instead of thinking of their newer comics as “throw-ins”).

Original Art: This burgeoning market has continued to amaze with prices on some well-known (Golden Age to Silver Age) characters going for sometimes “Princely sums,” but other Art, such as Archie stories from the '70s through the '90s are still selling for cheap, despite the good work put into these pages, and the well-loved Archie (& the Gang) characters.

Last year, I managed to buy a watercolor Frazetta illo (and some “black & whites”), a Kirby FF '60s splash, an early 1940s Hogarth Tarzan page, a 1930s Mandrake Sunday and much, much more.

I hope to pay “real good money” for some collections of Original Art this coming year. I'll keep some and sell some.

In closing, I just want to give a heartfelt shout-out to Bob Overstreet and his team for being so “into it” year after year (and decade after decade.)

I like the fact that they really do “tune into” feedback on comics in Good to Fine shape (and not just the “real high-grade” oldies.)

So, I enjoy getting the PR to FN (0.5 to 6.0) comic collections, as well as the high-grade ones. I like to supply everyone - if that's not too “corny-sounding.”

And, I always say - the overall health and stability of the Comics market depends on the many thousands of “rank ‘n file” collectors who may enjoy collecting comics in “all types of grades” (depending on the buyer.)

KEN DYBER CLOUD 9 COMICS

Greetings, time for another market report already! This one is the longest report to date for me, and there are several reasons for that... mostly that I noticed quite a few changes in the market place this past year, and also I have some surprising news directly related to Cloud 9 Comics the business.

2014 saw 3 major changes for me with my business: 1. Historically, I have been selling at conventions and through my website: www.cloudninecomics.com, without a brick and mortar storefront. HOWEVER... I'm pleased to announce the grand opening the first Cloud 9 Comics store located at 2621 SE Clinton St. in Portland, OR! Please come by and say hello, and of course, spend tons of money!! 2. The website continues to evolve, and with the new storefront, it will continue to offer a great selection of Gold, Silver, Bronze & Copper Age comics, with a vast selection of key issues and certified comics. 3. Most importantly, I will no longer be a sole proprietor in Cloud 9 Comics. My friend, and longtime comic dealer Jeff Itkin (Formerly Pow Crunch Bang Comics) has joined me in the company as an owner. He has a broad spectrum knowledge base of comics, and will help in all aspects of the business. Either of us can be reached via email at: ken@cloudninecomics.com or jeff@cloudninecomics.com. With Jeff being based in Seattle, and myself in Portland, we will be in great position to better serve the entire Pacific Northwest for buying and selling of vintage comic books and original artwork (something we're slowly expanding into).

The Year Overall: 2014 could easily be considered a milestone year in comic book world. A comic book sells for over 3 million dollars, Guardians of the Galaxy is the top grossing film of the year (at the time of this writing), and there are rumors San Diego Comic-Con (COMIC-CON!) may leave San Diego. Attendance at cons across the country is exponentially increasing, as is the number of cons taking place. At no point in recent decades, and possibly ever (although many Golden Age comics were published in the millions!), has the world of comic books been so popular in society.

I really hate to say this, but THANK YOU HOLLYWOOD! For any comic book fan age 30 and older, we dreamed of the day we might see Spider-Man (easily the most popular character sales wise) on the big screen. But to think that Suicide Squad, Inhumans, and Guardians of the Galaxy would become movie franchises is rather mind blowing. Heck, I'm hearing rumors of a Metal Men movie even!? At no other point so far in comic history, have Hollywood movies, and television shows affected demand and sales of books. Personally, this only makes me really excited, as I feel it's bringing in new collectors (adult and children... often together) to our hobby/industry, as well as creates sales (sometimes rather exciting ones), on titles or books that have had little to no interest for years, if ever.

Now... for all the nay-sayers out there, yes, I fully understand, this does not always equal out bottom line. Cosplay has taken over many cons, and odd as it is, I'm seeing Comcast, T-Mobile, religious groups, dog adoption agencies, and even the U.S. Army set up in booths at cons now. What about the comic books!? To you show promoters out there... If your shows are selling out every year and you have wait lists, can you at the minimum start front loading your booth placements and/or hierarchy of the waitlist towards comic book dealers or comic book stores, or people who are at least selling/promoting things having to do with comics? Thank you very much.

Last year I mentioned the increased costs dealers like myself have for setting up at cons, and how customers would come to our booth at shows, complain about how few comic book dealers there are at the show for a half hour (While I would casually mention I flew 2500 miles to set up at their glorious con), and then proceed to not buy anything. Well, this year I've had several of you come to my booth and buy something (without the complaining), and buy something based off reading my healthy discussion in this here guide. So to those of you gentlemen, and ladies (Yes, ladies! More about that in a bit), who bought from not only our booth, but any of the comic book dealers booths at cons this past year, I thank you! Sales at cons (all cons), were up for me this year, key issue sales continued to be in demand (no surprise there), but I've seen quite a few back issue collectors buying large stacks of books to fill their runs, which is a pleasant change, as these sales had dipped significantly in the last few years, and I was starting to worry about this market disappearing, which would lead to a mass depreciation of "filler" issues. This however isn't the case, as many customers are still buying non-key back issues, and in a wide variety of grades. Not only are DC back issues moving, they were almost equal to Marvels for me this year, and at some cons outsold Marvels!

Another trend I've seen this past year more than previous years, is the amount of women and children buying comics. I sold a Walking Dead #1 CGC 9.8 to a very serious female collector, who has been a great repeat customer, and sold a raw Crime Does Not Pay #24 (1.8/GD-) for $725 to a teen-age boy with his girlfriend at San Diego. He not only knew the issue and how scarce it is, but was extremely excited to see one for sale. What was even more shocking, was how his girlfriend was like "Oh my god, that is so awesome, you have to buy that!". For anyone who knows this cover, that is one way of describing it (possibly one of the most brutal covers ever published with a man putting a woman's head into a lit burner of a gas range). The youth whipped out his card and happily paid like he was buying a $20 Spawn #1. Ironically enough, literally two minutes later, the dealer next to me at San Diego (no names... but he knows who he is!), came over with his glasses that he'd been looking for, in order to buy that comic. When I told him what had just transpired, he thought I was messing with him. Nope, true story. In summary though, more women and kids, teenagers, and even well-informed younger buyers are not only spending money, but in some instances, very serious amount of cash for books.

Lastly, two other trends I've noticed this year, are 1. DC key issues have really picked up in demand, and are starting to show some major gains. In my humble opinion, DC's 1960s Sci-Fi period is a potential gold mine of keys that are still pretty affordable. Characters like Rip Hunter, Metal Men, Legion of Super-Heroes, Brainiac, Krypto, Adam Strange, and Challengers of the Unknown are all still way undervalued.

2. In all periods, now, more than ever, key issues are going through the roof! Historically, keys issues were always desirable, however, for newer key issues that coincide with TV/Movie announcements, seeing prices 500-1000% above Guide is far less shocking then it once was. I'll discuss specific issues in the sections below, but in particular late Bronze Age to early Copper Age (late '70s to early '80s) is showing the highest % of growth. Many issues in this time period have been bought either at cover price, or a couple bucks by the owner/store/dealer, etc... only to see a key issue now selling for $25-$50 or even $200-$300 in graded 9.8. One may not get rich off sales in this range, but % wise return for your investment a 2500% return is nothing to scoff at!

Golden Age: I'd like to start off this section with my feel good story of 2014. During the year I had a few copies of Our Army At War #83 for sale on my website, and the following is an email I received from a gentleman named Dal Vandiver who not only purchased one of them, but actually purchased the exact same copy he owned as a child as he recalled to me in detail how the books defects were achieved... "Good morning Ken, yes sir, thank you for re-uniting me with the exact comic I bought in 1959, I looked at your ad for a week and finally viewed the cover at 200% and when I saw the lines on the ammo belt I could not believe it! In 1959 after collecting soda bottles and getting my nickels, I peddled down to the drugstore and bought OAAW #83 and stuffed it under my shirt and peddled back home. In 1959 when I was a kid, I put machine gun dots in the Our Army at War logo and the attacking plane's cowl. I thought that looked great. Then I drew a couple lines on the ammo belt and I knew it did not look good so I stopped. Then I dropped the comic and a corner of the comic slid under a chair leg, and when I grabbed it both corners, front and back tore off, and I thought how weird none of the pages tore off too!, I'll be 63 this year!!" Now if that's not a feel good story, I don't know what is. We've all heard of people recapturing their childhood through comics, but I've never heard/experienced a story like that, where the owner is actually reacquiring the exact same book that they marked up as a youth.

Well, that feel good story aside, Golden Age key issues are REALLY taking off! First appearances of superheroes, as well as classic covers seem to be not only a very safe place to put one's money, but often an area showing sometimes instant and/or huge returns. Captain America Comics #1 seems to be jumping large percentages in all grades with every sale, and frankly, still seems like a bargain to me. Wonder Woman #1, a CGC 5.5 was my biggest sale of the year, coming in at $24K! (that's 3.5 x Guide!). I'd say an adjustment in Guide price is needed on that book... doubling all price points might be a good place to start. All Star Comics #8 (WW's 1st appearance) is also in need of similar price adjustment, and much tougher to find in nice shape. All WW and Sensation books need huge adjustments upwards. They are very much in demand, and sell almost as fast as I get them in stock. One book that needs a huge adjustment upwards in Guide is Batman #59 (1st Deadshot), as this character has appeared on Arrow regularly, and now has Will Smith cast to play him in the Suicide Squad movie. This book needs its own line listing, and to double in GD-FN grades and triple in VF to NM- ranges.

Archies are very much in demand and need major upward adjustments (25-50%) in many cases in all grades, especially earlier issues of Pep and Archie Comics. Smaller publishers such as Chesler and Centaur sell almost as fast as I get them in, in any grade.

As for scarce key issues that just simply aren't on the market in any grade... the one I keep looking for, as I'd like a copy, and have multiple customers asking for a copy, is More Fun Comics #73 (1st Green Arrow and Aquaman). The Arrow TV show is very popular, the character is complex and dynamic, and Aquaman has a solo movie in the works. This is a book that could really blow up in value, and continue to have legs to grow after that. An upward adjustment in Guide is needed now, and after a few more sales happen, this one could make a major move upwards on the Golden Age Top 100 list. Currently it's ranked #61 at $35K for a NM-/9.2 copy! Come on, this is absurd, if the lone 9.4 copy came to market, I'd be surprised if it didn't sell for not only over $100K, but I'm thinking a $1/4 million isn't out of the question (if not now, in the near future... also, side note, I'm not a Golden Age expert, but the 9.4 could very well be the Mile High copy, and if so, I think adds even more validity to these potential sales figures). This book is more scarce, and more important historically than Marvel Mystery #9, which is currently ranked in a tie at #25 on the Top 100 Golden Age list. This book personifies a large problem of pricing currently in the Price Guide in regards to major key Golden Age books. Books like this, Pep #22, All Star #8, Cap #1, etc... these books need to move WAY up in Guide in estimated value. The A-list superhero characters need a major price increase (no disrespect to The Spectre or Dr. Fate et al., but the vast majority of society is much more familiar with characters like Green Arrow and Aquaman, than they are of many of the Golden Age characters that have a limited history in the last 30/40 years).

The same point as above can easily be said for classic covers. Books like Crime Suspensstories #22, Fight Against Crime #20, Crime Does Not Pay #24, Brenda Starr #14, Phantom Lady #17, Archie Comics #50, Captain America Comics #46, Weird Tales of the Future #2 and Pep Comics #31 are only a few examples of books that sell well above Guide regularly. There are many others of course, but I think Overstreet really needs to take a much closer look at the A-list covers, and consider substantial price increases across the board. Obviously some of these books are more established in Guide (Phantom Lady #17 as an example... but #23 of this series sells for almost the same figures (maybe 10/20% less), but is also more scarce). This is not new information, as many advisors other than myself, have been saying similar things for the last few years ("key issues and classic covers are very in demand"), so let's have our Guide reflect these claims, as there is now quite a bit of sales data to back this up.

Silver Age: OK... record prices haven't been seen for blue-chip Marvel/DCs in ultra high grade for a little while, as this market flattened or saw a downward trend for the last few years, as maybe the wealthy got what they needed here, and stopped shopping in this segment, or, nothing they were interested in came to market. In any case, in January 2014, a Journey Into Mystery #83 in CGC 9.4 sold on ComicLink for $275K!!! The last time this particular copy sold via GPA was for $43K in 2005. That means that this book doubled from its $43K purchase price almost 6x in 9 years! I'm sorry, I'm a bit speechless... talk about return on investment! Also consider, GPA is NOT getting sales reports from ComicLink, as well as many other dealers and private sales, so start to consider how many sales are occurring of high grade books most of us are unaware of. A 9.4 copy had sold in Sept. 2013 only 5 months before for $185K, so that's $90K more in 5 months. AND... this isn't even the highest graded copy of this book. As with this large sale, there will always be records set for books of this nature.

Another was the $320K sale of an Incredible Hulk #1 (in June, with another sale of $326K in August), which dropped many jaws. The few months that followed, saw some CRAZY prices paid for low grade copies, but resistance to mid-grade copies. I also saw a flurry of copies become available on the market this fall after a couple of these record prices, which in turn has cooled the book off considerably for the time being as it was starting to outsell Amazing Fantasy #15s, which is ridiculous as Spidey owns 20% of the Silver Age market share compared with the Hulk's 1-2% share of slabbed sales. This key issue is still scarcer than the other Marvels from this period, but maybe not quite as scarce as we thought.

In general though, many A-list keys from Marvel in this period have been flat or down for a couple years, or just showing modest inflationary gains (5-10%). Amazing Spider-Man #1, X-Men #1, Fantastic Four #1, etc... have been in demand, but not showing major growth as of late. DC Silver Age, though, is really starting to pick up, as it's gotten to the point where some of these books just flat out seem dirt cheap compared to the Marvels. Adventure #247 I think is a steal at present... CGC 7.0 copies can be had for $5-6K at present (with options of page quality even), these should be $10K+ copies in my opinion, and could get there in a hurry I think.

Now... a few Marvel titles/characters that were once B-list or C-list have all of a sudden become A-list due to movie announcements. Black Panther and the Inhumans have exploded possibly even more so than the Guardians of the Galaxy characters. Both, already fairly established, they have each really increased in demand and value. Fantastic Four #52 (1st Black Panther) and #45 (1st Inhumans) are both selling for around $4000 in NM-/9.2 (multiples of Guide!). Issues #53 & #46 are also seeing great demand and strong sales. Now is a great time to look for cross-over appearances and origin issues of these characters that maybe are a bit under the radar. Thor #146-149 has backing stories of the Inhumans' origins for example, and NM-/9.2 copies can still be had for around $150 (for now). Also Thor #165 (1st full appearance of Warlock/Him) is selling for around $1000 for NM-/9.2 and probably has quite a bit of room to grow. This is a classic Kirby cover and very sought after in all grades, especially VF and higher.

DC keys are hot and many still should have a decent amount of room to grow. Showcase #22 is coming back and Brave and the Bold #28 is very much in demand. Aquaman #1, #29 (1st Ocean Master), #33 (1st Aqua Girl) & #35 (1st Black Manta) have all been very much in demand, and showing some pretty large gains, especially #35. Showcase #37 the first Metal Men has been heating up with movie rumors lurking, although I'm unsure why these rumors still persist, as DC has already announced their next 10 years of movies, and speculating on a book with a "possible" movie in 2028 seems... ah, a bit odd to me. Showcase #6 is now starting to pick up (1st Challengers... and may I add... FINALLY!). Showcase #4 has become scarce all of a sudden, other than low grade copies or the highest graded (available for only around a cool million on ComicLink). Showcase #17 (1st Adam Strange) is starting to take off with #20 (1st Rip Hunter) & #15 (1st Space Ranger) getting some more interest. Also Action Comics #210 (1st Krypto), #242 & #252 are all very much in demand. Be great to see DC take a more Sci-Fi approach with their universe, as they were doing this quite a bit more than Marvel in the '60s. Brave and the Bold #54 (1st Teen Titans) has also started to show some nice gains, and is particularly hard to find in 9.0 or better.

Brave and the Bold #25, the 1st appearance of the Suicide Squad, has been going through the roof in price/demand due to the 2016 movie announcement. Was a tough book to begin with, but now just finding copies has become quite hard and when you do, they have seemed to have jumped about 300-500% in all grades from last year. Few sales of CGC books include: 8.0 $2390 (probably way outdated already!), 5.0 $1951 & 4.0 $1000. This seems like it could be DC's Guardians of the Galaxy, as they've cast Will Smith to play Deadshot, and have director David Ayer of Fury onboard to direct it. Hmmm... a team that no one cared about for years with little demand or value, all of a sudden is setting record prices with each sale. Seems I have a good case for this comparison.

In summary on the key issues... my advice is to look at the 2nd tier characters right now, as putting your money into X-Men #1 or Tales of Suspense #39 at this point in time will be safe, but show a small return. You can find some rather large returns on your investments in a short period of time on some of these forgotten characters/teams, or ones that haven't been in demand for years (Aquaman), but now are. Now is the time to really be looking closely at DC as they've been about 8-10 years behind Marvel in "figuring it out" with their feature films, but I think we could be entering a very strong period for them in Hollywood, similar to when Marvel was releasing Iron Man, Captain America, etc... Think back... it wasn't THAT long ago when VG copies of JIM #83 were selling for $800 (2005), or, 10 years ago. Now they're selling for around $3500, which would be a 4.5x return on your investment for a low grade copy, or doubling your initial investment on average around every two years! Adventure #247 copies are going for around $1200 at present.... Hmmm...?? Think $5000 in 2025 is unreasonable... I don't.

Bronze Age: Wow, talk about a period heating up (later Bronze Age in particular). Major price adjustments need to happen here possibly more than any other time period, with key issues needing almost across the board 100-500% increases in low and high grade with 50-200% increases in mid-grade. Hero For Hire #1 CGC 9.8 selling for $7250! Marvel Super-Heroes #18 (1st Guardians of the Galaxy) CGC 9.8 selling for $19,000! Yeah, that's three zeroes there. To list all the books here that are hot would take me a week to rack my brain... here's a few I can recall: Ms. Marvel #1, Marvel Super-Heroes #12 & #13 (1st Captain Marvel & 1st Carol Danvers (Ms. Marvel)), Werewolf By Night #32 (1st Moon Knight), Amazing Spider-Man #121 & #194, Batman #232, Avengers #181 & #196 (I'm saying it here & now, so I can claim to be the first when I'm old and gray... Avengers #196 (1st Taskmaster is the next New Mutants #98! This character has a huge upside, and finding high grade copies with perfect spine registry is quite difficult), Detective Comics #474 (1st new Deadshot), Iron Man #128, Incredible Hulk #180 & #181, Savage She-Hulk #1 (1st appearance of She-Hulk), Strange Tales #169 (1st Brother Voodoo), Thor #225 (1st Firelord), etc...

Marvel Super-Heroes #13 in particular needs a huge jump in value with Ms. Marvel being Marvel's first solo female super hero movie. I suggest $1200 for NM-/9.2 copies, although I'm sure this will need further adjustment either when this book is for sale, or shortly thereafter. An interesting one to keep your eye on is Uncanny X-Men #164, which is the 1st appearance of Carol Danvers as Binary. Presently, this is a relatively cheap book, but depending on how movie/TV things shape out, this is a book that could see huge jump in value/demand. And, speaking of TV shows, Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. seems to be doing well. The female character Skye has turned out to be Daisy Johnson (otherwise known as Quake). Her 1st appearance in comics is Secret War #2 (2004). Raw copies are selling around $15/$20 with CGC 9.8's going for over $100. This book needs its own line listing with a suggested NM-/9.2 price of $20 for now.

Star Wars original series from 1977 is hot again. The regular first issue needs a modest gain in Guide and the 35¢ variant needs to double in lower grades and increase by around 50% in higher grades to even be close to market. The entire rest of the series needs a gain in all grades with most NM- prices being particularly low (most are currently $12 - $20). Considering that this is one of the most successful franchises in history, and that these comics actually do sell well, these prices seem pretty low. #42 is the 1st Boba Fett, and needs its own line listing. I suggest $75 for NM-/9.2, with CGC 9.8s going for around $300 at present. Also, issue

#68 which re-introduces Boba Fett with a great yellow cover is also selling very well, and also needs its own line listing. I suggest $60 for NM-/9.2. I'm not a Star Wars expert, so I'm guessing there are other key issues in this run that also need line listings with price bumps.

Detective Comics #474 (1st appearance new Deadshot) is just starting to take off at the time of this writing, but with the Suicide Squad movie announced, and his reoccurring appearances in the Arrow TV show, this book still has a VERY high ceiling. Guide should double on this book with NM-/9.2 price being $125. This book could possibly surpass New Teen Titans #2 in value as it may be a lot more difficult to find in high grade given how it's older. Only time will tell with census numbers. Also in this newly emerging Suicide Squad family tree is Action Comics #521 the 1st appearance of Vixen. I suggest NM- line listing of $35. For Marvel Team-Up #95, the 1st appearance of Mockingbird, I suggest NM- line listing of $40. I'm sure these prices will need adjusting in future guides, but this will get us on the right track.

One key issue that can still be bought for a few bucks is Fantastic Four #211 (1st Terrax who is Galactus's 4th herald). CGC 9.8s are going for around $150 at present, but with Marvel moving more into the cosmos, this character could very easily appear in a movie soon. I suggest a modest increase in its line listing with NM-/9.2 pricing at $18, but this is one that could jump to $50 or $100 very quickly. Get this one now! Speaking of Galactus and Marvel's cosmic doings, Thor #225 (1st Firelord) has started to heat up for similar reasons. CGC 9.8s are going for around $400. I suggest a modest price increase in Guide to $90 for NM-/9.2s, but this one could also jump dramatically in the next year or two depending on an appearance.

Incredible Hulk #197 is a Wrightson cover and should be noted in the Guide with a separate line listing slightly above the surrounding issues. Also Incredible Hulk comics from #201-249 should all move up in Guide as these are 25¢-40¢ covers and NM- prices of $7 and $9 seem way too low compared with other Marvel/DC books from that time period. These seem more like $12 and $15 copies in high grade. Same is true for Fantastic Four issues from #201-249, these all warrant line listings due to their age, and comparative pricing of other Marvels from this period. Oh ya, and speaking of Incredible Hulk, many of us think of Wolverine's appearances in #180-182, all of which need to go up in guide, especially 180 & 181.

"Holy Moley!" DC's Shazam! title is hot from the '70s. #1 & #28 (1st Black Adam since the Marvel Family #1 – which is also smoking hot... good luck finding one though!). DC, like Marvel has announced the next 10 years of movies, and Shazam! is scheduled for 2019. So far I'm seeing brisk sales on all the '70s issues, but haven't seen a huge jump in sales for the Golden Age books, which strikes me as odd, but also makes sense as well. To me it's odd, as that a majority of these books are still VERY affordable (even in high grade) compared with Marvel/DC/Nedor/Centaur & other publishers of the 1940s. Slabbed 9.2s of Captain Marvels can still be had for $250-$500 in many cases. It's also odd, given from the research I've been able to gather, that Captain Marvel outsold Superman, Batman, and all other characters of the 1940s, as the most popular superhero character of that decade. Now... all this doesn't strike me as odd, as that this character has had very limited exposure to audiences of the last 30+ years in print, TV, radio & film. Additionally, all of the TV/Movie speculators on key issues, tend to be a younger buying segment of the market (age 40 and below), so many of these new generation of buyers who are flipping keys that coincide with these announcements, are less familiar with the Golden Age characters, thus, those characters and books have been appreciating slower in the market compared with Silver/Bronze characters (ie: Inhumans, Black Panther, Ms. Marvel, etc...).

Guardians of the Galaxy books continue to do well. Strange Tales #180 (1st Gamora) needs to be doubled in Guide to catch up. One to keep your eye on that could potentially explode in value is Marvel Two-In-One #61 the 1st appearance of Her (Him's counterpart), which is the first of a 3-issue story arc ending in issue #63 where she tries to raise Adam Warlock (Him) from the dead, but fails as he is without his gemstone.

Captain America #117 (1st Falcon) needs 100% increase in Guide in low to mid grades and a 50% increase in high grade. Also #180 (1st Nomad) is very much in demand and should double in price in all grades as should #290 (1st Mother Superior). Also in the Avengers #144 (1st Hellcat who is Patsy Walker... yes, that same teen character from the Timely/Atlas days) should double in Guide. I know this isn't the Golden Age section of my market report, but try finding (forget in grade) a copy of Miss America Magazine #2 (Patsy Walker's 1st appearance)! That is certainly one to keep an eye on... and on a side shameless promoting side... if you have a copy of her 1st appearance and want to sell it let me know!

Copper/Modern Age: As I stated in last year's market report, books from this time period have been showing remarkable gains in a very short amount of time (ie: going from the $1 box, to $25-$50 in a matter of days sometimes). To reinforce this point, and really, I can't believe I'm saying this... Booster Gold is hot! Oh boy, I can just see the chat boards lighting up. I recently bought a collection that had a Booster Gold #1 in it, so I checked eBay to see what they were going for (if anything), and was shocked to see them regularly selling for $30 in NM- with CGC 9.8s going for over $200 or more. Now, at the time of this writing, the series doesn't seem hot, but #1 is his first appearance (Overstreet needs to add this information to the #1 line listing, as well as put a line listing of $30 for NM-), people might be movie speculating, and, well, this book is almost 30 years old now.

Other books that are really taking off include: Micronauts #8 (1st Mr. Universe), X-Force #2 (2nd Deadpool), New Teen Titans #2 (1st Deathstroke – was hot, cooled off, and now Very hot again), Spider-Woman #37 (1st Siryn of X-Force), Omega Men #3 (1st Lobo), Nightwing #1, X-Men #221 (1st Mr. Sinister)... etc.

Thor #337 needs to at least double in Guide with NM-/9.2 copies selling for around $50-$60. This issue is the 1st appearance of Lorelei who is the Enchantress' younger sister and has appeared on Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. The Guide needs to make a notation about this being her 1st appearance as presently it only mentions this as when Beta Ray Bill becomes the new Thor. Also the Guide needs to change the listing for Beta Ray Bill, as this is also his 1st appearance and should state as much. This is one to definitely keep your eyes on, as it was already a hot book, but now is important for three different reasons.

Amazing Spider-Man #361 (1st Carnage) is one of my best selling comics from any time period. This needs to move up in Guide to around $50 for NM-. Gobbledygook #1 & #2 both need to increase in Guide, as does TMNT #1. All have been hot with Gobbledygook #1 selling for $6500 on Feb. 12th, 2014 on eBay, and a set selling on Feb. 15th on eBay for $11,000. This set by the way was graded by the owner at an 8.5 & 9.0 respectively, but from looking at the photos, they each appear to be much lower grades, maybe 6.0 & 7.0 copies in my opinion, as #1 has 14 stress lines and #2 has 7. These two books, along with the TMNT #1 seem to sell quite high even in low or mid-grade, making them almost unaffordable to an average collector who is now priced out of these lower grades. As the people who were brought up in this time period achieve more wealth/spending power, I can see these books really taking off over the next decade with some jaw dropping sales.

Invincible is a consistent seller for all early issues. #1 needs a price increase to $150. #5 is the 1st appearance of Allen the Alien, and #7 is the 1st Guardians of the Globe, both need separate line listings. I recommend $25 for #5 and $30 for #7. Issues #2-10 all should move upwards in guide with complete runs of the series now selling close to $1000!

Deadpool is hot again with the movie confirmed for 2016. X-Force #2 (2nd appearance) needs a NM-/9.2 line listing of $25, #11 (1st Domino) needs a line listing around $15, and #15 (3rd Deadpool cover, and possibly 3rd appearance... I'm honestly not sure if he appears in issues 12-14?) could use one at $12. At this point, these seem to be the clearly defined key issues from this series, but I'm sure more will surface in years to come as the X-universe continues to evolve in print and through film/television (Imagine an X-Men TV show!).

As I mentioned in the Golden Age portion, the 1st appearance of the Suicide Squad has become very hot. Additionally, Legends #3 their 1st Modern Age appearance has jumped dramatically with CGC 9.8s going for $300-$400, Suicide Squad #1 from 1987 has also jumped to a $40/$50 book in NM-/9.2, and many copies of the most recent series all selling quite well. I would expect large gains to occur here for the next year leading up to the movie, as the base prices for these were so low (think Guardians of the Galaxy), that the ceiling could be quite high.

Speaking of DC piecing their universe together. Deathstroke's 1st appearance in New Teen Titans (as appearing fairly regularly on the Arrow TV show) has been in high demand and selling well in all grades. This book needs another upward adjustment in Guide. One that is fairly under the radar, and has an awesome cover, is his 2nd appearance, which is New Teen Titans #10. You can pick these up still fairly cheap from people who are not in the know, but good luck trying to find raw copies in 9.6/9.8... might be tough. The New Teen Titans in general is a series with quite a few key issues that is 30 – 35 years old! In addition to #2, #44 (1st Nightwing) is selling very well, and needs to move upwards in Guide, with other key issues to keep your eyes on: #16 (1st Captain Carrot), #21 (intro Night Force & Brother Blood), #23 (1st Vigilante & Blackfire), #25 (Masters of the Universe preview), #26 (1st Terra), #27 (Atari Force preview) & Annual #2 (1st Vigilante in costume & 1st Lyla).

Another group of characters to keep your eye on is the Outsiders. Their 1st appearance in Brave and the Bold #200, and 2nd appearance in Batman and the Outsiders #1 have both been picking up with 9.8 sales around $200 and $150 respectively.

Last year I suggested a new Copper/Modern Age Top 25 section in the front of the Guide, as this is our most traded section of the market. I have a few changes as I would imagine, and most likely this list will change substantially over the next few years as I learn more about variants and error printings, as I elected to leave almost all of these out due to their unproven history over the long term. One such book that seems to be a proven mainstay as far as value and demand is Venom Lethal Protector #1 Black Cover Printing Error. A CGC 10 copy sold for $3585 in 2010 with 9.8s consistently selling over $1K now. CGC 9.2s have averaged around $400 for a decade now, so I think this is long enough of a proven history for inclusion in this listing. Current Guide is $250 for this book in NM-/9.2, and should move up to $400, thus placing it at #10 on the list. This is the 1st Venom series (6 issues) and could possibly come to be as collected as the Wolverine and Punisher miniseries, as Venom continues to be a very popular and collected character.

Another such variant that has enough proven sales history to be added to this list is Spawn #1 Black and White Edition. CGC 9.8s average around $550, with CGC 9.2s now selling around $200 on average. Current Guide value for NM-/9.2 is $130, and should move up to $200.

Here are my suggestions for the spreads (updated from last year although not published in the guide last year). These prices are based off raw and slabbed sales throughout the past several years of online & convention sales (I'm sure I forgot some, but this is a great starting point):

Deathstroke's appearances on Arrow have put his New Teen Titans #2 debut in demand.

Magazines: As the trend continues with various magazine titles being graded and slabbed by CGC (Playboy and Sports Illustrated for example), I do think this guide needs to include more magazines that have been associated with the comic book scene. Famous Monsters of Filmland is an obvious example that should be included in this guide. If Eerie, Creepy and Vampirella are in this guide (all Warren Magazine publications), then why isn't Famous Monsters (also Warren Magazine)? I know this guide has been focused on U.S. comics, but I think a very strong case can be made for including Warrior Magazine (UK), as the first appearances of V For Vendetta & Miracleman (Marvel Man) can be found here, among others. I've found most of these magazines are in demand, but not for terribly high prices (almost comparable to Archies in this regard from the same time period). Depending on grade, time period, $3, $5 & $10 for lower grade copies tends to get them moving quickly, with $20-$25 for higher grade. High grade (NM-/9.2) copies seem very low in Guide due to how scarce they are, however I honestly am not sure if the demand is currently there.

Since a majority of these magazines are horror related, one would think due to the popularity of the Walking Dead, that horror fans would start going back and seeking out these great magazines from 4 to 5 decades earlier. Heck, if someone is willing to pay $50 for a CGC 9.8 of some random newer issue of Walking Dead (say issue 82), which they can't even read, then one could buy 2 or 3 high grade copies from one of these horror magazines from 30-40 years ago for the same price and be able to read them. Humans sure do love reading about and watching monsters on TV/Film, so this is a market segment to really start looking at more closely.

Thanks to everyone that's read my market report, visited the website, and said hello at one of the cons. I look forward to meeting more of you, and another year in the hobby!

TOMAS ERB COLLECTOR

I was thinking about what I'd like to have seen as a collector in Overstreet way back when I bought my first Guide; how collectors made money when selling their comics would have been near the top of the list. For those of you who don't know I've worked in a comic store, as a show dealer, auction house employee, Comics Verification Authority owner and independent dealer. So here are a few of the types excluding information providers (Overstreet) and employees from grading companies etc.

The 'Key buyer' is a collector who typically isn't interested in anything that is not a Key. Collects major Keys in difficult grade ranges for the book and holds them for years: Often less than ten total books and as few as one 'Grail' book. Success depends on selection and luck but using population data and popularity as a guide helps immensely here. Often these collectors have liquidated their collections to focus on adding just these key books. The rule of thumb here is if it's pretty much always been a key and still is, it's likely to stay that way.

The 'Completest' is one who has bought one of everything for years. The completist with pristine collections seem to have typically started in 1964 give or take for the 7 digit collections and 1968 or so for the 6 figured ones. Start chopping zeros off for well read, more modern and poorly stored collections.

The 'Inheritor', this person or family gains a collection after a long term completist or advanced collector passes away. Benefit is maximized if the collector has informed the beneficiary of how to profitably dispose of the collection and leaves necessary details for them to contact trusted industry contacts. Sometimes these turn out to be the Pedigree collections due to their extended time in storage (A lifetime) and extensive size (nothing has ever been sold), think Twin Cities and D' Collection.

The 'Bargain Hunter' who typically finds books at auctions, shows and sometimes shops. This collector makes money with the purchase by selectively choosing: popular, difficult, hot and visually appealing books where the price and condition can lock in a profit for a patient seller. Often the collector has a feel for where the books are going in price and where it should be relative to other books on the market and they are exploiting this gap, often relying heavily on Overstreet. Capital may be tied up an extended period but this cherry picking approach may increase odds of a superior return.

The 'Auction House' makes money buying and selling for its own account and helping collectors move their books for a commission or outright purchase. These are obviously professionally run business with meaningful outlays of capital and multiple employees with extensive industry experience. Given that the barriers to entry are fairly high you are not likely to start one as your method of selling your collection. What collectors do is use the Auction House as a resource. When you find someone within the organization that you can trust they can provide advice, helping you to move the books you want to sell and they are a key source of books that you wish to acquire when optimizing your collection.

The 'Show Dealer' has a broad selection of back issues that typically is superior to any local shop. The money here is from buying new collections and select stock while retailing the books over time to buyers. While the barriers to entry are not as large as an auction house there does not seem to be a lot of change in the makeup of these dealers. They've typically stood the test of time and have large customer bases and deep experience buying and selling books. You will most likely make money here dealing with them rather than becoming one of them. They often do some of the same things for you as an Auction House. I see collectors typically try to sell or trade with them and because they maintain larger stocks for raw books they often are interested in buying your complete collection (particularly valuable if you have a lot of books that don't reach a valuation level that justifies the cost of third party grading).

The 'eBay Seller' is often everybody at some point in time. Better prices tend to be realized by sellers who have built a following and have sold on eBay for a while and regularly. This is labor intensive and you won't typically realize the prices that the top sellers get for a while if ever. Shorten the learning curve by finding long standing sellers with similar material as you, and emulate them.

The 'Upgrader Collector/dealer' makes money through knowledge of the market, grading skills and then processing the book; there's a steep learning curve here but anyone can try. They have a good idea what books can be upgraded and if it would be profitable to do so. They buy from anyone and often pay record prices for books (This is where mistakes can kill you). Intensely competitive and margins can be thin after all costs included but the top players can do well. If you haven't looked at thousands of certified books in detail this likely will not work for you.

Finally, what do I collect? I collect Golden Age books with an emphasis on Batman (Villain covers), WWII books (often Schomburg art) and any Golden Age book with a compelling cover and solid visual appeal for the grade. Outside of Golden Age, I collect DC Whitman Variants (I like Bronze Age DC but don't want to collect everything and these are a challenge to find in high grade). I also buy books for resale that generally don't fit into my collection. Bonne chance!

D'ARCY FARRELL

PENDRAGON COMICS

The year 2014 had many great moves in the marketplace. Movies, TV, conventions are all buzzing about our industry. We at Pendragon Comics still see new customers on a regular basis all wanting to invest in an old favorite title from long ago, or just a new collector buying for the first time. It's an exciting era we live in for our industry that can only compare to the 1980s Batmania in recent history. Now on to the review!

New Comic Sales 2014: The DC New 52 maintained its leadership in writing and quality overall. Futures End must be the story of the year in surprise sales! DC has a plan I believe tying the pre-New 52 (Flashpoint, a future alternate universe, coming out just after Brightest Day) through to the new DC New 52 reboot, to the current Futures End storyline. Do not be surprised that it all ties together somehow in summer of 2015 or 2016, and then reverts to the original universe.

Marvel has been better this year. Compared to the bad 2013 year with the NOW relaunch, it's a huge difference. The movie Guardians of the Galaxy definitely played a role. Many titles are still reeling from the reboot of 2013 like X-Force, X-Factor, Iron Man as examples and are much lower in sales. It's the upcoming Marvel Secret Wars and current AXIS storyline that is getting attention.

For independents, Image still leads the way, but Avatar, Boom and IDW are not far behind. Image has its new titles that many clamour for, but only a few are genuine decent titles that can maintain sales past #1. Titles like Saga, Low, and The Walking Dead are such examples. Jupiter's Legacy is great but does not come out monthly and will eventually just fade away.

Avatar has the greatest writer of the modern era in their corner, Alan Moore, and it should be a boon to readers. Avatar brings a different and needed style of stories and art to the industry, and it keeps it fresh.

BOOM's best is in fact the kids' books like My Little Pony, Adventure Time and more. This is great that a publisher can meet the needs and interests of the younger collectors.

IDW still puts out the great Horror and weird smart storylines as usual. It unfortunately doesn't have the huge single title seller like Image has, but it still puts out quality work regularly.

Best sales by title would be: Saga, Batman, Detective, Walking Dead, God is Dead, Uber, Futures End, Amazing Spider-Man, anything Spider-verse (Marvel crossover), new Thor.

Best sales for trades, OGNs, hardcovers are as usual anything DC, especially Vertigo! Marvel has near zero sales in comparison to DC. Why? Simply put, for 30 years, DC beats Marvel hands down in well written stories! You can't beat Swamp Thing, Sandman, Y: The Last Man, Preacher, anything Batman like Killing Joke, Hush and so much more!! Marvel has well-known heroes, but it's hard to find a well written trade with 5-10 issues in sequence that is a good story. Old Man Logan was an exception. Whereas Marvel Super-Hero Secret Wars of the 1980s, though a fan fave for its intro to the symbiote and its importance, is hardly a decent story.

Vintage Sales Report

Golden Age: Timely, DC and Archie lead the way! Yes Archie! It is in the limelight again and most likely will stay a long time. Early issues like Timelys are near impossible in even average shape. I sold my usual bit, but nothing excessive or surprising to mention. Schomburg covers lead the way for most desired issues.

Atomic Age: Anything Horror or scarce DC sell like hot-cakes! There just is not enough to go around. Try to find The Spectre in the 1950s or a run of Eerie. You just can't. Most decent Horrors of this time go well over Guide, and especially keys in any shape.

What I'd Collect: Classic Horror covers and any early issues 1952/53. And anything by Ditko!

Silver Age: As usual, the most wanted period for collectors. Marvels sell as usual, but now...many are noticing the DC minor title keys like Aquaman #1 and many first appearances in Showcase. The room for investment in these DCs is greater than the well known Marvels.

What I'd Collect: All JLA run (this title is far superior to Avengers, have more keys in the whole title, and the leadup movie lineup will explode the run), anything Batman and Neal Adams, any Warren horror mag, Brave and the Bold (especially #54), Showcase, any girl keys in DC like Talia, Batgirl, Supergirl, and Mera. Marvel is too expensive but Fantastic Four #25 a smart buy and any Fantastic Four associated with Frightful Four Medusa and so on (pre-Inhumans Fantastic Four #45,46).

Bronze Age: Still very affordable. The big keys like Hero for Hire #1, Ms. Marvel #18, anything Batman and Neal Adams, any early girl hero or villain key especially in DC and Marvel, are in such demand we cannot keep up. Many of these keys are getting very expensive, and some collectors have moved onto the more affordable Copper and Modern Ages to invest.

What I'd Collect: Still all JLA, Batman and Neal Adams, but I would add Marvel keys like Hero for Hire #1, any Tomb of Dracula, Frankenstein, and Werewolf runs. And watch out for those great Marvel Westerns like Kid Colt....great art and stories, only takes a movie or TV deal and all those Marvel Westerns are awesome! DC War and Horror are fantastic at this time as well, like Jonah Hex in All-Star Western, Star Spangled War, Our Army, and G.I. Combat.

Copper Age: Without a doubt, DC Comics Presents #26 and #1, New Teen Titans #1 and #2, and any early TMNT first prints top the most in demand list. This is the age where DC print runs nearly flatlined, with the New Teen Titans as an exception. I mentioned many Overstreets ago to start collecting these DC keys and it's starting to pay off now!!

What I'd Collect: TMNT, DC Comics Presents, anything by George Pérez, always Batman and Detective, Amazing Spider-Man, all JLA even volume 2, early 1980s DC titles with ending runs like World's Finest, Flash, Wonder Woman, and Green Lantern, plus G.I. Joe, Transformers and all Star Wars, even Droids runs.

Modern Age: Many movies and TV series are making this period very high demand! Constantine appearing in Swamp Thing #37-40 is a perfect example, or Incredible Hulk #271 (first comic app. of Rocket Raccoon). From 1985-1995 the industry had many first appearances and important stories that have gone unnoticed into the 21st century. Now, with reviving old stories like Secret Wars, Infinites, Crisis on Infinite Earths, the demand for these issues is becoming crazy! Legends #3 with Suicide Squad, Silver Surfer #34-50 with Thanos, Carnage in ASM #344,345,361-363 are more examples!

What I'd Collect: Any original long runs of Vertigo like Swamp Thing, Y, Hellblazer, Preacher, Sandman, any Key that you can remember of DC or Marvel that was pivotal or a great story from the 1990s. Issues like Thanos Quest #1 & #2, Hulk: The End, Silver Surfer #34 & #35, Legends #3, Killing Joke, Batman: Dark Knight Returns, Hush storyline in Batman, and any early Doomsday appearances.

There are many many important issues from the 1990s that happened after 1993 when comics died in print runs, so find those keys and it will pay off in 2-10 years I am sure!

Conclusion: Going after key books to invest is fine. Going after full runs of titles you also enjoy is smart! For example, you like Ms. Marvel but you only collect #1s? Well you would have missed #16-18. Same thing with Hulk. Perhaps you collected only early issues and stopped at #200. You would have missed #271. Many keys will be bought and sold over the next few years that before had no interest (or very little). Partially due to movies but also because Marvel and DC are placing these characters in new storylines.

Next is a short list of highly sought items of recent note: Micronauts #8, Legends #3, Marvel Spotlight #32, Ms. Marvel #1,16-18, Captain Britain UK #1 & #8, Marvel Premiere #47 & #51, Avengers #196, X-Factor #5 & #6, Daredevil #254, G.I. Joe #1, Star Wars #1-107 and Droids, Invaders #1, all JLA vol. 1 and vol. 2, DC Comics Presents #1, #26 & #47, many Showcase (#25) and Brave and the Bold (#54) keys, Marvel Super-Heroes #12 & #13, New Mutants #98, X-Force #2 & #1 (with Deadpool card), Swamp Thing vol. 1 (Wrightson classic) and all vol. 2 (Moore, Constantine), Superman #233, Batman #251, and so much more! Keep hunting and remember secret gems of tomorrow are hiding in cheap runs today!

And finally a note on foreign reprints and not reprints! Now we know of the Canadian variants of Gold Key, and the Canadian Black and Whites of the 1940s-1950s (very hot, especially if original).... but do you realize that the UK variants of Marvel of the 1960s are not reprints and have much lower print runs? Did you know of Les Heritages, the company out of Quebec, Canada for a long time has been doing reprints of key titles and issues from 20-40 years ago? Some in English, though most in French?

Even now many Spanish Mexican reprints are getting in high demand. And there is much more. I wouldn't ignore them.

BILL FIDYK COLLECTOR

2014 was a great year for the back issue market for comic magazines. The Marvel movie speculation has changed this segment of the comic back issue market and more collectors who once overlooked magazines are now seeking them out and true “key” books are starting to emerge due to high demand.

Marvel/Curtis: Leads the charge when it comes to the magazine back issue market. Both Marvel Preview #4 and 7 are now key books to own and continue to be the most requested magazines from buyers. Every convention I go to both of these issues in all grades are now solid wall books. I predict that prices for both of these magazines will continue to steadily climb; I say steadily because I think the meteoric rise is done, but it makes sense that kids who are currently discovering these characters for the first time and growing up with these Marvel movies may be hunting these first appearances years from now—and paying good money to obtain them. High interest in young fans now will create nostalgia later.

In addition to these two magazines, the earlier appearances of Star-Lord are also garnering attention and interest from fans. Marvel Preview #11, 14, 15, 18 as well as Marvel Super Special #10 – once sleepers – are now waking up and are starting to get more pricey. The movie speculation has also crossed over to Marvel’s Epic Illustrated and issue three (the first appearance of Dreadstar) is sought after as well due to a rumored movie. Near Mint examples are going for roughly $125. It’s amazing that all of these issues were in dollar bins just a few years ago.

Warren: The big three are still in demand – Creepy, Eerie, and Vampirella. Most Warren collectors that I know (as well as magazine collectors in general) are “run collectors” – people that seek out the entire run as opposed to “key issues” so it is tough to designate a list of Warren key books. With that said, it seems that the following issues are always sought out either for significance or scarcity:

As far as scarcity goes--the hardcover Vampirella special is by far the hardest Warren book to get. Roughly 700 copies were produced and, due to spine splits that occurred during production, many of these copies didn’t see the light of day which is why very few hit the back issue market.

Eerie #1. Again – just a scarce book due to the fact that Jim Warren created it to obtain the copyright to the title. It was produced in roughly a day or so and then sent to the printer and then distributed. What is tough about this book is that it is difficult to track sales. CGC won’t slab them due to the difficulty it takes to authenticate them.

Vampirella #1: Not a scarce book – even in high grade. However, interest is always high in mid to high grade copies of this magazine due to the fact that this is the character’s first appearance. The beautiful cover by Frank Frazetta doesn’t hurt popularity either.

Vampirella #113: Again – popularity is due to scarcity. The low print run of this magazine by Harris is what makes it elusive in high grade. I have seen more and more mid grade copies of this book at shows—but high grade examples (9.0-up) are tough to come by.

Famous Monsters #1 and 2: Both command big prices in 7.0 and up. This is an iconic run but what is interesting to note is that collectors go for the very early issues and then, after roughly issue #15 or so, interest wanes and value drops. I see many high grade later issues of Famous Monsters in half price sections at conventions.

Skywald/Eerie Publishing: Both of these companies had a short lifespan and a small output of magazines (unlike Warren) and are in very high demand from collectors. The runs of all titles in all grades are sought after and it is difficult to say which issues are truly keys. It is obvious that first issues are worth the most but as the titles from both of these companies carried on—print runs for all titles shrank. It is much harder to find the last five to seven issues of any title in any grade produced by these companies. I am still (after fifteen years of looking) trying to find a high grade copy of Nightmare #23 from Skywald.

Important Purchases:

Vampirella #7 CGC 9.2: $210

Epic Illustrated #3: NM- $95

Creepy #14 CGC 9.2: $95

Eerie #5 CGC 9.4: $77

Vampirella #6 CGC 9.0: $85

Creepy #17 CGC 9.2: $110

Marvel Preview #11 NM-: $80

TENTH PLANET COMICS AND GAMES

This year was going to be different for me. I was going to keep a weekly journal, but the daily grind of the real world got to me and I fell behind on something I really wanted to do. The journal was to better track buys and sales at local shows and conventions. As previous ramblings of mine reviewed the pros and cons about owning a comic store, the idea to do local shows and conventions was to broaden our exposure and give us an insight on what is happening on the convention front. At conventions you are dealing with more people on a closer level. Unlike being in a store, with a counter between you and the customer. If you are talking to a potential customer and he likes what you are saying, that area known as “personal space” becomes closer and you almost feel the sale about to happen. Letting your personality shine through. Being genuine. That is something you need to remember, and not get over confident about. Comic customers are not as uninformed as some retailers might like to think.

Once the decision was made to do conventions, you have to have that something special to make your booth or display stand out from all the others. You need to make those potential new acquaintances want to come to your booth. Meeting like-minded people, who share the same interests as you. As every individual you meet at these shows has the probability to open a doorway to world of new knowledge, on our favorite subject matter. That is the best part of doing conventions. The comradery. With that in mind a store team member and I went out on a mission to find the right kind of collector material to make our display attractive to the passer by. First up was diving into my personal collection and digging out some cherished doubles and other goodies I know I have stashed in there. Hard choices had to be made. Do I want to part with my Avengers #1? Not necessarily, but those kind of books do look good up on that wall of priceless archeological finds. Next to add a broader variety of stock, we scoured the internet for any affordable “finds”. Our fishing paid off on a few key Silver Age books, now to see how fast those issues will turn for us. Let the games begin!

First up was a newer convention company that was having a show at the regional fairgrounds. The area was considered to be a fairly affluent, and presales on the tickets seemed favorable. We checked our notes on the show we did there the year before. It was just before Christmas. How could we not be looking at a great selling day, before the biggest gift giving day of the year? Keeping notes helps plan your strategy for any given convention. Knowing what you did before lets you plan and avoid the areas where you failed. This particular show we did ok, better than the previous year, but I wasn't moving to Beverly Hills yet. But the money made will help fund future conventions, and help with replenishing our stock.

Part of the failings of a brick and mortar store is the fact that when big conventions come to town, customers tend to hold back on weekly spending to save money for that particular convention. When the tumble weeds start to drift across the store, you know a big con is near. This is understandable, that is if you didn't already have to put money up front for books to save for subscribers. Money you won't recoup for at least another week. So doing the show is part of getting some of that missed cash back into the store.

Another thing we are trying to do this year is run our own local convention. I am unsure at this point of how that will pan out. But it will be a way for us to go out and meet other dealers, and customers. There are always deals to be made and great new friends to meet. I am looking forward to seeing how this works out for us.

Now, onto what this is all about: comic books. Our love for them, and why we do what we do. Collecting comics, is a passion, it is in our blood. All collectors have it, right there deep down in what makes us up, our very core. Is it an addiction? Some think so, I would rather think that this is something that keeps us young. An army of Peter Pans, refusing to grow old, or grow up, however one wishes to look at it.

For me, I quit collecting right around 1969, I remember holding Batman #201 in my hands and thinking, it was time to put this all behind me, after all I was growing up and I was in high school, time to leave this all behind me. Pretty good quitting cold turkey like that, I am sure my collectors DNA laughed and just set the snooze alarm, it was only a matter of time. New interests filled my time, besides my studies and sports, meeting and being with new friends, and of course the inevitable first job. Everything I just mentioned was a distraction to help ease the withdrawal of quitting collecting, of course I still had my box of comics stored in the basement, in a cool dark environment. I could sneak down anytime I wanted and re-read my old favorites. My DNA stirred, smiled and went back into hibernation, it wasn't time yet.

Then it happened. It was in the local airport and the comic was Batman #243. The way the characters were posed, the realism of the artwork, not that older stiffer art style. What is going on with my favorite character? Who is this Neal Adams, and Dennis O'Neil? I bought it and read it while I was waiting for my flight. Now laugh if you will, but I did cautiously slip the book into something to protect it and placed it on the bottom of my carry-on bag. Upon my arrival back home two weeks later, I was scouring the local comic shops and newsstands that I remember held onto their older books. I had to read this storyline. I had to find out who this Ra's al Ghul person is. What happened to The Joker, Two-Face, The Penguin and Catwoman? I tracked this storyline down and was very impressed with how comics had changed; I was being pulled into the new age of comic storytelling and art, but 20 cents a book? That I wasn't certain about, my adult side tugging at me again, My DNA let its eyelids flicker, checked the date and knew it would be soon.

I now fast forward to the early '80s, and the person I was with had started to collect statuary and dolls. I went to local collector shows with her and had a good time. She suggested I collect something that I was interested in, the alarm went off, and my soul felt this bright light explode from within and the mythical Pan that was trapped there since 1969 burst forth playing his pipes and flying free. I once again caught the passion for the stories and art that moved me when I was younger, but now I had the means to support it! That and someone to share it with!

Around this time the comic conventions started springing up everywhere, the major con that was downtown, where all these major dealers came to sell their wares. Great buys, great fun, and meeting great people, my god, all these people are just like me! Where have they been hiding? Now my collection really started to grow. As well as my friends list, contacts from out of state that would allow me to find other older books that held my interest. In turn I could help out other friends and collectors with their wants. It was a great new community that I was now discovering.

Let me stop here and say, I will always agree that the prices of Golden Age comics, and the Silver Age comics deserve certain increases every year. As time marches on, what is becoming of these original treasures? Whatever happens to them, as time passes, we lose more and more of these ancient artifacts. I guess what I am saying is that, as collectors, it is our job to help preserve those that came before us.

How much fun will collecting be to those future generations, if all our past history is destroyed? Sure there are countless hard covered archived books, telling those early stories, but to a real collector, and you know the one I am talking about. The collector whose blood starts pumping the minute they see those off white pages, and gets the scent of that old paper. That is the collector that takes those finds and does whatever they can to preserve our heritage, so that others might enjoy these finds at some future date.

Now not entirely off subject, what of those early precursors to comics? To those of you not familiar with them, they are the hardcover cloth bound reprints of early comic strips. They can be searched out and found if looked for, but it is difficult. When you do find them though, the original art, the original stories, simple as they might be are amazing and very exciting when one comes upon them by accident. If found untouched, meaning, without someone coloring the pictures, or writing in the cover. Those books are genuine gold. Writing in the covers can add a bit of personality to those books though, some child's name, and address from 1925? Someone, who at the time was proud to own this book? This lends to the overall enjoyment of collecting. Other pre-comic book finds out there, John Martin's Book a Childs Magazine, has some great turn of the century art and storytelling. Simple stories, from a much simpler time. Those are dated from the 1920s. Should those not be included in our attempts to preserve the past, just like what we are doing with our comic collections now?

Although those books did precede comic books, the biggest contributor to our favorite comic characters came way before those previously mentioned tomes. I am talking about pulps. Growing up I dismissed them as just magazines, not really considering them much of an equal to comic books. But with age comes knowledge, and I found out somewhere in the 1970s just how big an influence the pulp magazines had on comics. Characters such as The Shadow, Doc Savage, Conan, Fu Manchu, Tarzan and Zorro were all pulp heroes, just to name a few. And the writers? How about the likes of Isaac Asimov, Ray Bradbury, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Sax Rohmer. Pulp magazines were published from 1896 to the 1950s, way before the thoughts of any Superman or Batman. But those stories laid the foundation to the heroes that we enjoy today. So do we just dismiss them or list them among our classics? My belief is that they belong on our list and increased as time marches on. They are more at the core and the heart of the comic book industry than anything else.

Other books to arise from the pulps were the Big Little Books or the Big Big Books. Finding Big Little Books in great condition is difficult, but if you do manage to find them in good shape with the spine intact, you have located yet another possible valuable prize for your collection. Especially if it is one of the more sought after Big Little Books. Again, Buck Rogers, Flash Gordon, Mickey Mouse, Popeye, Dick Tracy, The Phantom and Captain Midnight – all characters we are familiar with due to comic books. Big Little Books began publishing in 1932, with Big Big Books were published from 1934 through 1938. More comic history that I think deserves a place and yearly consideration.

So on this front, I would have to say with the rarity of said books and magazines, I would support a balanced yearly increases, without a doubt. Comics, which deserve to be included in a yearly enhancement, should be the Golden Age and Silver Age books that helped shape our industry. I would include also, books that changed and reshaped the characters we have known such as the O'Neil and Adams era for example. Anything that had a substantial impact upon how characters, or the comic industry at that moment in time are viewed.

I know due to the movies scheduled to come out in the near future, we will see certain books begin to climb in value. At major area conventions and the local conventions, I have noticed an increasing interest in Wonder Woman, World's Finest, and Justice League. The Avengers are still staying strong in consumer interest, and the early Guardians of the Galaxy put on display cause a feeding frenzy. I would try to tread cautiously though. A Brave and the Bold #28? Yes, it changed things as we saw them. The very first appearance together of DC's finest heroes. All Star Comics #8? The First Lady of DC Comics? Absolutely. Superman #76 The VERY first team up of the World's Finest Heroes? I couldn't agree more. But I think just the mention of the words World's Finest will push up the value of books that don't readily deserve to be considered as such. Sure there are vendors that will hype them and push them for the highest prices that they can get. But not every issue of World's Finest was an earth shattering issue. Silver Age price worthy, yes that I can agree, but Movie Hype Age worthy? Not really.

The bottom line on all this that one needs to remember, everything is only worth what someone is willing to pay for it. Yes you might have an Avengers #1 that is worth $1000. But, if you cannot find the person willing to pay that price? Be wise in your purchases, and have fun in collecting, enjoy being one of the Lost Boys every time you go into your basement and see those long boxes. That Avengers might not be worth the $1000 you think it is, it could be worth way much more though right where it is at.

JOSEPH FIORE COMICWIZ.COM

The year 2014 in the back-issue comic hobby may well go down as one of the most exciting, if not the most memorable. The Interwebs were buzzing with topics such as bad pressing and reverse spine roll (RSR). Such discoveries of shrinking covers (named "Costanza" after the now classic Seinfeld "shrinkage" episode) were made by forum community members who were able to compare before and after photos of certified books with refolded spines and vanishing right outer edges, bringing attention to unsafe practices used to squeeze every dollar out of comics. And the concerns felt by some when this was unfolding didn't really have much time to fester or reverberate as the back-issue grading market got its first competitor in June with the opening of CBCS.

This wasn't just your typical new competitor entrance. From the very first press release (and continuing which each that followed) you could see the past-President and Founder had distilled a blow-by-blow assault on every single flaw that had been discussed about CGC, but did so to promote a product or pricing structure that felt refreshing, and like someone had FINALLY listened to collectors gripes for all these years. One of the most well-received announcements involved partnering with CSA (signature verification) to start grading unwitnessed signatures, which signaled a much needed change in the way fans could connect with creators, and doing away with the disconnect of needing to involve a witness or autograph usher. CBCS also did a great deal of promotion through their Facebook page, which allowed onlookers to really gauge an authentic and organic response and experience, with each major announcement and product feature during their opening.

Disappointingly, this new competitive landscape produced a knee-jerk reaction on the CS forums, calling for a censoring and vetting of discussions with any mention of CBCS. This resulted in taking a hiatus from my 14+ year participation on the forums, and I began to look more closely at engaging in Facebook groups as a way to connect with collectors and fans. Surprisingly, this switch to Facebook represents one of the more interesting signals of change in the comic hobby, as the social media platform does provide a fairly simple way of sharing, connecting, and trading with other collectors. In fact, I quickly saw an incredible amount of comics being bought and sold through various Facebook groups. The rapid, and constant communication are a definite plus, however the factors of brevity, high activity threads, and “closed” group features, produces a condition where more meaningful discussion is very often too fragmented, and quickly gets buried or vanishes. There is also something to say about the size of groups - it seems those exceeding several thousand members start to attract unwanted personalities, discussion and conflict. Where I do see the most promise is the sheer number of people joining groups, sharing photos of their collection or a box of comics that has been sitting in their closet collecting dust, and the way online crowds absorb collections before established consignment and auction houses are even considered as a venue for selling.

While I have scored some incredible pieces during this exploratory phase of trying my hand at Facebook groups, the positives have been that I have been able to elicit more input and participation in the area of research on variants, as well as opening up networking possibilities with people from abroad. This includes getting help in locating material that tends to be less seen or is more obscure in the North American market. The bright side is definitely found in having an alternative to prospect or mine this material solely through eBay, which is replete with unrealistic Buy It Now listings. The pace of Facebook discussion and activity appears to compliment the instant way new movie announcements and character appearances happen. In this regard, the instantaneous and explosive price increases on books such as Incredible Hulk #271 (first Rocket Raccoon) or X-Factor #6 (first full appearance of Apocalypse), or even “hot” issues such as Secret Wars #8 (first black costume) are signaling an era in comic collecting with a feverish amount of activity in securing a copy quickly, and at the prices some of these books are fetching, seemingly at whatever cost!

It's also producing a condition where the available supply of relatively common books which have experienced exorbitant overnight price increases, with numerous available examples appearing through an eBay search, is causing some collectors to seek out less seen or unique “variants.” In keeping with these same examples, some highlight include the sales of an ungraded VF copy of Incredible Hulk #271 75¢ cover price for $250, a VF copy of X-Factor #6 95¢ cover price for $80, and a VF copy of Secret Wars #8 $1 cover price for $200 (at the time of writing this report, there is a CGC 9.0 “double cover” copy of Secret Wars #8 with a $1 cover price listed with an opening bid of $900!). I also recently happened to be speaking with a fellow collector/dealer who advised me of the uptick Legends #3 (first Suicide Squad) was experiencing soon after a film announcement was made. I dug out a DC Legends #3 (NM) $1 cover price variant, and will report the sale amount in next year's report.

And it's not just the 1977 Marvel Star Wars #1 that's experienced a value uptick - demand for other notable variants is arising from the news of an upcoming Star Wars film. I have had a number of mid-grade Treasury-sized Star Wars comics, especially Whitman variants, consistently selling in the range of $30-$60. My Facebook comic group posting in August about the UK 12p editions of Marvel All-Colour Comics issues of Star Wars #2-#5 (no number 1 exists) has also caused a fair number of collectors to seek these out in very short order. One person was kind enough to offer to procure a copy of #4 which I am still missing in exchange for the information I provided in the thread. I recently sold a Star Wars #3 UK 12p copy for $60. This recent “craze” to seek out the original Marvel Star Wars comics may in part also have something to do with excitement generated by Marvel's 100+ variant covers for the first issue which appeared in January of 2015.

Other areas of noted interest are the Canadian 35¢ cover price Archies (these are regularly priced $30 in the U.S.), and the Giant Size editions with the 35¢ strikethrough, and the words “now 25¢.” And as exciting as it's been to see a more consistent trend of activity in Canadian and UK price variants, it is also encouraging to see long loved titles like Fantastic Four getting a resurgence of interest. It's unbelievable to think last year at this time, I was able to put together a string of issues 36, 44, 45, 46, 48 and 52 in 9.4/9.6 grades with a hit to my wallet similarly felt when buying a 2 or 3 year old minivan. In today's market, the value of these books could mean a considerable down payment on a house! Another really important aspect to this is the boost it's given to mid-grade Silver Age, and while they may not enjoy the value growth of top grade or best copies, they are flying out of long boxes. Before concluding, I have also noticed that Silver Age first appearances and semi-key books that present better than their actual assigned grade (i.e. a FN or 6.0 that looks like a FN/VF or 7.0) are getting significantly more attention, commanding a long deserved premium, with the days of paying 50%-75% of Guide for below VF condition books long behind us. In the 30+ years of collecting, I have never had to refer to my Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide as much as I have in the space of the last year. It's quickly become the era of collecting/selling where even the most seasoned dealer can quickly find themselves at a disadvantage doing a convention or show, with the throng of savvy collectors equipped with a mobile device, cleaning you out of every last overlooked, key appearance, and grossly underpriced issues. What an exciting time to be collecting comics and may this year your best yet!

DAN FOGEL HIPPI COMIX

Since the birth of the Internet and the rise of eBay and Amazon as major venues for buying and selling comic books, and the proliferation of online “free price guides,” many industry “pundits” and civilian “hipsters” have decried the accuracy, necessity and usefulness of comprehensive printed Price Guides (which currently number only two survivors). These pundit-hipsters are wrong, and here’s why:

For all its usefulness in buying and selling true rarities from/to an International user base, eBay is a crapshoot for common, plentiful and low demand comics. Many factors can drive prices above and below actual market prices. A seller can misspell a title in their listing or misplace it in the wrong listing category so that an interested buyer misses it in searches or browsing. A casual buyer may only pop in occasionally to search, not using the saved search tools available. An uneducated/overenthusiastic buyer may overpay due to lack of patience, poor price comparison skills, emotional/irrational shopping motivation, or frankly by being judgment impaired due to alcohol/pharmaceutical/herbal consumption. Some radically high or low sales are simply due to luck or good timing. And frankly, sometimes a comic book actually and simply sells for above or below Guide price, which (gasp!) happened long before the Internet. I remember blowing folks’ minds by paying $90 for Adventure Comics #247 in the late ‘70s when Overstreet had it at $36, but guess what? I wasn’t the only one because it shot up to $100 in the next year or so.

Amazon can be a very useful and enjoyable research tool to see what’s out there, but many listings have inaccurate or misleading data entered by uneducated or lazy sellers. And there are many crazy-high prices due to power-listing software glitches and/or crazy-high sellers. Also, Amazon, unlike eBay, has no completed sales function to detail actual sales versus wishful or deluded thinking by sellers.

What about those free online “price guides”? They’re worth the price. Careful examination of these “values” will prove that the more accurate listings are simply “appropriated” from the two established print Price Guides, other dubious websites, unsubstantiated out-of-context isolated sales reported online and/or each other. The less-accurate listings are simply, for whatever reason, bogus or dated. And good luck looking up these “guides” on your mobile device at a convention when you have to share bandwidth with the hordes, or the hotel or convention center is actually jamming free access so that they can sell you overpriced connectivity!

Wait, you say, what about the timeliness factor? Well, temporary, short-term peaks and valleys do occur on currently hot books, but the wise investor of any commodity seeks out thoughtful and historical research-based information from the leading experts. Frankly, that’s the reason the biggest, most respected sellers and auction houses only cite prices and make estimates based on The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide and, um, Fogel’s Underground Price & Grading Guide!

Full disclosure: of course I have a dog in this fight, but it’s also why I’ve studied the issue at great length and depth. My third Price Guide in a decade, the fully updated and expanded 2015-2016 Fogel’s Underground Price & Grading Guide Volume 1: Underground Comix is now available and acts as a supplement to Overstreet by listing over 9,000 comics the beautiful book in your hands no longer has room for or editorially doesn’t cover. Once again, I must thank Unca Bob, Mr. Geppi, Captain Vaughn and especially Commander Huesman and Overstreet veteran Dr. Blumberg for their support and generous help in letting me adapt and expand the Overstreet Comic Book Grading Guide standards and descriptions for my niche-of-a-niche’s fandom and dealers!

As an Overstreet buyer and fan for four decades, an Advisor and Contributor for three decades, and shelf-mate and fellow-traveler for a decade, I know personally the thousands of hours of informed research and hundreds of contributors necessary to make a true Price Guide. There have been quite a few other short-lived and/or abandoned by the marketplace guides that are no longer in print and business, and the reasons for that are ultimately similar to what I’ve detailed above. At the end of the day, collectors, fans and dealers trust and want a printed book that stands the test of time and builds upon its history and honestly serves the marketplace, industry and hobby.

The Market: Sales are dropping on most back issues and many new and established ongoing titles as readers generally stick with current or recent continuity, switch to digital, and normal reader attrition. Also, many libraries carry an increasing number of trades and “floppies”, which is a boon for cash-strapped consumers fighting price increases but a mixed bag for retailers. Some back issues sales are killed thusly, but other new sales may occur because of interest piqued by a borrowed comic or trade.

DAN GALLO COMIC ART CON

I still love this stuff. The Golden Age of comics may be behind us but one can make the case that we are in the Golden Age of the genre and that everything that happened prior to the 2008 release of Iron Man was prelude. The characters created in the comic books themselves are the engine to a multi-media machine that will never let our favorite heroes fade away. That bodes very well for investment quality books for which I specialize in.

I do this full time, all day every day, and every year is the same; there is an insatiable appetite for quality material and there is just not enough to go around. Think of the 125,000+ attendees to NYCC alone and ask yourself how many of them would like to own an X-Men #1. With CGC having graded about 2000 Universal copies, you do the math, (and that’s just NYCC...multiply that by the world). With more and more people being exposed to the characters through film and TV, the overall demand will continue to move in only one direction while the supply will not. That is why the prices go up. That is why they will continue to go up. If you are still not convinced, think of all the kids who knocked on your door on Halloween dressed as Iron Man or Batman. When they get older and have money don't you think some of them will want their first appearances and key issues? As scarce as this stuff is, it doesn't even have to be that many to affect the numbers. In summation, this isn't going away anytime soon.

Collectors always ask me what's hot and sometimes that is not the right question to ask. What they should be asking is what is going to be hot? For the disclaimer, I don't have a crystal ball and you never know how things will shake out in the future but I do believe that the following books are either undervalued and or poised for a jump.

The biggest Marvel character yet to have his day on the big screen, or the small screen for that matter, is hands down Namor The Sub-Mariner. This guy can be a good guy or a bad guy and has history with the Fantastic Four, Captain America, and the Avengers. There are so many different ways you can go with him and it is only a matter of time before it will happen. Time to buy. I wrote in last year's market report how high I was on Fantastic Four #4, his first Silver Age appearance, and I still am. Also, from the Golden Age, Sub-Mariner #1 from 1941 is relatively inexpensive as compared to other "big" Golden Age books. I am always on the hunt for these two books. You should be too.

From the Silver Age, besides Fantastic Four #4, I love Tales to Astonish #13, the first appearance of Groot. This book came out in 1960 and just doesn't exist, (about 125 Universal copies as of 12/14). Unlike other movie driven books, dealers aren't going to be able to dig through their storage units and pull out 10 copies. Also, this character has some serious long-term potential. If you had any doubt, the Marvel/Disney brand is bulletproof as evidenced by the massive success of Guardians of the Galaxy. There is little question in my mind that they will be able to take a talking raccoon and a walking tree and turn them into two of the biggest characters in their portfolio. Another book I love is Showcase #4. I know you are thinking, "Duh..." but seriously, this book is grossly undervalued for what it is. It is probably worth at least double Guide, (CBPG #44), in every grade and still I think it is a bargain at that level. Just bite the bullet and get one.

From the Bronze Age, time to gobble up Marvel Premiere #15s. Buy as many as your budget allows. You are going to blink and it's going to take off. I put Batman #232, the first appearance of Ra's al Ghul, in the same category. Also, don't sleep on Marvel Spotlight #32, the first Spider-Woman. Sometimes you have to go all in and not worry about it if one sold previously for a few dollars less. When the book is 25% or 50% or maybe 100% more it won't matter. What will matter is if you never pulled the trigger!

From the Modern Age, I love some of the DC keys such as DC Comics Presents #26, the first New Teen Titans,

New Teen Titans #2, the first Deathstroke, All Star Comics #58, the first Power Girl, and Tales of the Teen Titans #44, when Dick Grayson becomes Nightwing. I am always on the lookout for them as well as the first appearance of the Huntress, (DC Super Stars #17 & All Star #69). There are just a lot less of the DCs than the Marvels so when you have the opportunity to grab one don't let it pass you by. Speaking of Marvel, another favorite of mine is New Mutants #87, the first appearance of Cable. I wrote about it in last year's report and it was averaging around $200 in 9.8 at the time. Now it is hovering around $285. It still has room.

I couldn't conclude my market overview without a few words about original comic book art. As co-promoter of Comic Art Con, I have seen firsthand how much fun the Original Art market is. As realized auction prices have skyrocketed so has interest in Comic Art Con as it seems more and more people are getting into the art. Even if you never even thought about collecting Original Art, I recommend picking up at least one page to hang on your wall, (when clients come to my home for a book related deal and see original comic book art hanging on my walls they can't take their eyes off of it!). You love the hobby, you love the characters, you love the books so why not have something unique, something that no one else has, an original page of comic book art!? Trust me, it's very cool! If you are already a collector or if you are curious about getting started you should pick up The Overstreet Guide To Collecting Comic & Animation Art. Sometimes breaking into a new market can be scary. This handbook makes it easier. Of course, attending Comic Art Con wouldn't hurt either!

As is any hobby, buy what you like. After all, it is your collection and not mine. If there is an investment component to your focus, then always buy the best because if and when the time comes for you to cash out there will be no shortage of buyers for the blue chip stuff.

Top Golden Age Books: This list is ranked by the 9.2 price, which doesn't exist, and not by desirability. Yes, there will always be a small handful of collectors who will drive up the price of a single highest graded copy of any book but how that affects every grade is a true testament to the strength of a book. Some books on the list are living on their past glory and no one really cares about them. There needs to be a way to weigh the price, scarcity, and desirability to come up with a true "rank." In a "weighted" list, I would put Captain America Comics #1 in third place. Is there anyone who would actually put All Star #3 ahead of All Star #8?

Let's take the dollars out of the equation. Captain America #1 is more desirable than All-American #16 in every grade. All Star #8 is insanely undervalued and more in demand than many higher on the list.

As for prices, everything should go up in lower grade. Few can afford even middle grades for these books which leaves collectors falling all over themselves for books in the 1.0 – 3.0 range, (and why you can get a multiple of Guide for a 2.0 but not for a 6.0). Books that should increase in value in every grade would be all the Detectives and books that should increase substantially in every grade are Cap #1,

Pep #22, and All Star #8.

Top Silver Age Books: I would remove Showcase #22 in favor of Strange Tales #110. I would flip-flop X-Men #1 and Tales of Suspense #39, which is much tougher. I would move Showcase #4 ahead of Fantastic Four #1. Prices should be increased for every book in every grade with Showcase #4 getting a well deserved massive increase across the board.

Top Bronze Age Books: I am not a big fan of the price variants, especially the Iron Fist #14. They just seem to be oddballs and not heavily collected like others on the list. The DC 100 Page SS #5... I didn't even know what that was until I saw it on the list you sent me last year! I looked it up and I still don't get it yet it is on the list ahead of ASM #129 which just might be the easiest selling book listed. It guides high, obviously, but does anyone care? No one has ever asked me for it, ever, (still). For a book that is supposedly "popular", GL #76 is a very soft. Another book that has softened is X-Men #94. The big three are still Incredible Hulk #181, Giant-Size X-Men #1, and ASM #129. I can't overstate enough how well ASM #129 sells.

Modern Age Books: Although you didn't request any information, like last year, I would like to put my two cents in about them in general. The guide is woefully inaccurate in pricing modern books. It stems from the grading spread; it shouldn't be 2.0 G through 9.2 NM- like everything else. The lowest grade should be 9.0 with the top grade being 9.8. That is where these books trade every day. A New Mutants #98 in 4.0... is there really such a thing? I don't know how you could change the grade spreads in the Guide but without doing so you are making the Guide irrelevant to collectors of Modern books. In 9.8, ASM #300 is fetching $1100, New Mutants #98 $750, and many other regularly in the $200-$400 range. These books are all 20 years old and should start getting more respect in the Guide. For some collectors, these books represent their youth and their possible re-entry point into the hobby. They need to be broken out.

Which Prices Should Go Up?: With few exceptions, all key issues and first appearance should increase in value in every grade. Also, Silver Age Marvels in 8.0 and higher should increase. The books listed below should be raised substantially:

Action Comics #242 & 252

Batman #121 & 181 & 232

More Fun Comics #73

Strange Tales #110

Tales to Astonish #13 & 27

Amazing Spider-Man #129

Fantastic Four #13, 45, 46, & 52

Tales of Suspense #52

I believe the Guide is generally in the ballpark for most everything listed but for the "good stuff," that 1/100 of 1% that everyone seems to want, the Guide is often behind. I know the MO is to bring things along slowly and conservatively but sometimes adjustments need to be made and market data must be heavily factored in or else the Guide runs the risk of being ignored by a large collecting base.

There should be one person in charge of staying on top of the "good stuff" and make sure, as best one can in a yearly publication, that the prices are at least close. Did you see the More Fun #73 CGC 3.5 get $38k at Heritage last month? That is a whopping 12x Guide. Still think a 9.2 is only worth $32k? With the current Guide price for a 3.5 at around $3k, I am not suggesting you jump it to $38k based on that one sale but rather at least acknowledge that the numbers are way off and bring it up to $10k - $15k in that grade. Watch the sales in 2015 and build from there.

In addition, super keys such as X-Men #1, Avengers #1 & 4, Daredevil #1, JIM #83, Sgt. Fury #1, TOS #39, TTA #27, and Strange Tales #110 need to have greater price separation between grades 2.0 and 6.0. The numbers tend to be all jumbled up and often overlap. In the case of Sgt. Fury #1, there are nine different grade points between only $667! For X-Men #1, that spread is between $2000, which is still not large enough for a book of this magnitude that trades as frequently as it does. The easiest fix would be to crank the 6.0 as there is usually a huge gap between 6.0 and 8.0.

Which Prices Should Go Down?: Even going down just a few dollars can be the kiss of death for a book as collectors can be very skittish. I have buyers who love when the Guide comes out so they can see their book listed higher than last year. They need the reaffirmation that they made a wise purchase or that they are on the correct path. Sometimes though books go the other way and an adjustment needs to be made.

That being said, nothing major comes to mind. As a dealer who specializes in CGC graded key issues and with the market being so hot there is nothing that I can think of that has gone down. The only dead character is Green Lantern. The Showcase #22 is still solid but the rest of his keys are very soft, Green Lantern #1, 6, 7, 40, & 76 and when I come across them at auction I usually just keep going.

One More Thing: Earlier I mentioned that you should have one person in charge of staying on top of the "good stuff." Giving it some more thought, how about a team, a small group of 5-7 advisors who would be tasked with just that? Think of the current advisors as the regular foot soldiers and this new group as special forces. The criteria would be that one has to actively buy and sell these types of books, say the top 100 or so of the most desirable and heavily collected books on the planet. There can be a couple of pages devoted to this in the Guide, a subset, where everything is listed and perhaps broken down by Marvel and DC and then again by SA, GA, BA, and MA. These books can be on a spreadsheet with their current prices and the team can make real number changes where needed. Everyone could submit and an average can be taken. I would be interested in doing this and if you want to hear more just give me a call.

ERIC J. GROVES

THE COMIC ART FOUNDATION

In our view, the comic book market is as healthy as we have seen it in recent times. The fan base is moderately expansive. Collectors seem to have sufficient disposable income to buy the books they want. Buying and selling on the internet has its downsides, but the net has contributed greatly to comic commerce by way of international exposure. Best of all, smaller conventions devoted primarily to comics are now attracting increasing numbers of serious collectors and dealers. The big shows are correctly perceived as carnivals of popular culture, attended by people who want to make the scene but who do not spend money on funny books.

Setting values for comics these days can be challenging. Personal experience buying and selling is usually the best evidence. On the other hand, one cannot ignore the information arising out of auction results, especially with respect to the two biggest houses, ComicConnect and Heritage. The premium prices realized in large measure represent bids for CGC books, frequently in the 9.0 range. Books in lesser grade also sell at respectable prices. One must always take into account the “auction fever” factor, of course. In any event, here is how things stand in the opinion of a boutique operator out on the great plains.

Golden Age: Perhaps the most rewarding experience an old trader can have is selling Golden Age books to younger collectors, which we did this year. Some such fans are building runs, but many simply want to own genuine artifacts from this very special time frame.

Golden Age comics remain a solid bet not only for their status as artifacts but for their stable values. Very few titles are stale or subject to volatility. This year, we saw DC titles as ascendant. Just about any title or issue will sell. Those with World War II covers are the most desirable. Any book featuring Simon and Kirby art is hot, and some of them are becoming harder to find, such as Adventure #72-91. Action, All Star, Batman, Boy Commandos, Detective, Flash, Green Lantern, More Fun, Sensation, Star Spangled and Wonder Woman are all the objects of collector desire, even in low grade, so long as the price is reasonable. In fact, VG copies of any of these DC titles are a bargain, and should stay that way. After all, there are more low grade copies than high grade. Dealers like to move them out and collectors are glad to get them.

Other imprints do well, too. Timelys are the gold standard, all titles, but especially Captain America, Human Torch, Marvel Mystery and Sub-Mariner. There is some sticker shock with these books, but they sell nonetheless. Also in demand are early Fox titles, likewise Fawcett, Nedor, MLJ and Quality. MLJ WWII covers are avidly sought after. Early issues of Military and Blackhawk, with their excellent eye appeal, are snapped up, as are National and Uncle Sam. Offbeat titles like Cat-Man change hands briskly. Dell G.A. titles have traditionally been slow, but some are becoming elusive: try finding low number Looney Tunes or Walt Disney Comics and Stories (pre-Barks). Early Four Colors are gorgeous items and will sell quickly if in grade, such as Popeye, Little Lulu and Fairy Tale Parade.

Atom Age: As each year goes by, collector interest in post-Golden Age comics expands and intensifies. We think this is for several reasons. First, quite a few major artists began their careers during this era. Many fans collect by artist, not necessarily by title or character. Collectors are always on the prowl for issues with art by L.B. Cole, Alex Schomburg, Matt Baker, Alex Toth, Basil Wolverton, Wally Wood, Frank Frazetta and Al Williamson. Second, the post-war proliferation of titles led to a lot of experimentation, and later, sensationalism. Crime comics – sometimes rather gory – paved the way for the Horror titles and the scandal which followed. Third, by comparison with blue chip Golden Age comics, Atom Age books are still a good deal.

Among the numerous Atom Age publishers, Atlas titles sell best. Nothing compares with EC, of course, but Atlas pre-Code Horror titles do very well. So do the “Girl” titles like My Friend Irma, Patsy Walker and Sherry the Showgirl. Even Atlas Westerns, Crime and Romance comics sell. Aside from Atlas, there are any number of oddities pursued by collectors, i.e., Strange World of Your Dreams (S&K art) and My Date (S&K).

A number of fans think of DC as somewhat on the sidelines during the Atom Age, awaiting the publication of Showcase #4 and the dawn of the Silver Age. This is a misconception. DC did some experimentation, too. Several of its titles from this period can be tough and are hunted by serious collectors, including Danger Trail, Rex the Wonder Dog, Congo Bill and Strange Adventures. The costumed hero books from this period are no less marketable than those of the Golden Age.

Silver Age: Perhaps the first important thing to recognize about the Silver Age is that unlike previous eras, people around 1962 began seriously saving comic books rather than disposing of them. Second, fandom was becoming organized, also bringing about accumulations of comics. The end result is that only a very few Silver Age books can be accurately characterized as scarce, much less rare. The question with comics from this time frame is not whether they can be found, but whether they can be found in grade at an affordable price. For the most part, copies are available across the board in all grades, with some exceptions, such as the DC books of the mid to late 1950s which were simply not well constructed to begin with.

Silver Age Marvel keys lead the way in terms of value and demand. Amazing Fantasy #15, Amazing Spider-Man #1, Tales to Astonish #27, Tales of Suspense #39, Journey Into Mystery #83, Fantastic Four #1 and Avengers #1 are the big items, as usual. They are available from major dealers and auction houses in a variety of grades. We have sold these books in VG and less, at Guide, to very satisfied buyers. The thing about these comics, and the lower numbers of each title, is that they are standing the test of time. They look good and read well, especially the early issues of Spidey. These books are here to stay, particularly when in high grade.

Silver Age DCs also have their keys, but demand for them is not quite as intense as it is for Marvels. For this era, it seems that DC comics break out into tiers. The top tier includes Action, Adventure, Batman, Detective, Superman and Wonder Woman. The second tier comprises titles like Aquaman, Brave and the Bold, Challengers, Green Lantern, Hawkman, Jimmy Olsen, Justice League, Lois Lane, Rip Hunter, Showcase, Sea Devils, and World's Finest. The third tier includes the Suspense, Science Fiction and War titles with which we are all familiar. The first tier is obviously well connected to the Golden Age and hence, generation skipping. This equates to stable demand and values. Not so much with the second tier. Demand for some of these titles is modest. This is largely true for the third tier as well, although DC War comics seem to survive in a universe all their own. However, there are some hard to find issues in these lower tiers and we can sell them in all grades, such as early numbers of House of Secrets, House of Mystery, Star Spangled War Stories and Our Army at War.

The Bottom Line: As we have said in the past, we counsel against what Alan Greenspan once termed “irrational exuberance.” Our hobby, and the business of dealers, will thrive only so long as most comics are not beyond the reach of the average collector. We discourage speculation in Bronze Age, Copper Age and Modern comics, ever mindful that a crash can have a domino effect. We recognize that major books in high grade, such as Action Comics #1 in CGC 9.0, are destined for the vaults of the few who can afford them. So it is with rarities in all areas: great paintings, rare automobiles, classic wines and Stradivarius violins. We urge moderation in the pricing of books in GD, VG and FN so they remain affordable to the fans who love them. Finally, we encourage all fans to attend and shop at the smaller conventions around the country. These gatherings are all about comics and they deserve fan support.

One final nostalgic comment. I keep a stack of low grade reading copies at bedside of certain Harvey reprint titles I read as a kid: Dick Tracy, Kerry Drake, Terry and the Pirates, Joe Palooka and Steve Canyon. In these comics, Harvey used one of the most effective marketing gimmicks of the day. I can't think of any other publisher who did this. At the end of each issue there was a preview of the next issue, displaying the cover and a few key panels. The reader would know exactly what to look for next month. Not only that, but the Harvey covers were so well done and so tantalizing that a kid like me could not wait until the next issue hit the stands. Also, kids attempting to put together a run (very difficult in those days with no organized fan community) became aware of the covers of the issues they were seeking. If you have never observed this technique, dig up an old Harvey comic and check it out. Those were the days, my friends. Those were the days.

JOHN HAINES

JOHN HAINES RARE COMICS

2014 was a great year for comics in every way: at “true” comic conventions, online, and at our store.

The huge success of the Guardians of the Galaxy movie along with the enthusiasm for the new Amazing Spider-Man #1 – then coupled with the insatiable demand for all things Walking Dead brought many new readers through our doors, up to our tables, and onto our web sites.

Our Store: Comics and Friends experienced incredible growth during 2014 and we would like to thank all of our customers both old and new for the encouragement that they bring every week. Because of our increased traffic we were forced to reorder multiple times a week in order to have new comics available for our walk-in customers – as well as to fill in missing recent back issues for new club members. Things do not seem to be slowing down. The new Image promotional event this year was a win for us – with plenty of readers adding recent titles like Wytches and Outcast to their lists. In fact, we have more people reading Wytches than Batman, and we haven't lost any Batman readers.

Other top titles for the year are the usual suspects: Amazing Spider-Man is going stronger than before Peter was killed off – we made sure that we ordered enough of #1 to get all of the Variants and people were thanking us by the end of the first day for doing so. Deadpool, Harley Quinn, Batman Eternal, Futures End, Lazarus (continues to thrive), (Lady) Thor, Rocket Raccoon, Guardians of the Galaxy, and Walking Dead – all are top sellers. Speaking of Walking Dead – in one day this spring two Walking Dead collections came in – the first had #1 through #118, and the second had #2 through #100. Imagine the feeding frenzy that resulted from that! We anticipate that the upcoming (at this time) Marvel Star Wars relaunch will generate a lot of interest for early 2015.

This year's DC 3D motion covers were well received but did not appear to generate new readers for the DC titles overall. We stock a lot of T-shirts and so we sell a lot of T-shirts. We also have steady customers for statues and action figures. We keep all available mainstream action figures in stock – including the more expensive Godzilla figures and the great products from ArtFX+. Overall sales of HeroClix and Magic the Gathering increased for Comics and Friends this year. Our first shipment of Deadpool HeroClix were gone the first day, luckily we had more on the way. On the Magic front, the Tarkir theme is going crazy – we have continual demand for these.

Conventions: By true comic conventions I mean those that focus on comic books and comic book creators – I am not referring to Pop Culture shows that feature a few comic dealers and a few comic-related guests. Our show season kicks off every year with the Gem City Con in Dayton and it was amazing! As usual, Jesse and Bill continue to bring in great comic guests, a great selection of dealers and plenty of comic hungry collectors. Sales were brisk for accurately graded Silver and Bronze comics of all genres. The surprise this year was the extent to which Golden Age collectors attended – Golden Age accounted for almost half of our sales at Gem City – and – most amazingly of all we were able to purchase über rare Jumbo Comics #1 and #3!

Next up was our own Lake Effect Comic Convention at the end of May – again another great show. Over 1200 collectors attended our one day show – special thanks to the Northeast Art Collectors Society who held their meeting at the show this year – extra special thanks to Ethan for the hook-up. Not often do you get to see Dick Sprang Batman pages or Joe Kubert Brave and the Bold Hawkman covers. Most of the sales here were Silver and Bronze Age super hero books and there were a lot of them. Throughout the summer we do mostly one day shows like Teddy Hanes Buffalo shows – and we enjoy buying from and selling to local collectors who bring their lists and check off their finds.

We then close out the season with Baltimore and Pittsburgh. Baltimore continues to be the high point of our show season and we always find ourselves wanting to restock after that one. As I say every year – if you are a comic collector, and you haven't been to Baltimore, you really must get there. Over the years we have built a reliable customer base at the Monroeville Pittsburgh Comic Con – people that we look forward to meeting each year. However we just received word that Pittsburgh has been sold to a national Convention group and we expect it to morph away from comics and into a Pop Culture show just as the old Mid-Ohio show in Columbus did – less comics and more mass-media guests.

Online: Online sales continue to be strong for us. Big ticket items as well as cheaper bulk lots both seem to sell at the same rate. High quality scans and accurate descriptions are keys to repeat business. Ditto fast shipping.

What are they looking for: X-Force #2 (2nd appearance of Deadpool) exploded for us this fall – we had plenty of copies available and collectors snapped them up. Ditto Iron Man #55, New Mutants #98, Omega Men #3, and X-Men #266. Continually asked for are the New 52 Batman #1, Amazing Spider-Man #121, #122, and #129. We are always looking to buy and were incredibly lucky to purchase several great collections over the course of the year. Our favorite was a large original-owner EC collection with most of the early Horror issues present. To our surprise all (yes all) of the Horror comics sold at Guide prices – while only 25% of the Sci-Fi issues sold. Still nice to have some ECs from this collection around. Right after Christmas we were able to purchase a nice bunch of early Batman issues that we had actually looked at last spring – better late than never! The slow and steady wins the race prize goes to the fellow who sold us, one-at-a-time, Captain America Comics #9 down to #1 over the entire year. A killer grouping with buyers already lined up for them – killer to be able to hold and read the originals again. Of course no year would be complete without selling all of the Marvel and DC #1's that we can get our hands on: Amazing Spider-Man #1, Avengers #1, Hulk #1, Action #252, Showcase #22, X-Men #1, Giant-Size X-Men #1, Journey Into Mystery #83, JLA #1, and on and on. We always want these books, so if you have them, bring them in.

STEVEN HOUSTON & JOHN DOLMAYAN TORPEDO COMICS

Steven Houston

Hello once again from Torpedo Comics in Las Vegas. We are currently “decompressing” from our busy convention schedule of 2014, our biggest year yet, with shows across the country from Utah to Chicago. Regarding the biggest news of 2014 for Torpedo Comics, it's the move towards opening up a full-time “bricks and mortar” store, while industry-wide, the big news must be the overwhelming success of the Guardians of the Galaxy movie. Has there been a movie that has had such an impact on so many different comics for such an extended period? I don't think so. I wrote extensively on the various key issues that the GOTG movie had created in last year's report, and once again in the report supplied to the Overstreet Comic Book Marketplace Year Book a few months ago – the GOTG movie is a back-issue sales-generating monster!

To be honest, I was a little unsure of the public's reaction to the movie, pondering the effects of a lackluster movie on the back-issue market, especially as prices for CGC 9.8 copies of Incredible Hulk #271 (1st Marvel Universe Rocket Raccoon), Marvel Preview #4 (1st Star-Lord) and issue #7 (1st Rocky Raccoon) reached astronomical prices. As previously noted, before the movie came out, the other characters' first appearances from the movie, including Groot (Tales to Astonish #13), Gamora (Strange Tales #180), Ronan the Accuser (Fantastic Four #65) and even Nebula from the relatively modern book, Avengers #257 from 1985, all rose in price dramatically. Also experiencing higher than usual collector demand were Nova #1 (1976) and even Captain America Vol. 1 #217 – the first appearance of Quasar, both characters of whom rumor prophesied were going to make an appearance in the movie. Then on August 1st, 2014, the GOTG movie opened nationwide to phenomenal success and even critical acclaim.

The breakout stars of the movie turned out to be Groot and Rocket Raccoon! Even “civilians” (non-comic book readers) fell in love with Groot, which in turn lead to strong demand for both those characters' first appearances and Trade Paperbacks. As we now know, neither Nova nor Quasar appeared in the movie, but the Nova Corps did have a significant role and as such, yet another issue became highly desirable to collectors: Fantastic Four #204 – the first appearance of the Nova Corps.

Torpedo Comics' first show after the release of the GOTG movie was Wizard World Chicago and I made it my mission to search out all copies of the aforementioned issues. I looked through every back-issue box from every dealer with comics and guess what? Yes, you guessed it – all the copies were gone. Later I saw a single dealer with ten copies on his wall, all priced at $10 each. Perhaps the biggest surprise for fans was the brief appearance of Howard the Duck in the small scene at the end of the movie, which of course set off another wave of demand, this time for Fear #19 – Howard's first appearance from 1973. Finally, the last key issue to get a boost from the movie was perhaps the most obvious of all – the GOTG issue #1 from 2008, the actual issue that features the GOTG as they appeared in the movie. This book currently sells from $75 to $100 in NM- 9.2 condition (raw) with CGC 9.8 copies currently averaging $350 to $400.

As of writing, fan demand for all the comics mentioned above still continues, with Groot and Rocket Raccoon's first appearances being top dogs at the moment, with the first Star-Lord a close second. What is also interesting is the frenzy caused by the brief Guardians of the Galaxy clip at the end of Thor: The Dark World from 2013, where if one looks very closely, one can see a cocoon – yes, I'm talking about Warlock's cocoon. Copies of Fantastic Four #66-67 and Thor #165-166 have been in high demand, as once again, there is a general consensus amongst comics fandom that if we have Thanos running around the cinematic universe, surely Warlock can't be far behind.

While the summer madness of the GOTG movie begins to die down, it seems Marvel is not content to slow down and have recently (a week before I sat down to write this report) released a preview of the next Avengers movie – Age of Ultron as well as announcing a slew of new projects. Marvel made the announcement via Marvel Studios President, Kevin Feige, that Phase Three of Marvel's cinematic onslaught would feature the following: Captain America: Civil War (May 6, 2016), Doctor Strange (November 4, 2016), Guardians of the Galaxy 2 (May 5, 2017), Thor: Ragnarok (November 3, 2017), Black Panther (July 6, 2018), Avengers: Infinity War Part 1 (May 4, 2018), Captain Marvel (November 2, 2018), The Inhumans (July 12, 2019) and finally, Avengers: Infinity War part 2 (May 3, 2019). As if these movies were not enough, other super-hero movies from the Marvel Universe include: Fantastic Four (June 19, 2015), Ant-Man (July 17, 2015), Deadpool (Feb 12, 2016), X-Men: Apocalypse (May 27, 2016), and Wolverine 2 (2017).

Okay, what about DC Comics? At the Wizard World show in Chicago (August) I was asked numerous times for a specific Silver Age DC key issue – the first appearance of the Justice League of America from Brave and the Bold #28 (1960). Out of all the various DC Silver Age keys, this is the book that is in demand, and the reason? Yes, you guessed again – rumors of a Justice League movie! The collectors/speculators asking for this book know what they are getting themselves into, they know just how hard this book is to find in any condition above FN. Also at the Chicago show I was asked again and again for copies of the first Deathstroke – in New Teen Titans #2. I was curious as to why, until a fellow dealer told me about the Arrow network television show on the WB network, apparently Deathstroke is in demand once again, after years of mediocre sales. Talking of demand, there may be more to come, since DC announced their own movie schedule a week before Marvel did, and quite a schedule it is: Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice (2016), followed by Suicide Squad (2016), Wonder Woman and Justice League Part 1 (both in 2017), The Flash and Aquaman (both in 2018), Shazam and Justice League Part 2 (both in 2019) and finally, Cyborg and Green Lantern (both in 2020)... phew! As of writing, these developments are very new and as such, apart from the Justice League's first appearance, we have not had many requests for DC books related to their movie schedule. We have had a few requests for the first Constantine from Swamp Thing #37, but nothing specific from the new Flash series or the Gotham show on Fox.

Returning to Marvel again, and that massive list of future movies, key issues on the rise are the first appearance of Scott Lang as Ant-Man in Marvel Premiere #47, the first appearance of the Black Panther from Fantastic Four #52, the first appearance of Doctor Strange from Strange Tales #110, the first appearance of the Inhumans from Fantastic Four #45 and perhaps the hottest back issue today, the first appearance of Carol Danvers (Ms. Marvel/Captain Marvel) from Marvel Super-Heroes #13. Going back over the last few months, we have noticed a rise in demand for a number of Doctor Strange books, including Doctor Strange #169, Marvel Premiere #3 (re-intro Doctor Strange) as well as Doctor Strange #1 from 1974. This has been most refreshing, since for years, the Doctor's back-issue sales have been pedestrian to say the least. Regarding Black Panther, the Jungle Action series from the 1970s has increased in sales, especially #5,6 and 8. Marvel Feature #4 (re-intro Ant-Man) has also been getting requests, which is astonishing considering a few years ago the entire Ant-Man run in Marvel Feature was always seen in discount bins. For the modern dealer, the Civil War crossover is blazing hot once again. Another oddity at the moment is the amount of Infinity War sets (#1-6) that are being sold on eBay at this time of writing. I think amateur dealers on eBay are taking quite a leap here, thinking that the six issue series written by Jim Starlin back in 1992, will have any bearing on the Avengers: Infinity War parts 1 or 2.

San Diego Comic Con Report July 2014: To begin, we started off the show with some great news: after years of trying, TORPEDO COMICS finally made it to the Gold & Silver section of the floor, located at Booth #1000. It's a nice spot and after setting up the booth on the Tuesday, both John and I were anxious and excited to see the customer response to our new location. We did not have to wait long, as attendees poured into the convention for Preview Night on Wednesday. After an hour, we had received numerous questions regarding certain key high-grade books on our wall, however, no one was looking in the THIRTY BOXES of high grade Silver/Bronze and early 1980s comics. On the first night we had many requests for Incredible Hulk #1 (which we did not have) and requests to look at our three copies of Amazing Fantasy #15. We immediately sold a Daredevil #1 CGC 8.0 to a fellow dealer and then another customer put a Fantastic Four #48 CGC 9.8 and an Iron Man #55 CGC 9.8 on hold with a deposit. The night ended with more questions regarding Brave and the Bold #28 (1st JLA), which we did not have as well as Amazing Spider-Man #121,122 and issue #50 (all of which we did not have). A few customers and dealers browsed through the back-issue boxes, but no real sales – odd indeed.

The Overstreet crew finally arrived with the new Guide later in the night, and it was a real pleasure to speak with Mark Huesman and J.C Vaughn, two gentlemen that have been receiving my additions to the 44th edition of the Guide. Over the last nine months I have been sending in detailed additions to the listings for Amazing Spider-Man, Avengers, Captain America, Iron Man, Nova and Thor and it was a great personal thrill for me to actually see my work accepted for the Guide – on a personal level this was the highlight of the show for me. There will be plenty more to come guys, just wait and see.

Thursday was the day that I was expecting customers to finally look through our back-issue boxes. I was especially intrigued with a collection of modern Batman I had put in the boxes, covering issues #295-429, this was a true high grade set. We have never really placed 1980s product in our box selection before, due to the lower price point of the usual 1980s material, however with most of the conditions being NM 9.4 or even NM+ 9.6, I priced each copy accordingly. The first book to be plucked out of this run was issue #357 (1st Jason Todd), priced at $35 in 9.2 in the 43rd edition of the Guide, I had a nice 9.4 copy, with bone white pages – the sticker being $75. The customer smiled at me, took a breath and said “Thank you”. He handed over the $75 with no questions asked. I noticed this book went up to $50 in 9.2 in the new Guide. Then it was as if the floodgates opened. I sold issue #366 (1st Jason Todd as Robin) in 9.4 for $60, then issue #367 (Jason in green costume) in 9.4 for $50. Issue #400 in 9.4 sold for $75, issue #404 (Miller Year One) in 9.6 sold for $60, #426 (Death in the family) in 9.4 sold for $50 and issue #428 (death of Jason Todd) sold for $50 in 9.2!

This is not to say that only key books were selling, some customers would pull out ten books at a time, with issues in the early #300s being $15 in the Guide at 9.2, but moving easily at $25 in 9.4 and $35 in 9.6. The trick to selling this type of material is of course, being extremely tight with your grading. I had customers examining some issues for 5 minutes, trying to find flaws – once they were satisfied, they pulled out the cash – I was never asked for a discount by any of the customers regarding these Batman books.

Friday was more of the same, with many questions regarding the keys and more Batman being sold, but we did sell a X-Men #14 CGC 7.0 for $400 and issue #56 in CGC 9.4 for $500 one after another. Throughout the day, the boxes began to get more and more attention, selling some DC Romance books to a collector from France, and then a massive sale of Justice league of America issues, both from the wall and the boxes. A well-known television auctioneer pulled the books and he used an especially keen eye to peruse the books, but if he was satisfied with the condition – he took it. He purchased almost seventy-issues between issue #2 and #125, spending over $1500, now that’s what I call a sale. I sold a nice (raw) 9.0 copy of Avengers #100 for $200 and a raw 8.5 copy of issue #93 (classic Neal Adams) for $175. Note that this book Guided at $120. Another gentleman pulled out issues #170-176 of Doctor Strange (Ha! Remember when that title was colder than a block of ice!) And finally right at the end of the night we sold a CGC 9.8 copy of the Inhumans (1975) issue #1 for $300.

Saturday was the day – the day when the bulk of collecting attendees finally came to the convention, and they had cash to spend. We sold all sorts of common box titles, like Aquaman, Action, Adventure Comics, Marvel Team-Up, Brave and the Bold and even some Challengers of the Unknown. The Avengers sold well, with issues featuring Ultron or Vision being requested all the time, we sold some nice high grade Hulk’s in the #110-124 range, as well as more of those wonderful 1980s Batman. The customer who had put some big books on hold on Wednesday returned, picking up Avengers #55 CGC 6.0 ($300), Fantastic Four #48 CGC 9.8 ($13,000) and Iron Man #55 CGC 9.8 ($5500). Another customer picked up a Batman #100 in CGC 4.0 for $600, then decided to pick up issue #200 in CGC 8.5 for $200. There were moments during the day when it seemed as if the customers did not stop pulling books, three or four books here and there, each sale totaling about $100 – a very satisfying feeling, especially when one takes into consideration that between November of 2013 and June of 2014, we spend over $100,000 on back-issues.

Regarding Sunday’s sales, the box books sold well, with one dealer purchasing a magazine box full of low-value high-grade books for about $2200, as well as two copies of Amazing Spider-Man #129, both being CGC, an 8.0 for $800 and a nice 9.0 for $950. We also sold a Green Lantern #85 CGC 9.4 for $500. We purchased a low-grade Amazing Fantasy #15 as well as a nice dealer purchase, which included an Avengers #1 CGC 6.0 and a Fantastic Four #10 CGC 8.0 which both sold right away.

In conclusion, the new booth location really helped us, both in terms of selling and purchasing. As customers begin to realize that we are a permanent fixture at Booth #1000, we hope to cultivate a whole new customer base, hopefully replacing those who do not come to San Diego anymore, due to the madness of the biggest comic convention in the world.

WizardWorld Chicago Aug. 21-24, 2014: While setting up for the show, I kept on having the same term go through my head again and again – ‘Old School’. I quickly came to the conclusion that this show was a throwback to years gone by. I saw hundreds of small vehicles unloading private collections alongside larger dealers bringing in box after box of comics – thousands of them! I knew immediately that we were going to be dealing with a far different show than C2E2 (from April). The first preview day, opening with the usual dealer sales, we sold raw copies of Amazing Spider-Man #101,121,122 and #129 – the usual suspects, followed by Marvel Team-Up #1 and Marvel Spotlight #5. Our first CGC sale was an Amazing Fantasy #15 3.0 for $8500. What became apparent right away was the lack of attention our back-issue boxes were getting, curious, I began to walk the floor and saw various feeding frenzies around certain local dealers who were having fire sales. I immediately joined the throng of dealers in the frenzy, picking up what I could while rubbing shoulders with frantic-eyed dealers who bounced from box to box with obvious fervor. The first day came to an end with one final sale for us, a Vampirella #1 signature series CGC 7.0 for $1200, but being honest, although both John and I were happy about some of the wall books selling, we were disappointed that our box books were completely ignored.

Day two opened in the same fashion. Customers seemed oblivious to our box books, and more often than not, asked about Golden Age material (of which we have little). The customer base that did eventually start going through our back-issue bins was the strictest I have ever come across, with some collectors, pouring over $30 books for ten minutes, their eyes boring into the issue looking for the slightest hint of a flaw. I must admit I was flabbergasted by the amount of books being put back after inspection – this was a tough crowd indeed. A perfect example of this was a collector who looked through hundreds of back issues, opening them up, pouring over each issue with his eyes so close to the comic that it seemed that he wanted to “become one with the comic” before putting each back. After looking at the wall books he told us that he really liked our grading and picked up one book (before bringing the book back later saying that he had found a flaw!!!)

I was expecting something different with Saturday’s crowds, but amazingly most of the customers were looking for Golden Age books – all sorts of Golden Age titles. Other dealers I know that specialize in Golden Age comics were doing very well, as the local comic collectors in that part of Chicago were obviously still trying to fill in runs of pre-Silver Age material, something that I have not experienced on the West Coast. We did have numerous customers looking at our high-grade pre-hero Marvels and after a few hours and many minutes of tough negotiating, we sold three CGCs issues – a tough show indeed!

To sum up, I would have to say that this show was a slight disappointment, but we will be returning, possibly with some new ideas, so let’s see what happens in 2015.

Salt Lake Comic Con Sept. 4-6, 2014: This was without a doubt, the strangest comic show I have ever attended. Although it was listed as “Comic con,” there were few comic dealers and the diversity of product being sold or shown off for free from the numerous booths was a little odd. For example, we were directly across from a reptile house, allowing people to have pictures taken with snakes and lizards. The crowd came to the show for all manner of reasons, but comics were not a high priority. We were looked at like a curiosity, with people remarking that they had never seen old comics for sale before, as they rushed off to see the car insurance booth.

eBay Sales: Torpedo Comics only sells CGC copies online. We have had numerous problems selling raw copies in the past and as such, in an attempt to lessen the arrival of more grey hairs, we use the “Buy-it-Now” format for CGC comics. Below is a list of sales since our last report in the Overstreet Comic Book Marketplace Year Book a few months ago:

Amazing Adventures #6 CGC 8.0 $1200

X-Men #95 CGC 8.5 $150

General Industry Trends & Observations: One of the most enjoyable annual trends I have after each San Diego Comic Con is going through the Market Report section of each new Guide while flying back from San Diego to Las Vegas. With the Guide being released at the show, this is the first time that I can actually read in peace. I always find it fascinating to see what other dealers and collectors are commenting on, and some the comments for 2013 from a diverse group of reporters certainly hit the mark in my opinion.

For me, the reports noting that collectors seemed single-minded in their quest to collect keys only, at the expense of issue runs validated my own concerns. With the release of the movie schedules of both Marvel and DC currently fresh in collectors, speculators and investors minds, I expect this trend not only to continue, but also to explode to new levels. A recent sale of a Ms. Marvel #1 (1977) graded at CGC 9.8 (Signature Series) sold for over $3000! A few years ago, NM copies of this book could be had for $10. The “new normal” as I like to call it has forced Torpedo Comics to slow down purchasing runs of books and instead concentrate on purchasing keys – from other dealers if need be. The net result of this is higher and higher prices, as certain key books are purchased before conventions are open to the public, leaving this new breed of “collector” horrified to see some of the prices being quoted.

Silver Age Trends: For us the most requested Silver Age books are Amazing Fantasy #15, Incredible Hulk #1 and Brave and the Bold #28. We have sold numerous copies of Amazing Fantasy #15 in low grade, while copies of Incredible Hulk #1 seem to have disappeared of the face of the Earth. The ONLY copies available to us regarding Brave and the Bold #28 are low-grade copies, with customers happy to have a 4.0 (VG) condition. Over recent years I’ve read time and time again that the economy is getting better and for some it is, however, for the larger middle class demographic, spending $10,000 on a comic is simply not an option, thus the low grade key market is going through a mini-boom.

Middle-income collectors are attempting to join the “Silver Age key party,” even if they have to join at the lowest grade available, case in point, a good condition (2.0) copy of Amazing Fantasy #15, guided at $1300 in 2004, $2400 in 2009, $3700 in 2013 and currently Guides at $4000 – a major financial outlay for the “regular” collector or someone who earns approximately $40,000-60,000 thousand a year, with family responsibilities. This demographic of Silver Age collectors has now been priced out of most medium condition (6.0-7.0) keys and so there is a scramble to get a low grade copies, before even those prices outpace the ability to pay. We have no problem selling raw low-grade keys, especially around the 2.0 or 3.0 grade – demand is high, with most of these copies being purchased by other dealers (in our experience).

I would be remiss if I did not mention the impact reprinted Silver Age material has had on the market. Today, fans of Silver Age Marvel and DC have numerous options in regards to formats and price-points, be it, low-cost black & white “essentials” or Showcase editions, to mid-range Marvel Masterworks or DC Archives, all the way up to deluxe omnibus editions. If one wants to actually read 1960s super-hero Marvel and DC material, the current reader no longer has to purchase low-grade “beaters”, or even mid-grade “reader” copies, thus this market has basically disappeared for most dealers unless they specialize in blowing out heavily discounted material at conventions. We take between thirty to thirty-five long boxes of Silver and Bronze Age comics to conventions, totaling approximately 6000 to 7000 comics (we have 3-boards per issue, thus the lower issue count) and John and I have agreed upon a specific grade that is acceptable for us – that being VF (8.0) and above, for common issues circa 1966-70, with the best condition we have available (at the time) for pre-1966 issues. Customers who want low-grade common Silver Age are usually taken over to our trade paperback section, which contains numerous (affordable) trades or hardcovers, making everyone happy. Note – it has recently come to my attention that the Essential reprint series may have come to an end, being replaced by Marvel’s ‘Epic Collections’ – full color trades, at double the cover price. For those on an extreme budget, the black and white Essentials were perfect for those who were able to stomach a lack of color in their reading, maybe some of the Essential editions will become collectible.

Every era (from Silver to Modern Age) of comics has been impacted by the recent spate of movies, television shows and rumors thereof, in fact, no serious dealer can be without the following key issues: Amazing Spider-Man #41 (1st Rhino), Avengers #28 (1st Collector), #55 (1st Ultron), #57 (1st Vision), Brave and the Bold #28 (1st Justice League of America), Captain America #117 (1st Falcon), Fantastic Four #45 (1st Inhumans), #52 (1st Black Panther), #66-67 (1st ‘Him’ or Warlock), Marvel Super-Heroes #13 (1st Carol Danvers – or Ms. Marvel and currently the new Captain Marvel), #18 (1st Guardians of the Galaxy), Sgt. Fury #5 (1st Baron Strucker), Strange Tales #110 (1st Doctor Strange), Superman’s Pal Jimmy Olsen #134 (1st Darkseid), Tales to Astonish #13 (1st Groot), Thor #165-166 (Warlock appearances), X-Men #4 (1st Quicksilver and Scarlet Witch), and finally X-Men #14 (1st Sentinels). If I were to pick the hottest book out of the aforementioned list, it would be Tales to Astonish #13, originally published in 1960 and always a tough book to find over VG (4.0) condition, this book was affordable for five minutes after news of the Guardians movie hit. If one looks at the GPA history of this book, a NM-9.2 copy sold in November 2012 for $2868, compare that price with a FN 6.0 sale this year of $3440! This book is going nowhere but up, especially considering that Groot turned out to be the breakout star of the movie.

As of writing (November) the heat around early Carol Danvers appearances is going through the roof as rumors of a movie appearance have just been confirmed, creating further demand for her first appearance in Marvel Super-Heroes #13, however the real collector heat for Carol (or the new Captain Marvel) is not in the Silver Age, but rather the Bronze Age where, Ms. Marvel #1, is breaking records – more on this in the Bronze Age section. The hottest Silver Age book not currently being impacted by movie rumors must be Detective Comics #359 – the first appearance and origin of the Barbara Gordon version of Batgirl (from 1967). This book currently Guides in $1200 in NM- 9.2 condition, however, I know that this book would sell for over $2000 in raw 9.2 condition in a heartbeat – probably to another dealer.

Regarding other DC Silver Age keys, or hot books in general, the Batman books dominate collectors want-lists at this time, with icon titles such as Action Comics, Adventure Comics, Green Lantern, Hawkman and even Justice League (at the moment) currently taking second stage (although San Diego Comic-Con was the exception). Other titles such as Doom Patrol, Superman’s Girlfriend Lois Lane and World’s Finest just seem to “sit”, as they say – waiting for that odd customer who needs a few issues to complete a run. Certain Batman related keys are another story, with Batman #121

– the 1st appearance of Mr. Zero (Freeze) from 1959, #155 – the 1st Silver Age Penguin (1963), #171 – 1st Silver Age Riddler (1965), #181 – 1st Poison Ivy (1966) and #189 – the 1st Silver Age Scarecrow all in demand. Over in Detective, the current hot keys are: #359 – as previously mentioned, #370 – 1st Neal Adams Batman cover (1967), and #371 – 1st new Batmobile from the TV show.

What I find quite fascinating concerning DC's Silver Age keys, is the lack of heat generated by either the Green Lantern movie, or the Flash TV show regarding the key appearances for both characters. Green Lantern sales have been pedestrian to say the least, a far cry from the modern back-issue sales of the contemporary title. Once again, I put this down to a lack of connection between contemporary DC Universe readers and the Silver Age material – stories that have NO relevance to modern continuity and as such, exist only in the collective memory of those who were there – a readership that is diminishing every year. Compare that scenario to that of Marvel Comics, a company that as of writing (although I hear rumblings) has not rebooted their entire universe, a fictional universe that has HISTORY and relevance to the contemporary Marvel reader. If a reader is so disposed, they can track Ultron's various appearances back from current issues, through the 1980s, 1970s and even to the characters inception in 1968. The benefits of this one-long stream of unbroken history are obvious.

In reference to regular common Silver Age Marvel titles, Amazing Spider-Man sales have slowed, obviously due to the rather high price point, the Fantastic Four is picking up after a few years of stagnant (and mediocre movies), sales, the Avengers issues between issues #13-40 have picked up after years of collector apathy, while issues #41-70 are hot as blazes, especially issue #67-68 (Ultron appearances). Iron Man and Thor issues has slowed a little, while Incredible Hulk sales have increased and the once dormant back-issue bin "squatters" known as Doctor Strange are selling well, a result of rather low Guide prices and of course, the news of a future movie! Another slow selling title, Captain Marvel has picked up a little while Tales to Astonish, Tales of Suspense and Strange Tales are going through a sluggish period. In conclusion, the Silver Age market continues to stretch out, the gap between the high-grade keys and the common collector growing ever further, forcing a new normal – the era of the low-grade (raw) key.

Bronze Age Trends: Similar to the Silver Age report, comics of the 1970s are dominated by movie related sales, the recipient of all this attention being Marvel Comics. Like a hoard of ravening ants, collectors, speculators and investors are pouring large amounts of money into certain Bronze Age keys, while IGNORING everything else. This obviously opens a window of opportunity for those that are collecting runs of 1970s material as some dealers spread themselves too thin in an attempt to chase keys, resulting in discounts of common books.

Summer is becoming a distant memory, but the release of the GOTG movie still resonates today, with prices holding firm of the keys created by the aforementioned movie:

Incredible Hulk #271, Marvel Preview #4 and #7, Strange Tales #180, including "rumor keys" such Nova #1 from 1976 and even Captain America #217 – the 1st appearance of Marvel Man (later Quasar) whom fandom believes will make an appearance in a future GOTG movie. We sold a CGC NM 9.4 copy of Nova #1 for $150, and a low-grade raw copy of Strange Tales #180 for $42. As mentioned in the opening section of this report, Marvel has announced a host of new movies and this has of course, resulted in raised demand for each character related to the announced movie. The Doctor Strange movie has created demand for Marvel Premiere #3 and Doctor Strange #1 (1974), the Ant-Man movie has sparked interest in Marvel Feature #4 and more explosively in Marvel Premiere #47. The Captain Marvel movie (Carol Danvers, not Mar-Vell) has sparked perhaps the most voracious demand in recent history, with sales of Ms. Marvel #1 reaching astronomical levels – a real boon for those long-in-the-tooth dealers who still have their bundles from back in the day. With CGC 9.8 copies closing in on $3000, the raw NM- 9.2 price of $100 in the Guide is going to have to be increased dramatically – perhaps up to $300. The interesting collecting aspect of the Ms. Marvel title, opposed to that of Nova, is the demand for all 23 issues of the 1970s Ms. Marvel series, while currently only Nova #1 seems to have any demand out of Nova's 25 issues. Seeking to expand their exposure to even wider audiences, Marvel announced a deal with Netflix, with a proposal for four series, comprising of sixty episodes – the characters being: Daredevil, Jessica Jones (Alias), and Power Man and Iron Fist. Currently Daredevil's issues have seen no rise in demand, but Power Man's first appearance in Hero For Hire #1 (1972) is scorching hot, with no one selling this issue close to Guide, as evidenced by us selling a CGC 8.5 copy for $450, a book that Guides at $103 in VF. Luke Cage's erstwhile partner, Iron Fist's first appearance in Marvel Premiere #15 (1974) has also exploded in demand, currently commanding $400 in (raw) NM- 9.2, a 9.8 copy will cost you over $2000, not bad for an issue that Guides at $225 in NM- 9.2.

When you combine the aforementioned movie related 1970s keys to Marvel's blue chip keys such as Amazing Spider-Man #101, 121, 122, 129 and now #194 – the 1st Black Cat, Daredevil #158, Ghost Rider #1, Incredible Hulk #181, Iron Man #55, Marvel Feature #1, Marvel Premiere #1, Marvel Spotlight #2 and 5, Marvel Team-Up #1, Tomb of Dracula #1 and #10, X-Men #94 and Giant-Size X-Men #1, this is an overwhelming amount of key issues. Any dealer that has these books on display on the wall at the same time will have a good show – collectors can't seem to get enough of Marvel's Bronze Age keys. But what about DC? Well, unless you are talking about a Neal Adams book, Batman, Detective, Green Lantern (by Adams) or House of Secrets #92 – the 1st Swamp Thing, DC's Bronze Age looks rather dismal. Once again, I hate to harp on about current DC readers having no ties to 1970s DC stories, but in my opinion, the evidence is mounting, as evidenced by back-issues just sitting in bins (even after discounts). DC's recent movie schedule announcement is beginning to waken the speculators, most of whom have already jumped on Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #134 – the 1st Darkseid (1970) and a further minor appearance in issue #135, as well as Forever People #1 and New Gods #1.

1980s Trends: Dealers selling comics published during this era have labored under the presumption that everything is available in MINT, a theory that may have been true in 1990, but as I sit here writing this report in 2014, I can attest to the fact that high-grade (NM and above) 1980s are not as common as dealers and collectors believe. How can I make such a claim? Experience, personal experience in purchasing and sorting through hundreds of thousands of 1980s comics from 2000 through 2010. It has been my experience that warehouse copies, or over-stock purchases from well established stores are 90% FN/VE, with the usual defects of the given grade being creased spines, caused by years of sitting in boxes without the support of backing boards. I have come across thousands of boxes containing 1980s product, the first thing that struck me about 90% of these purchases was the lack of care and attention given to 1980s product, often stacked in such a way to actually cause damages to the comics, especially, if the books were stored in long-comic boxes. The most common defect of the comics I have found from 1980s warehouse finds has been a large crease in the center of the spine, usually located between the staples, a major defect caused by the books sagging due to gravity when a box has not been filled completely. Another defect of these warehouse finds is usually browning of the pages and dust, especially on the top of the comics, a flaw caused by storing comics without lids.

What's the point of all this elucidating? Just the fact that in recent years, the real high-grade 1980s books we have purchased have been from collectors who took care of their books back in the day, using all the protective tools (bags/boards/mylars) at their disposal. The 1980s Batman collection we picked up before the San Diego con was exceptional, clean books that had amazing eye appeal (as noted in the convention report for the aforementioned show) and sold very well to appreciative customers. Finding true NM or above copies of early 1980s (1980-83) issues is getting harder every year, while supply increases with issues from 1984-85, and increases again from 1986-87, with issues from 1988 being far more plentiful. There are anomalies to this statement of course, the best example being Fantastic Four issues published from 1981 through 1983 which are plentiful in high grade as they were heavily ordered both by dealers and collectors at the time, while NM or above copies of Batman, Detective, Incredible Hulk and even Captain America from 1980-1983 are in far less supply.

In terms of most expensive and requested books of this era, the top issue is published by neither Marvel or DC, yes I'm talking about Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1, the 1st print of which, in CGC 9.8 condition currently sells in excess of $14,000! This book was always scarce, but in recent years the truth about just how hard these issues are to find in high-grade has caused demand to explode, especially on a franchise that just keeps going and going (as witnessed by yet another TMNT movie this year). Perhaps even hotter than TMNT #1, this year has been Incredible Hulk #271 – the 1st Marvel Universe appearance of Rocket Raccoon, a book that now commands over $400 in CGC 9.8 condition, a price that may remain high with Rocket's overwhelmingly successful appearance in the GOTG – have I mentioned that movie before in this report?!!

Rocket Raccoon's Marvel Universe debut in Incredible Hulk #271 is hot.

Seemingly out of nowhere, request for Amazing Spider-Man #238 – the 1st appearance of Hobgoblin, have burgeoned, even without the benefit of a major motion picture behind it, demand continues, so much so that we were able to sell a FN copy for $50 (Guide price being $21). We did not have any high-grade copies, so I asked around in the hope of fulfilling some customer requests, only to find prices have doubled, with raw NM- copies selling for over $200 (Guide price in NM- currently $135). Black-costume Spider-Man issues are once again hot again, especially Amazing Spider-Man #252 and Marvel Super-Hero Secret Wars #8, with the perennial Amazing Spider-Man #300 still the highest value Amazing Spider-Man issue of the 1980s. We have sold three VF copies for $150 each (Guide price being $100) and we sold a CGC 9.8 copy for $960. Marvel's other hot 1980s books are: Avengers #257 – 1st Nebula from the Guardians of the Galaxy movie, Captain America #241 and Annual #8 – Punisher and Wolverine appearances, Daredevil #168 – 1st Elektra, Ghost Rider #81 – last issue, G.I. Joe #1,2 and #21 – the silent issue, Incredible Hulk #330, 331 – McFarlane issues, #340 – Hulk vs. Wolverine, Punisher limited series #1, Savage She-Hulk #1, Spectacular Spider-Man #64 – 1st Cloak and Dagger, #90 – black costume appearance, Thor #337 – 1st Beta Ray Bill and #344 – 1st Malekith, Wolverine #1-4 (limited series) #1 (1989), X-Factor #6 – 1st full Apocalypse, X-Men #141-142 – Days of Future Past issues, #244 – 1st Jubilee and #248 – 1st Jim Lee.

Concerning DC Comics' 1980s output, the key issues are currently: Batman #357 – 1st Jason Todd, #366 – 1st Jason Todd in Robin costume, #368 – 1st new Robin (Jason Todd), #400 – anniversary issue, #404-407 – Year One by Frank Miller, #426-429 – Death in the Family issues, Batman The Dark Knight Returns #1, Batman The Killing Joke (first print), Crisis on Infinite Earths #7 – death of Supergirl, #8 – death of Flash (Barry Allen), DC Comics Presents #26 – 1st New Teen Titans, #47 – 1st He-Man in comics, Detective Comics #575-578 – Year Two, Fury of Firestorm #61 – Test cover, Hellblazer #1, Justice League #3 – limited yellow-cover version, Legion of Super-Heroes (1984 series) #37,38 – Death of Superboy, New Teen Titans #2 – 1st Deathstroke, Omega Men #3 – 1st Lobo, Saga of the Swamp

Thing #20 – 1st Alan Moore issue, #21 – new origin issue, 25 – 1st brief appearance of John Constantine, #37 – 1st full Constantine, Sandman #1 (Neil Gaiman), #8 – 1st Death, #8 – limited edition and finally, Tales of the New Teen Titans #44 – Dick Grayson becomes Nightwing.

From the above-mentioned DC books, the hottest issues are New Teen Titans #2, Saga of the Swamp Thing #37 and Tales of the New Teen Titans #44, all of which are related to television exposure, or rumors of a movie. Compared to its 1970s back-issues, DC's 1980s product fares much better, with further sales on perennial favorites like Watchmen adding to DC's "clout" during this decade, all the more impressive when one considers DC's impressive trade paperback sales as well.

Talking about trades, and specifically their impact on 1980s back-issue sales, in the past, only the perceived top stories of the era were collected and reprinted in trade format, but it seems as if Marvel and DC are beginning to mine their rich 1980s history, just as they have done with the previous decades of material. Marvel in particular, have learned that their Marvel Masterworks deluxe hardcovers are a little pricy for more modern stories, with the hardcovers now at $75 a pop, it seems unlikely that Marvel will continue using the same format for lower value material. Enter – Marvel's "Epic Collections," featuring approximately five hundred full color pages for $39.99 (usually 18 or 19 individual stories), with the promise of collecting entire runs, not just trades specific to artists. In my opinion, only high-grade (NM or above) issues will be in demand from collectors of 1980s material, as once can clearly see, why purchase lower grade 1980s copies that will accrue very little actual value, when one can pick up a nice trade? Those collectors who have been searching out the 9.6s or 9.8s will have a collection to envy in a few years, while some will have a bookcase full of trades.

1990s Trends: For those of us who were dealers back in the 1990s, what more is left to say about this record-breaking decade? Record amounts of new stores, record numbers for new publishers, record smashing print runs, record amounts of money pouring into the industry, which in turn created instant millionaires, those were the days eh! Oh... but then came the mass exodus of "collectors," the severe downturn of the industry, publishers falling by the wayside and a host of title cancellations and lower print runs. So from the above paragraph one can see that there was a definite boom and bust to the 1990s, a decade that was written-off by dealers and fans as a 'lost' decade, where nothing of consequence was published and where mountains of comics still fill warehouses and storage locations. To some extent, that notion is correct, but as of 2014, collectors are beginning to look back at the 1990s with a less caustic eye and some comics have now become key issues to a whole new generation of collectors – many of whom were not actually there at the time.

Before I get into the minutia of the decade, I want to identify the actual time periods of boom and bust. For me the speculator era began with the publication of Todd McFarlane's Spider-Man #1 in the summer of 1990 and ended in the summer of 1994, with the mass cancellation of a host of both Marvel and DC titles. Print runs at Marvel dropped significantly at Marvel throughout 1994, less so for DC Comics, who seemed to be faring better, but by 1995, print runs dropped even further leading to Marvel making the controversial decision to cancel some of their icon titles and have them reinterpreted by Image "super-stars" Jim Lee and Rob Liefeld, the so-called Heroes Reborn (1996) publishing initiative. Sales stabilized in 1998, but still continued with a slight downward path, causing yet more comic stores to close by the end of the decade. So there we have, a brief explanation of how some issues published in the 1990s are not as common as one thinks, it just depends on what time period one is talking about when one considers the 1990s.

Amazingly, the hottest 1990s back-issue is still New Mutants #98 – the 1st appearance of Deadpool (from 1991), a book that EVERYONE knows has a massive print-run but still remains a strong seller due to insane demand – this is the modern generation's Incredible Hulk #181. Uncanny X-Men #266 1st Gambit (1990) is still a good seller at $100 in raw NM- condition. Surprise of the year must be the increase in demand of Amazing Spider-Man #361 1st full Carnage appearance, a book that currently Guides at $30 in NM- condition, but easily sells for $100 in raw NM- shape. I have had multiple requests for this book, an issue I was under the impression everyone already owned. We sold a CGC 9.8 copy at a convention for $300! Leaving us currently out of stock on this item – incredible, but true.

Marvel has been hot for a few years, but I have to admit, for actual demand and customer requests, DC's Batman Adventures #12 – 1st comic book appearance of Harley Quinn has eclipsed all. This book is burning hot right now, selling way above Guide, even in lower grades (rare for a 1990s book), in fact, everything Harley is currently exploding in demand, creating instant collectors items out of Batman Adventures: Mad Love (1994) – the origin of Harley, Batman and Robin Adventures #5 (1995) and Batman: Harley Quinn (1999) – Harley's 1st DC Universe appearance featuring a stunning Alex Ross cover.

While we are on the subject of Batman, Bane's first appearance in The Vengeance of Bane #1 (1993) is still selling well, and (believe it or not) I've actually begun to sell copies of Batman #497 (1993) – the breaking of the Bat issue! 1990s copies of Catwoman, Birds of Prey and Nightwing are all selling well but perhaps the biggest shock of the year must be the demand for Superman: The Man of Steel #17 and #18 – 1st appearances of Doomsday! Who would have guessed that? All we need now are requests for X-Men #1 (the Jim Lee version).

Talking of shocks, the increase in demand for Web of Spider-Man #118 – the first Scarlet Spider, seems utterly incompressible, especially when one takes into consideration the sheer amount of vitriol this character caused with fans back in the day. I was there when this book hit the racks, and Peter Parker fans were beside themselves with fury, so angry that many stopped collecting the Spidey books until Peter returned. At the Wizard World con in Chicago, I saw a raw VF/NM copy on a dealer's wall for $25 – how times have

Preacher is hot again, with issue #1 selling well at current NM- Guide price of $200, the result of the announced television show, but I expect most of the other issues to remain stable, as this series has been extensively reprinted in a number of trade paperback formats. Other DC Vertigo issues are holding their value, such as Transmetropolitan #1, Fables #1, 100 Bullets, as well as Sandman #18 and #19 (error versions from 1990). Dark Horse is represented by the first appearances of Hellboy, both in the scarce San Diego Comic Con Comics #2 issue from 1993 and John Byrne's Next Men #21 (also from 1993), but to be honest, most other publishers' material from the 1990s is quiet right now, including rare issues like Bone #1. Store back-rooms, warehouses and storage locations are still full of early 1990s product, especially Image year one titles (1993-94), Valiant titles from 1993-94, Ultraverse titles from 1993-94, Dark Horse's 'Comics Greatest World' issues, various Malibu, Harris and other countless publishers titles. For those collectors who are actively reading new material today and were not there back in the 1990s, they have a plethora of cheap reading material to choose from. Huge swaths of mainline titles such as The Avengers, Batman, Captain America, Daredevil, Fantastic Four, Ghost Rider, Incredible Hulk, Iron Man, Justice League, Legion of Super-Heroes, Silver Surfer, Teen Titans and Thor are easily available to those interested in the history of the characters.

The good aspect of this being the fact that many of the aforementioned issues are $2 each or less – a steal when one compares that to the cover price of current product ($3.99 or more!). For dealers (store owners, not convention sellers), these books can still move as back-issues, mainly due to the fact that as this time, both Marvel and DC have not unleashed the hundreds of trades that could be produced from this era. Note: DC has released a new trade format, as seen with the Batman: Knightfall, Knightquest and Knightsend books. Each trade contains 600-pages of full-color action for an unprecedented price of $29.99. DC is able to offer this low cover price due to the use of a lesser quality paper stock compared to Marvel's 'Epic Collections', which run $39.99 for approximately 400 to 450-pages.

To begin one has to note the impact of the Guardians of the Galaxy movie yet again, this time in reference to the demand for the twenty-five issue series published from 2008 through 2010. This is the series the movie is actually based upon and although most of the original heat was directed towards Marvel Super-Heroes #18 – the 1st appearance of the original (classic) Guardians from 1969, attention soon swung over to the modern series. A full run of the modern Guardians series will run you about $250 – a staggering amount when one considers that in 2010, full runs were selling for $30! In fact, Marvel's cosmic universe is once again center stage within Marvel's current readership, with titles like Nova, a new Guardians series and the Silver Surfer all back and selling well. Other hot stories published in the 2000s include the first appearance of the Winter Soldier from Captain America (5th series, 2005), the Mark Waid Daredevil series from 2011 (issue #1 is currently a $20 book), and perhaps the hardest to find Marvel back-issues of the moment, the Matt Fraction Hawkeye series, a series that came out in 2012 to little fanfare, but has exploded on the back-issue market. At this time of writing, Marvel's Civil War limited series from 2006-2007 has once again been much in demand as speculators jump on the title of the next Captain America movie – Civil War!

While DC's common back-issues from the 1960s, 1970s and even 1980s have been rather quiet, DC's ambitious publishing schedules since the early 2000s have definitely born fruit as they unleashed epic stories that rampaged through most of their line-wide titles. DC's story-driven roller-coaster ride began with the controversial Brad Meltzer penned Identity Crisis in 2004, followed by Countdown to Infinite Crisis and Infinite Crisis (both 2005), 52 (2006), Countdown to Final Crisis (2007) Final Crisis (2008), Green Lantern Blackest Night (2008), Brightest Day (2010), Flashpoint (2011) and of course the big kahuna – DC's New 52, the complete restart of the entire DC Universe.

Harley Quinn has been the character to watch in recent months, beginning with the controversial reimaging of the character in Suicide Squad #1 from 2011, continuing with the successful New 52, Harley Quinn series (2013). Just take a look at the numerous Harley cosplayers at conventions these days, this character is exploding with a fresh customer base, expanding readership beyond the usual "boys club."

The Walking Dead series from Image remains the most sought after series, be it in original back-issue form, or via trades. The price of issue #1 seems to be stabilizing with CGC 9.8 copies selling for a little over $2000. While Image's 1990s product has a certain reputation, the Image Comics of the 2000s has proven to be a worthy competitor to both Marvel and DC Comics in the realm of ideas. Joining the mega-hit series Walking Dead (2003) is Chew (issue #1 is $400 in CGC 9.8), East of West, Invincible (issue #1 in CGC 9.8 is $350), Peter Panzerfaust (issue #1 is $200 in CGC 9.8), Saga and Thief of Thieves. With all these highly collectible issues produced since 2000, the fear mongering that built up around digital comics has proven unfounded.

In Conclusion: Torpedo Comics has had a great year, expanding both our trade paperback department and our vintage selection. We (John and I) are excited about the prospects of opening up our retail store, especially in regards to filling it with items customers will not be able to do without, as well as having a more personal “face-to-face” customer relationship. We expect great things from 2015, something I will expound upon in next year’s Overstreet market report.

John Dolmayan - Torpedo Comics

It’s been another great year buying and selling comics all across the country for Torpedo Comics. With Torpedo Comics planning a massive expansion of both our convention circuit as well as the opening of a retail store in Las Vegas, 2015 looks to be a busy year as well as a rewarding one.

Our convention year was slated to begin in March 2014 at the Emerald City Comic con, by all accounts a great show that Torpedo was excited to attend. About a month out I had an uneasy feeling and decided to confirm our space and location. To my astonishment upon calling their representative we were informed they had not received our check and application and we had no booths reserved. This was a disaster since we had already purchased non-refundable flights and had arranged for hotels and ground transportation for our massive ten booth display which includes forty thousand trade paperbacks as well as twelve thousand vintage books mostly consisting of Silver and Bronze Age books. We would have lost over twenty thousand dollars had I not made the phone call when I did. This was unfortunate but of course mistakes happen and the convention’s representative was mortified and assured us we would have space next year (2015) so we took the hit and focused on the busy year we had in front of us.

Wonder-Con in Anaheim went extremely well, as we had excellent placement and the show is attracting more and more serious LA based buyers and less of the boobs who walk around drooling at girls. Operated by the same team that runs Comic-Con (San Diego), the show just gets better in every way and is turning into a real monster of a money maker for dealers. We then went off to San Jose for Big Wow Comic Fest, this show is a pleasant surprise bringing in serious buyers and back issue collectors and is proving to be one of our best shows for back issues (great job Steve).

Home for a few days and we were off to Chicago for C2E2, terrific show with friendly staff and comic fans ready to treasure hunt. I was very impressed by the caliber of dealers that set up here and was glad to see some dear friends from the midwest and back east. Torpedo did well and spent a small fortune with other dealers as well as with customers with books to sell. Vegas being a small market has some great potential but is still in the growing phase and we are glad to support J and J as they grow the convention into the powerhouse it has the potential to be. With that being said, we did very well at the show the last two years and plan to continue to support the show going forward.

Our next show was the all powerful San Diego Comic-Con, having just moved into the Gold/Silver pavilion (Booth #1000) we noticed a nice growth in sales attributed to the fact that people probably didn’t know we were there in previous years, and we were even able to pick up a few collections from walk-in customers. Our booth is directly across from our long time friend Mike Carbonaro who keeps us entertained with stories and antics during the rare lulls in the day, and near many other dealer friends with whom we have special and long standing relationships.

After a long needed break we were off to Chicago again for Wizard World. This show attracts a number of local and midwest dealers with tons of great books. I sent Steve to purchase as many books as possible on Thursday while I manned the Silver/Bronze booth and I believe he came back Sunday afternoon with a giant grin and boxes of books. The show went by without a hitch and we had the chance to meet some great collectors and even picked up a high grade Marvel Comics #1! The one criticism I have is that people spend far too much time in lines waiting for autographs and have little to no time left to walk the floor and this has a disastrous effect on dealer sales. Peter is an excellent promoter and I’m sure he’s thinking of ways to fix this problem.

Our last show of 2014 was in Salt Lake City at the Salt Lake Comic Con, this was an interesting show in that there were almost no comic dealers. We set up our usual ten-booth set up and crossed our fingers not knowing what to expect and had a great time meeting people and even had a few walk-in collections that we purchased. Though the buyers were not out in full force we hope this show continues to grow and will happily support it.

The year went by fast and Torpedo spent over 1.4 million dollars on collections, we bought and sold some incredible books and original art and we hope to beat this number in 2015. Plans are going well for our store in Las Vegas where you will find nearly one hundred thousand new issues and trade paperbacks in stock every day, as well as twenty thousand vintage back issues and key issues from every age. We hope to craft a store that takes you back to the feeling of excitement you had walking into the comic shop you went to as a kid, and that the books we have to offer will help complete your runs and holes in your collection.

2015 will find Torpedo expanding into new markets. We plan on attending Seattle (if they have our booths), New York, Denver, Toronto, Calgary, and a few other possible conventions as well as opening our online store and first ever comic book app store. Thank you, to those of you who have been a part of the Torpedo family, and to those we have not met, we look forward to servicing your collecting needs!

JEFF ITKIN CLOUD NINE COMICS

I want to thank everybody who has taken a second out of their busy lives to read my analysis of 2014 and what my expectations are for 2015. I would also like to mention that I, Jeff Itkin (formerly of Pow Crunch Bang Comics), have merged my business with longtime friend and colleague, Ken Dyber (Cloud Nine Comics). We have big expectations for 2015 as we will be doing more shows this year than ever before, and acquiring as many great books as we can across this country as Dealers, Buyers, Collectors and Enthusiasts.

So keep an eye out for us as we will be shaking a lot of hands and kissing a lot of babies on this year's campaign trail. If you are in the Portland Oregon area, stop into our store to visit. If you are in the greater Seattle Washington area you can always reach out to me as we are now covering a larger portion of the Northwest so we may provide better service not only to our states but also Northern California, Idaho, Montana and our friends up North in Canada. I think that is enough shameless promoting of Cloud Nine Comics or cloudninecomics.com and on to the Analysis....

Now that 2014 has come and gone and we are onto the next year, which is going to be another exciting one as it seems something always tends to make a large splash annually in the industry. Whether it was an Action Comics #1 selling for a record breaking $3.2 Million on eBay to the previous record holding sellers (Metropolis Comics) to a sale of an Original Interior Art page of the cameo appearance of Wolverine from Incredible Hulk #180 for $657,250.

Let's not also forget that a new grading company by the name CBCS has emerged as a serious competitor to CGC. Who doesn't love to see competition, I know I do. They seem to be quickly making their mark in the industry. It has a large following of supporters from the biggest dealers in the market place who have full confidence in its grading system, quality of holders and staff. Clearly a want and a need for another grading company is a fantastic sign of the industries continuous growth and comics' ongoing strength as a wonderful way of entertainment on the big screen and as a collectible.

Golden Age: Another great year for this era of comics is upon us. Last year was very strong in just about every Genre, except for the usual last place Westerns, Funny Animals and Tarzan books. This is an extremely fun industry to be in, but like anything, knowledge and experience is king and this statement will not ring any truer than with Golden Age. The more you know and are privy to will make the collecting and selling of GA safer, easier, more exciting, interesting and more profitable than you can imagine.

Though it was a strong year it does matter on the material that you carry for selling and buying. As a blanket statement, "Super Hero GA comics are generally the most coveted," but just about any high grade Golden Age book (except the 3 genres noted earlier) sells and sells well. This year I sold many classic Good Girl and Sci-Fi covers and not just your Phantom Lady or Planet Comics, but I had huge success getting large dollars and multiples of Guide on Fight Comics, Avons, Operation Peril, Murder Incorporated, Green Hornet, Fight Against Crime, Crime Does Not Pay, Manhunt, etc.... It didn't matter what the title was, if the comic was a VF and had a great cover, it always sold. Put a girl on the cover of a GA comic in VF condition and partner it with just 2 from this list: Lasers, Rockets, Aliens, Nazis, Bondage and Violence; and you have a recipe for a Classic Cover and a book you can turn quickly.

Key books are great but covers can be just as amazing to either sell or collect. I am also seeing a generation of younger collectors(16-28) buying books in the GA department, but they all tend to collect DC/Timely of lower grade as they are just getting comfortable and only dipping their toes in the pool that is GA collecting. I find them to be a great resource to sell the lower grade books to, as their budgets are generally $100-$300 for a book. For me this is easily the most fulfilling, exciting and fun era to collect.

Atomic Age: Often this overlooked era is just lumped into the Golden Age for convenience, but really deserves its own respect and place in the comic phylum. It has for a long time now fallen into this weird zone. where it is placed and doesn't belong and wants to just be recognized and loved. Well Atomic Age that time is now! I appreciate you and love you and so do many smart and savvy collectors.

What a great time for this era. It had strong sales last year and I foresee many years of continued growth and value and not just with the Marvel/Atlas titles, but rather DC Super Hero, Sci-Fi, Crime, War and Horror titles. This era is coming on strong with lots of time to still get in early. Atomic Age is my pick for best era to invest in for value and potential growth and gains. If you go through the Guide and really analyze the facts you see that the top 10 Romance Comics, the top 10 Sci-Fi Comics, the top 10 Horror Comics and half of the top 10 Crime comics to own all come from the Atomic Age. It also has a sort of taboo history as it brought out some of the most controversial and talked about covers in the comic industry with terrifying, explicit, and extreme violence on covers and interiors. Which eventually led to a small comic revolution and the birth of the Comics Code with newly developed guidelines and standards of what was appropriate for readership. Someone may even speculate and assume it may have been the epicenter of the ripple that began the want or need or purpose of Underground comics (this is a speculation on my part only).

Silver Age: What's there to say about it other than it's the unstoppable force in the industry. It is recognized, appreciated and respected by all age groups and everybody in the collectible hobby. The birth of Silver Age was through the DC universe with Showcase #4, with Marvel not making their splash until a good 5-6 years later. DC took the route of introducing, revamping and re-launching Golden Age favorites. You had the rebirth of the Justice League, Hawkman, Green Lantern, Aquaman and others. But the kingdom that Marvel started and built in 1961 used Strange Tales, Journey into Mystery, Tales of Suspense, Tales to Astonish and other titles to develop, refine and measure interests of a new type of Super Hero, ones never seen before.

At the moment DC Keys (except Showcase #4 and Brave and the Bold #28) don't have the value or collectability that Marvel Keys have. But things are changing. My view of the Silver Age is that it is like two parallel roads, one with a fast lane and one with a slow lane. The interesting part of these roads is that there is no passing in the fast lane or changing of lanes. Instead the journey is a long and steady one, but you know through past signs and ones in the distance the roads will be merging into one lane. It may take time, but it is inevitable and will happen. If you haven't figured it out yet, the fast lane has Marvel keys and the slower lane has DC keys. In the last year early DC Silver Age keys are on fire in all grades. Though I see no way that Marvel will ever be passed by DC, it will have its day, and the prices, interest and collectability will even out. There have been many obvious signs already with strong sales all of last year and I will guarantee strong sales in the years to come.

In the meantime, the announcement of Marvel's movie schedule for the next 10 years and the ones that already been released to screen have caused an extreme interest of key book sales of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th tier heroes and villains. This has made for an evolving market and a shift outside of just the usual standard list of keys. I do feel a breath of life has been given to the market place of collectors and fans, as well with dealers who find themselves checking their storage units for the next speculator book hoping to find the many copies of a $5 book that has jumped to $75-$300 because of an announcement, mention or speculation of a character. Then we, as the comic collective, get to take it an extra step, and buy copies of appearances of the characters siblings, pets, parents, teachers and first cars. We even get to have long discussions and deliberations of what is a cameo and what is their true first appearance. But I wouldn't have it any other way. It is a spark in the industry or a swift kick in the bottom that keeps things fresh every couple of months. These 6 books I feel will have a 3 times return on your investment in a 10 year period (assuming you buy at market value now): Amazing Fantasy #15, Hulk #1, Showcase #4, Fantastic Four #1, Brave and the Bold #28, and Adventure Comics #247. The second tier of books I have selected are equally safe bets to invest in and liquid books when the time to sell arrives. Some things are not on the list but these are my top 10 growing and easiest to sell books: Avengers #1 and #4, Fantastic Four #5, Amazing Spider-Man #1 and #3, Tales of Suspense #39, Journey into Mystery #83, Action Comics #242, Showcase #8 and X-Men #1. Many other great books as well but for the sake of the report I kept it brief.

Bronze Age: It's currently growing steam and having a lot of the same similarities as Silver Age. With the bringing of great artists and the movie market a wave through the comic universe has been created. Stay current on what's happening with the market place, announcements, and whispers around the water cooler. Check local comic shops and hit those bins hard and find your Ms. Marvel, Black Panther, Nova and Star Wars #1 issues. Also you can probably play the game pretty safely if you play the game I am just now making up, "Seven Degrees of Thanos." Basically anything to do with or tied in with Thanos in this time frame is hot. Play the game, you'll see sales and increases in prices in just about everything.

For collecting I recommend investing in copies of Amazing Spider-Man #121 and #129, Incredible Hulk #181 (don't rush but pull the trigger soon and pay fair market value because in 6 months you won't be sorry), Giant-Size X-Men #1 and Neal Adams keys and books have all had strong sales and will continue to do so as his Covers and Art work in this time frame are just incredible. We should all remember that one day Stan will call it quits and he could be the successor to the Autographing Con World, I say get in now and get in early as his stuff will only grow in value with the continued exposure to collectors of the Bronze Age. This was probably the best selling time frame for me in quantity of books as people are still filling holes in runs. There was a dip in late 2013 to late 2014, but I have begun to see scenes of a bounce-back. I am also seeing higher expectations and want, from collectors, dealers and flippers to have the books be 9.4-9.8 range when purchasing them raw or slabbed.

Copper Age: Had pretty strong sales this past year, many coming from mainstream titles but also ones from smaller publishers as there were so many in this era that made a splash in comics. The likes of Eclipse, Fantagraphics, Comico, Caliber, and Mirage etc... The books from the Copper Age are a very appealing way for a new collector to get developing keys for inexpensive prices and great reading material to boot. I feel in about 5 years there will be a more defined line and separation of Copper, Bronze and Modern as its importance and Key Books and Characters develop in the collectibles. Until then people are buying any key or number one they reasonably can in 9.8. The books in which to invest long term are New Mutants #98, Amazing Spider-Man #252, #300, Albedo #2, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 (1st print), Tales of the Teen Titans #44, X-Men #266, Marvel Super Heroes #8, Grendel #1, Primer #1, X-Factor #6 and X-Men #221. As for short term, invest in any movie tie-in for its price before the announcement.

Moderns: I love me some Modern, specifically from 2000 to the present. The innovation of writing and stories is outstanding. Don't get me wrong, a lot is still being pumped out, but boy the quality of some of it is very high. I must also give kudos and commend Image for publishing some of the most amazing stuff in the last 7+ years. With titles such as Saga, Invincible, Chew, Morning Glories, Peter Panzerfaust, Nowhere Men, Walking Dead, etc... Hits after hits. I just can't get enough and neither can their readers. This is a great era when it comes to creativity and reading material, but with speculating and buying for investment it is very difficult. This is probably the most volatile and unstable of time frames. The scariest part is that it is speculated on print runs (which is always somehow different by the source you use), incentive covers and again potential Media Announcements. One trend is buying on speculation for a TV show to be as successful as The Walking Dead. That is the great chase with Moderns right now. Catching onto the next Walking Dead. A dangerous game, we all know how difficult it is to translate a comic into a movie let alone a successful

TV series. Shows in the past year have been announced, but just as quickly dropped. Therein lies the volatile part of Modern Age speculating, when a show is dropped or the first episode stinks then that $100 book goes back to $5 and you are left invested in something that gave you no opportunity to cut your loss. Other time frames have movie announcements where years are taken and you have the time to get in and get out with gain or minimal loss. The other danger which is mostly for store owners is the tease of incentive issues to retailers who order maybe 30 of a comic to get that 1 special cover that they can sell for $75 but only 2 of the 30 issues they needed to get it. A lot of shops that just open start off taking a financial hit by the enticement of it. Some recover because of their location, but for some they don't. For long term investors I say buy a number 1 or key issue of a hot title that has had value for a few years now and has not been inflated by speculation. Short term...good luck and don't write checks your butt can't cash.

Conventions: Attendance continues to grow every year nationwide at just about every con no matter who is orchestrating it. The continuous increase in the number of conventions across the country is very important in the sustainability of comics and its continuous growth of interest. In a smaller market, the general fan and consumers experience and exposure is usually very limited. They tend to have 1 maybe 2 stores in a large radius. These shops will offer a selection of back issue bins and the occasional Bronze Age and late Silver Age keys. The well-organized show that attracts vendors across the country will bring a grand quantity of high caliber and rare books that a smaller market otherwise would never have imagined nor had the privilege of seeing. I have witnessed the awe, enthusiasm, excitement, want and need at several conventions this past year. It plants a seed for every attendee no matter what their interest. I hope vendors continue to support the up and coming cons. I also believe with the comic craze, promoters are on a bit of an exploration through the country trying to find new avenues and venues for a successful con. In about 3-4 years the annual map of conventions in the country will be much clearer of who and absolutely where a successful con will be located. Trust me, we all want to know already.

The Wrap Up: Comics are selling very well, but you must know the market. Stay up to date with sales, trends and all media related events. The Golden Age, if you have no knowledge of it, is a whole other animal. There is a lot to it, but if you take the time it will be your favorite era to collect. Atomic Age is a great buy right now and I recommend picking up VF and better copies of whatever you can that is Super Hero and Horror at 80% of Guide. As mentioned earlier it has great value and should have good returns in the next 5 years. Silver Age Marvel keys that are noted above are safe bets. You can never have too many Hulk #181s with the Marvel Value Stamp. As for Copper, I recommend two books: a Turtles #1 (1st print if you can) and as many New Mutants #98s as you want. As for Moderns, go and read it, I am sure you can find something you will love and can't put down. But do it in a Graphic Novel or Trade Paperback format, it's just more fun like that. And get on the entertainment train, it's stopping at a station near you. Those who love it then embrace it. Those who don't, well, it's here and you might as well do as the Romans do. Go Comics!

NICK KATRADIS COLLECTOR

First, I want to start by saying a big thank-you to Bob Overstreet and J.C. Vaughn for inviting me to be an Overstreet Advisor in 2013, and to those Advisors who recommended me.

I have been a comic collector since 1972 and I have collected original comic art since 2002. I remember buying comics off the newsstand at Stage Stationary store in Mill Basin, Brooklyn, NY. Sadly, the store is no longer there but I will never forget how excited I was every Tuesday (back then comics came out on Tuesdays), impatiently sitting in class, and waiting to run to the store right after school to buy some new comics. Comics were all 20¢ back then, so $3 got me 15 comics.

When and where we started picking up our weekly compulsion of comics is among the happiest memories that most collectors remember fondly. Now, 40 years later, the average comic is $3.99 and there are over 200-300 titles that come out every month. It makes it very hard for older collectors to collect comics today, as most of us were completists and many of us simply gave up trying years ago.

These days, comics are experiencing an incredible boom. Most collectors, dealers, store owners today are almost all in agreement that comics in the past four to five years have become embedded in every day American culture, and as a result will continue to experience healthy increases in circulation, as well as increased collector and reader interest. I am also cautiously optimistic that this trend will continue, but I also know that a pullback in interest can also happen, as it has so often in the past.

Today's general consensus is that comics will continue to increase in value into perpetuity. Many younger collectors today also believe that "it's different this time" when warned by some older collectors to be careful of a potential correction or pullback in prices. Regardless of what side of the argument you are on, it's prudent to take a breather if you are buying comics strictly as an investment. A lack of fear of a potential pullback in sentiment usually signals, in most collectables or asset class, the eventual demise of the trend.

On the positive side, what is fueling the incredible growth and increased awareness of comics today by the general public can be summarized in one word: Movies!

Marvel has almost single-handedly transformed the movie industry with its comic character-driven blockbusters. The past 10 years, we have seen X-Men, Spider-Man, Iron Man, Captain America, Hulk, Thor, and Avengers hit the big screen and almost all have surpassed the expectations of most critics.

DC is playing catch up to Marvel and so far has only succeeded with TV shows like Arrow, The Flash, and previously Smallville. DC movies had some bright spots like The Dark Knight trilogy, and Man of Steel, but to date they've lagged behind.

Current DC movies in development, though, have generated great excitement. Most fans are holding their breath in anticipation to see if DC can actually succeed in producing steady blockbuster movies, like Marvel has.

It seems that movies about comic book superheroes were the shot in the arm that the comic industry needed to spur new readers, collectors, and speculators alike. New comics are selling very well once again. Back issues are flying off the shelves as collectors and dealers search out characters, and storylines that coincide with their movie. Any movie announcement about any character spurs tremendous demand and/or speculation with any comic that featured the character's first appearance, origin, costume change, etc, as well as renewed interest in the particular storyline to be used for the movie.

Throughout the history of comic collecting, the condition of the book has always been one of the most important factors in the value of a comic. High grade, key books command multiples of Guide. High grade CGC-certified books in 9.2 to 9.8 have shown tremendous demand by collectors and speculators alike. However, lower grade key books are also selling very well because the price of high grade books are now usually out of reach of many collectors.

CGC is so backed up that their turnaround time for a modern book (1976 to present), is now 55 days as I write this. CBCS, the new grading service founded by Steve Borock in 2014, is also doing very brisk business. This trend of buying high grade "slabbed" books does not look like it will subside any time soon.

A recent trend I have witnessed is the incredible demand for Copper Age and Modern Age back issues. It seems like many books that were lingering in the one dollar bins for years are now among the highest books in demand. X-Factor #6 is an example of a book that has skyrocketed recently with the announcement that Apocalypse will be the villain in the next X-Men movie.

The announcement of a Deadpool movie has created an incredible demand for New Mutants #98, his first appearance. New Mutants #87, the first Cable has also found renewed interest. The first appearance of Venom in Amazing Spider-Man #300 is incredibly hot. Amazing Spider-Man #361, the first Carnage, is also a key book in anticipation of his appearance in a Marvel movie. Another comic in high demand is Uncanny X-Men #282 (first Bishop). These comics had very high print runs, but they are in such demand that basically supply cannot keep up.

The hottest Marvel Silver Age key right now is Fantastic Four #52, the first appearance of Black Panther. Fantastic Four #53, the origin of the Black Panther is also very desirable.

Some other Key Marvel Silver Age issues are Fantastic Four #45 (first Inhumans), Fantastic Four #36 (first Medusa and Frightful Four), Avengers #54-55 (first Ultron), Avengers #57 (first Vision), Fantastic Four #66-67, and Thor #165-166 (early Him/Warlock) appearances).

The hottest Marvel Bronze Age Key books are Iron Man #55 (first Thanos), Strange Tales #180 (first Gamora), Captain America #117 (first Falcon), Marvel Super-Heroes #18 (first Guardians of the Galaxy), and Ms. Marvel #1 (as well as Ms. Marvel #16, 17, and 18, first Mystique appearances). Nova #1, is extremely hot right now, while Nova #4 (Thor), and Nova #12 (Spider-Man), are also very desirable to many collectors.

Marvel Premiere #1 (origin of Warlock), Marvel Premiere #15 (first Iron Fist), Marvel Premiere #47-48 (the first appearance of Scott Lang as Ant-Man), and Marvel Premiere #49 (the first solo Falcon) remain in high demand, as does Hero for Hire #1 (first appearance of Luke Cage).

Some DC comics that are extremely hot right now are DC Comics Presents #26 (first New Teen Titans), New Teen Titans #2 (first Deathstroke), Tales of the Teen Titans #44, (first Dick Grayson as Nightwing and origin of Deathstroke). Anything to do with Harley Quinn and Nightwing are in high demand.

Outside of the big two, The Walking Dead shows no sign of slowing down and the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles have experienced a huge reawakened demand.

Original Art: Original comic art has been on fire the past four to five years. 2014 was a banner year for high end 1960s and 1970s Marvel and DC comic art. Auction houses like Heritage, ComicLink, and ComicConnect are riding a boom in collector demand. Many collectors are furiously seeking out good examples of comic art from artists like Jack Kirby, Steve Ditko, John Buscema, John Romita, Sr., Jim Steranko, Gil Kane, Joe Kubert, Gene Colan, Carmine Infantino, Bill Everett, Barry Smith, Sal Buscema, Nick Cardy, Curt Swan, Neal Adams, Jim Aparo, Dick Giordano, Alex Toth, Wally Wood, Mike Ploog, Irv Novick, John Severin, Russ Heath, Dick Dillin, Mike Sekowsky, and many others. And most great examples from these artists have skyrocketed as demand of their art is outpacing supply.

Comic art from the 1980s has also experienced huge price increases. Prime panel pages from Batman: The Dark Knight Returns, Watchmen, Batman: The Killing Joke, and Daredevil (Frank Miller), have been selling at auction and in private sales for astronomical prices. John Byrne Uncanny X-Men pages have stunned most collectors by the prices realized at auction.

Original art from Marvel and DC titles remains on average the most coveted and desirable for most collectors, due in no small part to the increased excitement spurred by movies that highlight the characters. Recently, Avengers art by John Buscema, Neal Adams, and earlier work by Jack Kirby and Don Heck has appreciated furiously in anticipation of Avengers: Age of Ultron. Jack Kirby 1960s Fantastic Four art has reached such dizzying heights that panel pages have moved out of the reach of most collectors. Silver Age and Bronze Age Amazing Spider-Man art by Steve Ditko and John Buscema has doubled in price the past 12 months.

In the past 10 years, more and more comic collectors have ventured into comic art. Most still read or collect comics, but they saw the need to also own some comic art from their favorite stories and artists. This “new blood” has created a great surge in prices for comic art from the 1960s to 1990s. The insatiable demand by collectors and the general public for Marvel movies, and to a lesser degree DC movies (at this point) has created an incredible awareness of comic characters like Spider-Man, Iron Man, Captain America, the Hulk, and X-Men. There is no doubt that some main street “collectors” have entered the hobby and have gotten into the hunt for quality comic art.

There are so many top artists that command incredible prices when their comic art comes to market. Some of these artists that worked on key and quality storylines are George Pérez, Frank Miller, Todd McFarlane, Walt Simonson, John Byrne, Brian Bolland, Jim Lee, David Finch, Alex Ross, Art Adams, John Romita, Jr., Steve Epting, Bryan Hitch, Steve McNiven, and so many more. Modern artists like Steve Epting, who worked on titles like The Avengers in the early 1990s, as well as the 2005 Captain America/Winter Soldier storyline, are in very high demand.

If you are a novice collector in comic art, I would recommend you start by starting your collection very cautiously and prudently. At these price levels, buying comic art can become a huge investment of time, money, and energy very quickly. Starting with a piece of art that you feel nostalgic about may be the best way to dip your feet into the hobby. Others, with deeper pockets, may want to start with buying a piece of art drawn/inked by a more prominent artist.

Regardless of how you start buying comic art, diligence is very important to find the right piece of comic art. But keep in mind that patience is not always a virtue in this hobby; because if you hesitate sometimes in buying a particular panel of comic art by a particular artist, another opportunity to find one may take some time, and usually will take some more money. With that in mind, also note that rushing in to a purchase is often not a good idea either. The right mix of knowledge and research about the art, has to be balanced with the ability to move in and buy it when the opportunity arises.

IVAN KOCMAREK COLLECTOR

One can't deny that the Canadian war-time books (1941-46) which I prefer to call WECA books (see my article in last year's Guide) have become a hot commodity on the comic book collecting landscape and not just for Canadian collectors. A number of things happened this year that raised the profile of these rare original Canadian comics that are generally and affectionately known as “Canadian Whites.”

1) There was a Will Pascoe documentary shown on Superchannel in the Spring called Lost Heroes featuring a number the heroes from this early period and the people who created them.

2) The Nelvana of the Northern Lights reprint collection added to the profile of Canadian war-time comics and is now in a second print run picked up by IDW.

3) There were two significant ComicLink auctions early in the year that seem to have set healthy figures for these books that, in fact, have stuck.

4) My own article on the 1941-46 run of Canadian WECA comics appeared in last year's Guide and my own weekly column on these books (“Whites Tsunami, WECA splashes”) on comicbookdaily.com had a healthy run through 2013 and last year adding to an awareness

This hot market has held solidly throughout the year and has shown no signs of letting up. The biggest difficulty for me in reporting on sales is that I can't supply any percentage of increase over Guide or any idea of multiples over Guide for these sales because there is no guide on all but a handful of them (those which have the privilege of getting into the Guide because they have a connection of some sort with an American series or character). The Guide really does need a section on the 750-800 Canadian WECA books.

Top book in the February ComicLink auction was the numberless Nelvana compendium at 6.5 from 1945 which went for $13,750. This is mainly a reprint of material from Triumph Comics but its price seems to be carried by the iconic cover. Anything Nelvana appears to command premium dollars. I remember seeing a copy in similar condition go on eBay the summer before for about $1800.

Other notable books from the February auction were:

- Super Comics nn (Citren Publishers--reprints Pep Comics #22) (4.5) $7100
- Triumph Comics #17 (4.0) $1700
- Wow Comics #1 (3.0) $1650 (I paid $580 for a 6.5 Wow Comics #1 in 2013)
- Active Comics #1 (3.5) $1452 (probably the best buy of the bunch)
- Joke Comics #14 (3.5) and 18 (5.5) each at $1200
- Dime Comics #5 (4.5) $900 and 8 (4.5) $850
- Better Comics V. 1 #10 (5.5) $885

Generally books went for 2-3 times what they went for the year before with a handful increasing in geometrical proportions from previous prices.

The March ComicLink auction of Canadian war-time comics sustained this trend but with the observation that many of the books offered were qualified purple labels, low grade or even incomplete copies. The top three books this time were issues of Triumph Comics. Here are the results of the top books:

- Triumph Comics #12 (1.5) $2600, #9 (1.8) $2200, #13 (4.0 Qual.) $1600, #7 (0.5) $850
- Wow Comics #15 (3.0 Qual.) $1600, #23 (0.5) $800
- Better Comics Vol. 3 #4 (3.0) $1322, Vol. 5 #9 (2.5) $1100, Vol. 6 #1 (5.0) $900
- Bing Bang Comics Vol. 6 #4 (6.5) $1270, Vol. 3 #6 (6.0) $775
- Dime Comics #8 (3.5) $1211, #3 (1.5) $850

The thing to take away from these results is that lower, even lowest, grade Canadian war-time are in demand especially Triumph Comics with Nelvana covers, as well as Wow Comics with Penguin covers, and most Maple Leaf Publications comics put out in Vancouver but especially those featuring Brok Windsor on the cover. The usual collecting lesson – character and cover drive demand.

A little later on in the year, Heritage put up an auction lot of 10 Wow Comics (issue #14 incomplete, and the rest, #17-22 and #26-29 averaging GD/VG) that went for $4481.25 or about $450 a copy -- a good buy as opposed to picking up the same copies individually.

All in all these three online events made more WECA books available for purchase online in one year than I can remember and they led to considerably stronger final prices than anticipated. Fellow Canadian war-time comic collector and online tracker, Jim Finlay, recorded some notable online sales of raw WECA books in the second half of the year:

Anglo-American

- Captain Marvel Comics Vol. 2 #6 G-VG $162
- Grand Slam Comics Vol. 3 #10 FN $535
- Robin Hood Comics Vol. 2 #3 VGD/FN $368
- Spy Smasher Comics Vol. 2 #11 VG $369
- Spy Smasher Comics Vol. 3 #1 VG $177

Bell Features

- Dime Comics #4 VG- $1400, 26 VG- $836
- Joke Comics #23 VG+ $1110

Maple Leaf

- Better Comics Vol. 2 #1 $1050
- Bing Bang Comics Vol. 2 #9 VGD/FN $1075

The result of all this is that many of us average income collectors have been priced out of the online auction market and we can't bid against those serious, deeper pocket buyers and flippers. We now have to find undiscovered collections on the ground. In connection with this, a handful of Canadian online sellers have listed a number of these comics at sky-high unrealistic Buy-it-now prices that are multiples of the best prices these books have ever realized. I have trouble understanding this because all it seems to lead to is a wonderful museum display of these comics online for a couple of years or more and reasonable best offers that get fired right back at you the second you send them.

We also have to note that most of these WECA books are scarce Gerber 7 and up so they rarely show up at cons and for that matter online sales, so they are snapped up quickly and produce hotly contested auctions. Finally, it's important to realize that most WECA books that surface are low to mid-grade books and that it might be safe to say that for WECA comics we can shift the concept and terminology of what should be considered a solid high grade down a tier or two so that it begins at 7.0 or even 6.0.

Through persistent digging I was able to turn up two collections within 50 miles of me. A collection of 24 books that were mostly Bell Features comics but also had a VG+ copy of Better Comics #37 in it and a second collection of 13 Bell The Funny Comics that feature Dizzy Don and actually belonged to Dizzy Don's creator Manny Easson himself. In face to face deals I was able to get them at prices I could afford and still provide the sellers with a decent and fair market return.

To sum up, Canadian war-time comics, or WECA comics, or "Canadian Whites," or whatever you want to call them have established themselves as a hot commodity in collecting circles in 2014 and I can only see demand for them increasing. What is now needed is some sort of a price guide to reflect what is going on in the market. I hope that Bob Overstreet will consider letting us put together a working price guide section for these 750-800 books in the 2016 edition (which co-incidentally will be the 75th anniversary of the first Canadian WECA comic—Better Comics #1). Until this happens we'll be lost in the jungle or shooting it out the Wild West with these scarce and relatively undocumented comics.

BEN LICHTENSTEIN ZAPP COMICS

Greetings from New Jersey! Well, I didn't think it was possible, but the back issue market only grew hotter after a strong 2013. Sales are up substantially over last year, which I didn't think was possible. Comic book shops that offer back issues are not as plentiful anymore. More and more back issue sellers are on eBay, Facebook, CGC message boards and online. Brick and mortar shops in my area are predominantly focused on new comics, TPBs and gaming. This has left a niche for shops like ours that enjoys back issues and refreshes constantly.

There is a depth and breadth of buyers I've never witnessed before. In the old days, prior to 2009 or so, if I had a key issue like Incredible Hulk #1, there was a limited amount of customers that I can call to sell quickly. Now, it's a matter of deciding who to call first, as demand is lined up for any and all keys at all times.

While all key issues are red-hot, low to mid-grade examples of key issues have really moved up in price. This phenomenon seems based on affordability and, to some degree, ignorance of grading and condition. As the high-grade examples reach into the thousands and sometimes tens of thousands, many buyers are happy to get a copy at an affordable range. We're also seeing a very large influx of new and/or lapsed collectors. These newer buyers are still getting educated on grading and this is reflected in the high prices on really low grade stuff – higher than warranted in many cases. In conjunction, spreads between grades has narrowed on certain issues, like Incredible Hulk #181, Amazing Spider-Man #129, etc. Overall, I'm seeing a trend of "price-point" books, where certain issues sell with no regard to condition, if the buyer has a budget and wants to own that issue.

In our shops, back issue sales have just exploded, with more and more collectors focused on keys and less so on completing runs. With every movie appearance and TV series announcement, previously D-List characters become hot overnight. Howard the Duck appeared in Guardians of the Galaxy, and within a week, Fear #19 went from a slow seller at $12 in mid-grade, to an instant sale at $40 to $60 in mid-grade. Even low grades sell instantly at $15 to $25. High grade issues rocketed to multiples of Guide. Howard the Duck #1 showed a similar reaction. I'm amused that a book that I used to celebrate selling at $10 now flies instantly at $50. This is just one example of many, many Bronze and Copper books that have simply went on fire overnight.

We were energetic in our buying this year and managed to buy many Silver/Bronze/Copper and Modern collections. Some collection walk in the door, but the bulk of our bigger purchases involved traveling quite a bit.

Competition is fierce out there, but due to a straightforward, professional approach, we've been able to acquire most of the collections that are offered to us. A powerful trend is that we're buying collections from late middle-age to older collectors who are retiring and downsizing. In most cases, their children have no interest in the collection or there isn't anyone to leave it to in a will. Also, the greater visibility of comics in general has pulled a lot of comics out of the woodwork. I'm still surprised at how the market is easily able to absorb all the new material, with no slowdown in demand at all.

Besides key issues, we are seeing very strong demand for all vintage superhero material, if they are priced low and graded tightly.

Marvel and DC Silver Age moves in all grades and conditions. Non-key issues in low to mid-grade sell at about half Guide and key issues at double Guide and up.

DC Silver Age is very strong in general, with the only really slow area being Superman-related titles. The second-tier titles, such as Atom, Aquaman, Hawkman, Metal Men, are finally selling very well for us. We price them below Guide generally, but now they move, whereas a few years ago, couldn't sell them at any price.

We've managed to purchase multiples on all Marvel keys and they sell quickly, usually with 2 to 3 days. The price of all Marvel keys in low to mid-grade rose 20 to 50% this year. I look back on some pricing from the beginning of the year and see that the market has almost doubled on all of them as I write this in December.

Here's a small sample of Silver Age books sold this year: Fantastic Four #1 CGC 3.0 $3,200; CGC 1.8 $1,150; 1.0 $750. Incredible Hulk #1 7.5 (R) $11,000; CGC 2.0 $3,500; 4.0 (R) $4,000.

Amazing Spider-Man #1 CGC 3.0 $2,900; CGC 7.0 $12,500.

Amazing Fantasy #15 6.0 $23,500, 4.0 $10,000; 1.5 $5,000.

Tales to Astonish #27 4.5 $1,900.

X-Men #1 GD- $1,000; Fair/Fair+ $850.

Golden Age, when we get super-hero and Horror, sells instantly around here. A few sales: Marvel Mystery #7 4.5 $2,200; Daring Comics #9 $800; Batman #11 CGC 7.0 $4,000. Plus, plenty of raw DCs, Timelys and Fawcetts in the low to mid-grade.

Overall, if it's a first appearance of a Marvel character that is mentioned or seen in mainstream media, sales explode. I'm amazed at how many comics that only a year or two ago were bargain box fodder have become easy sales at $25, $50, $100... Hero for Hire #1 in particular, has become a white-hot seller. We sold many, many copies at roughly triple Guide.

Incredible Hulk #181 was by far the hottest issue of the year. My sales notes demonstrate how pricing about doubled on the low to mid-grades from January to December, just crazy out there:

Fair+/G- $225, $400

Good+ $300

Fine $750, $1,000, $1,000

VF- $1,200

VF $1,000, $1,200, then $1,600

VF+ $1,100,

CGC 8.5 $1450

CGC 9.2 $2,500

CGC 9.4 $3,000

Plus, many more copies from $800 to $1100 each.

All the usual suspects, such as Iron Fist #14, Iron Man #55, Amazing Spider-Man #101, Tomb of Dracula #10, 121, 122, 129, X-Men #94, Giant-Size X-Men #1, etc. continue to sell faster than ever. If I could find them, Werewolf By Night #32 would be my top seller, more requests for that than any other Bronze key.

The new wave of Bronze "keys" continues to amaze! A small sample.

- Marvel Spotlight #32 Spider-Woman

- Ms. Marvel #1. Instant sale in mid grade at $30 to $50.

- Nova #1 mid-grade $25, higher grade $50 to $60.

- Rom #1 $10 to $20.

- Star Wars #1 (Marvel) is on fire, with low to mid grades $30 to $60 and higher grades $80 to $120.

Copper Age is just as hot as Bronze Age. Here's just a sample of books that sell very quickly with lots of demand.

Batman #357 Jason Todd/Killer Croc $35 to $50, #366 $20, #368 $35, #386 intro. Black Mask flies at $50 to $75. #400 steady at $15 to $20.

Batman Dark Knight Returns sets fly at $60 to $120 per set, depending on grade/printing.

Batman The Killing Joke doesn't stop selling at $35 to $50. We sold about over 50 raw 1st prints this year, and a dozen CGC copies.

New Teen Titans #2 intro. Deathstroke exploded. Mid-grades fly at $75 to $100. CGC 9.8 over $500.

DC Comics Presents #26 intro. New Teen Titans, about double Guide easily.

Incredible Hulk #271 intro. Rocket Raccoon has become an iconic series. Raw NM sell easily from $100 to $125. Low to mid-grades sell from $40 to $75.

Legends #3 intro. Suicide Squad $30 to $50.

New Mutants #87 intro Cable $25 to $40 in low grade, $60 to $100 in higher grade. CGC 9.8 over $250.

New Mutants #98 intro Deadpool. The leaked movie trailer took the hottest Copper Age book in the country and doubled the price. 9.8s went from $400 to $800 overnight. Raw copies in any grade $150 to $250, with Near Mint raw selling quickly for $300. Generally any Deadpool appearances sell very well. Even the 2 mini-series from the '90s have nearly tripled, from $10 a set to $25 to $30 per set.

Secret Wars #1-12 sell easily for $75 to $85.

Suicide Squad #1 ('87) $30 to $50.

Watchmen sets sell well, pricing is down from the movie days

Wolverine (1982 Miller series) sets sell very well at $80 to $120 each.

I could go on, as it seems every day another Bronze/Copper Age book is deemed “hot and a “must-have.”

Archies are selling very steadily, with sales up on the new issues and more demand for Silver and Bronze. When we occasionally acquire Golden Age Archies, they are gone at well over Guide instantly.

Modern books also have had some hits, but the trend of Image #1s spiking has ended. Deadpool and Harley Quinn are king. A few notes:

Amazing Spider-Man #700 1st prints sell well at $25.

Batman Adventures #12 is white-hot, and prices steadily climbed all year.

Batman New 52 series by Snyder and Capullo are the kings of current series. #1 sells easily for $45 to $60, #4 is $25, #6 is $30, many other issues command $8 to $12 each.

Civil War sets jumped from $30 to $60 overnight. Infinity Gauntlet sets sell easily for $50 to $60. The sequels, Infinity Crusade and Infinity War, jumped as well, to about $20 to $25 per set.

Iron Man #304, 305, 1st Hulkbuster Armor are $25 to $35.

Justice League New 52 #1 is $15.

Suicide Squad #1 New 52 is $25 to $30

Thanos Quest set is $30 to $35.

Walking Dead holding up, with prices flat, but selling very well.

Sales on new issues are steady, but not many price increases to report.

We’re seeing demand for many of the ‘90s comics. Yes, those million print run ones that we all think are junk. These are bought by both new buyers who were not even born yet as well as lapsed readers purchasing nostalgia.

A few examples of titles that consistently sell all year-long:

Darkhawk #1 $6-$8.

Spawn #1 $6, other issues sell consistently at $2 each, with later issues after #80 selling for much more than that.

Spider-Man (McFarlane 90s) 1-14 $2 each.

Spider-Man 2099 #1 $5, other issues $1.50 to $2 each.

Superman 75 black-bagged moves at $12 to $15. I see them sell at conventions for $25.

Superman: Man of Steel #17 is $30 to $40, #18 is $15 to $20. Other Death of Superman tie-ins sell very well.

Web of Spider-Man #1 $12; #118 $15.

X-Force #2 Deadpool $10, other Deadpool appearances in X-Force $2 to 3 each.

X-Men (Jim Lee, 1990s) #1-10, about cover price.

Valiants show little to no demand for us.

What does next year hold? I am cautiously optimistic, as the influx of new money and collectors keeps the train rolling along. With the number of Superhero movies and TV series in the pipeline, as well as the new Star Wars films, interest should remain high. I started selling back issues in the 1980s at conventions and through Comics Buyer’s Guide and I’ve never seen the market this vibrant. We are buying with both fists any collection and individual keys that we’re offered with confidence, but also with a goal of reselling quickly at a fair price.

A heartfelt thank you to all of our loyal customers and, just as importantly, those sellers that trusted us with their collections. If you’re buying or selling comics, please contact us any time.

STEPHEN LIPSON COLLECTOR

In 2014, it can be stated that it was a remarkable year for Canadian Golden Age comic books (aka Canadian Whites) in terms of both bringing awareness to the marketplace, and prices realized at auction.

These wartime era comics hosted a stable of superheroes that were both analogous and indigenous to Canada. Such iconic heroes as Nelvana of the Northern Lights and her brethren spoke to Canada’s role on the Home front and in smashing the Axis abroad.

Notable 2014 Canadian Golden Age comic sales, represented through two Comiclink auctions in February and March respectively:

Nelvana One-Shot #nn CGC 6.5 $13,750

Super Comics/Pep #22 Hybrid #nn CGC 4.5 $7100

Triumph Comics #12 CGC 1.5 $2600

Triumph Comics #9 CGC 1.8 $2200

Wow Comics #15 CGC 3.0 Qualified $1600

Active Comics #1 CGC 3.5 $1450

Wow Comics #1 CGC 3.0 $1650

2014 Personal Sales of Note:

Triumph Comics #7 CGC 3.0 $5000

Active Comics #16 Uncertified 5.0 $750

Triumph-Adventure Comics #1 (Coverless) $750

Triumph Comics #11 Uncertified 4.5 $1400

Dime Comics #20 Uncertified 4.0 $625

Wow Comics #27 Uncertified 5.0 $500

Wow Comics #15 Uncertified 5.0 $500

Again, the impetus for strong sales stems from a surge in demand for these very rare and sought after books, coupled with the release of the Lost Heroes movie in March of 2014. The results of the aforementioned Comiclink auctions speak to this, in terms of prices realized.

Collectors in this milieu of collecting are both aggressive and passionate about acquiring these books, as it is estimated that there are between only 1-10 copies extant of each comic book. As a result, rarity and desirability drive the market, irrespective of condition.

It would also appear that the utility of ownership also was a driving factor behind some of the phenomenal prices realized. Yet in spite of the upsurge in prices, not too many copies have come to market. This would speak to the sheer rarity of these books. That being said, I suspect many books are entrenched deep in private collections, that will ultimately be donated to various archives.

I have been fortunate enough to obtain several copies of Canadian Whites for my personal collection this past year, but not nearly to the degree that I was able to in prior years. Indeed, the sheer dearth/scarcity of these vestiges of Canadian pop culture are becoming more elusive. As collectors, we always hope that more books will come to light, but unfortunately this has not been the case. There are copies extant on eBay that have been very aggressively priced. I would suggest that this is not a true barometer of the fair market value of these books.

Hopefully, 2015 will yield some fruit and we will see more copies come to market. I will continue to mine hard data and perhaps the prices realized will come down to earth in order to allow a broader range of collectors to be fortunate enough to acquire some for their individual collections.

DOUG MABRY THE GREAT ESCAPE

Greetings from Tennessee and Kentucky! This year was a very interesting one in terms of back issues. We haven't seen this much market movement since the early '90s. It seems like every character, no matter how obscure, has someone seeking their first appearance and willing to pay premiums for them. Comics that were routinely in sale bins now command high prices. We've even seen an inexplicable jump in demand for reprints of DC Golden Age books. If you'd ever told me that a Nestle Quik Action Comics reprint would be worth more than a buck or two, I'd have said you were crazy.

This year was a good one for us in terms of acquisitions. A couple of collections of note: We purchased a collection of about 2,000 early 1950s comics from an original owner early in the year. Unfortunately, there had been a fire in his house at one point, and lots of the books had smoke damage. Still, there were lots of collectors who snatched up Dell comics at $1 each. And fortunately, some of the better Batman and Superman books had survived undamaged. We also picked up a complete run of Amazing Spider-Man volume 1, which had some super high grade books from the early '70s. Two NM- copies of #129 sold as soon as the doors opened the first day.

Sales of Note

Golden Age: Batman #32 GD $140, Black Terror #9 GD+ $120, Detective #68 GD+ $370, Green Mask #1 CGC app. 5.5 $325, Green Hornet #1 Fair $325

Silver Age/Bronze Age: Amazing Spider-Man #1, FR/GD $1,700, 2 copies of #129 NM- $750 each, X-Men #1 GD $900, Avengers #2 Fair, $50, Batman #121 VG/FN $400, Giant-Size X-Men #1 GD $180, Incredible Hulk #181 FN $700, NM $1,470, VG $500, #180 GD $100, Incredible Hulk #1 VG/FN $5,000, #2 VG $450, Green Lantern #85 NM- $200, Silver

Surfer #2 VF/NM $300, Tales Of Suspense #39 GD- $900

Modern Age: Walking Dead #4 NM $100, #6 NM $120, #27 NM $200, Marvel Preview #4 VG+ $75, New Mutants #98 NM $100, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 FN/VF $2716, #2 VF $94, X-Factor #6 NM $50.

In closing, with all the new comic related movies and TV shows coming out now, I don't see this trend slowing down any time soon.

BRIAN MARCUS CAVALIER COMICS

Greetings once again from Wise, VA! It's been another interesting and exciting year for us at the store and on the road at conventions. So let's get this started.

Monthly comics sales have slightly dipped the past year but trade paperbacks have been strong. Marvel sales have been flat except for Amazing Spider-Man and the Death of Wolverine. Thor and Captain America generated some interest with different characters taking on the roles. Sales for DC have been consistent with Batman leading the way. The New Suicide Squad has picked up with the announcement of the movie.

As for the Indy books, Manifest Destiny, Saga, Walking Dead, Southern Bastards, Trees and Woods have been solid this past year. And I'm trying to figure out the Doctor Who comics. With the show having a huge fan base, why can't I sell more copies of these?

It's getting harder and harder to find any decent collections in Southwest Virginia and the surrounding area, but we still managed to pick up a few small ones which had some nice books.

This past year we doubled the number of cons that we normally do which included the Lexington Comic Con, Heroes Con and the Baltimore Comic Con. This was due to the "Butler" collection we picked up the previous year which was mentioned in last year's edition. And let me say that sales were very brisk all across the board for Silver and Bronze Age key books in any grade. And good luck finding the first appearance of Black Panther and The Inhumans for a fair price, as prices have soared on those two.

We also listed several key books on ComicLink this past year. Key sales include Fantastic Four #1 3.0 $2906, Strange Tales #110 4.5 $1329, Incredible Hulk #1 2.5 $3877, Amazing Fantasy #15 1.5 $4851, Tales of Suspense #39 1.5 $1200, Avengers #1 4.0 $1633, Amazing Spider-Man #14 7.0 $1111, Amazing Spider-Man #121 9.4 $861, Amazing Spider-Man #122 9.6 $1249, Amazing Spider-Man #129 9.2 $860, Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #134 9.4 $905, Marvel Preview #7 9.2 $1100, Marvel Preview #4 9.2 $701, Tales of Suspense #52 6.5 $600, Tales of Suspense #57 7.5 $705 and Adventure Comics #247 3.0 $793.

JON MCCLURE COLLECTOR

Greetings from Portland Oregon! My general sales this year were of low grade keys like Archie's Pal's & Gals

#23(Winter 1962) in Good/Very Good for $90 and a Very Good minus for $115, both on eBay. In early 2014 I sold a Josie #1 in VG with a pulled staple and small water spot for $300 in a private sale. Marvel keys, movie tie-ins and plain old Marvels of any kind starting at $4 in any grade sold best in antique malls at solid retail prices, often at multiple Guide due to the current shifting market. Walking Dead comics -- any Walking Dead comics, sell well for me in the antique malls and some Deadworld and other independents also move swiftly. DC and Archie comics held their own. I almost sold out of low grade Dells because they are so affordable and charming, and that's true of issues going all the way back to the 1950s. Charltons proved slower this year, and Romance and Western comics regardless of publisher were slower than usual.

Last year I firmly believed that the original Guardians of the Galaxy series introduced in Marvel Super-Heroes #18(1/69) and marginally continued in Marvel Presents #3(2/76)-12(8/77) were comics so dull and boring that adding a Disney-financed cinematic team-up of a character named Rocket Raccoon (introduced to the Marvel Universe in Marvel Preview #7(Summer 1976), and then adding an awkward pre-hero Marvel tree monster like Groot, introduced in Tales To Astonish #13(11/60) could not possibly bring a version of anything viable to life. I was completely wrong, and the film proved amazingly popular. Disney ventures consistently succeed, and having now acquired Lucasfilms and Marvel for multi-billion dollar amounts, Disney runs and rules the game. I sold out of every book connected to GOTG at ridiculous multiples of Guide prior to the film's release. The growing worldwide popularity of comics (including foreign editions of key DC and Marvel comics with original covers) is great for movies and pop culture, and spectacular for a rejuvenated comic book industry!

It's hard to believe the 45th edition of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide is here! Some amazing sales that happened in 2014 include DC Comics Presents #22(6/80) Whitman Type 7a cover variant that sold in January on eBay in CGC 8.5 for a stunning $1525, one of only six copies confirmed to exist. Notable high end sales of Type 1 test market Marvel cover price variants include a Captain Marvel #45 30 cent cover CGC 9.8 for $1827, a Conan #63(6/76) 30 cent cover in CGC 9.8 for $1827, an Eternals 30 cent cover #1 CGC 9.8 for $1180, a Fantastic Four 30 cent cover #170 CGC 9.6 for $795, a #171(6/76) 30 cent cover in CGC 9.6 for $777, a Fantastic Four #184(7/77) 35 cent cover in CGC 9.8 for $2000, an Iron Fist #13(6/77) 35 cent cover in CGC 9.4 for $1700, an Iron Man #100 (7/77) 35 cent cover in CGC 9.2 for $1100, a Marvel Team-Up #45(5/76) 30 cent cover in CGC 9.4 for $580, a Star Wars #1(7/77) 35 cent cover in CGC 8.5 for $3100, a CGC 8.0 for $2500, and a CGC 6.5 for $1850, and an X-Men #106(8/77) 35 cent cover in CGC 9.4 for $3802. Many non-key issues of Marvel Type 1 test market cover price variants continue to break record sales results that are well above the listed values of the top ten Bronze Age key books such as Incredible Hulk #181(11/74) and X-Men #94(8/75). Type 1 test market variants lead the herd because of one crucial element: such variants were not intended to be collectible.

A multitude of publisher experiments in the 20th century birthed Type 1 cover price variants right before universal price hikes, such as the shift from 10 to 12 cents per copy that occurred in January 1962, and the 25 cent to 30 cent shift in mid 1976 and 30 to 35 cent shift in late 1977. For a history of comic book variants from the late 1930s to the present including a lexicon of variant types with examples (that update and evolve continuously), refer to my 25,000 word article from 2010 published in Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide #40, "A History of Publisher Experimentation and Variant Comic Books," pages #1010-1038. The market has spoken, and Marvel Type 1 test market cover price variants are absolutely among the hottest books pursued by collectors and speculators today, with some comics realizing prices of 100 times or more (in grade) of non-variant issues. Auction results on Marvel test market variants fluctuate wildly. Key books with listed values of the top of the Gold, Silver, and Bronze Age books are there due to consistent sales and demand. Two of the top Bronze Age comics are 35 cent variants: Star Wars #1(7/77) in raw 9.2 is in first place at $5500, and Iron Fist #14(8/77) in raw 9.2 is in third place at $2200.

Dell released Type 1 Test 15 cent cover price Variants from 2/57-7/58 in certain regions through US theaters (an ad from 1957 details this cross-marketing offer), just as such 15 cent books from 6/56 to 1-2/61 were definitely Type 1a Canadian cover price variants. The comics appear to be identical except for the cover prices from 2/57-7/58 of both 10 cents and 15 cents, with some "now 10c" variants released dated 9/58, apparently as a short lived compensatory afterthought. It seems Dell used virtually the exact same comics for two entirely different reasons. Western Publishing's eventual decision to make an ill-conceived price hike from 3-5/61 to 7-9/62 on every title flopped badly, and comics publishers waited until 1968 to raise the standard cover price of regular size books to 15 cents. Same era comics such as the Dell 30 cent cover price editions of 25 cent issues, and 35 cent price editions of 25 cent giants are also conclusively Canadian Type 1a books, as the indicia of every book clearly states both prices, and some UK editions have three cover prices, such as Dell giants with UK, US and Canadian cover prices, and also redundant regional prices on Dell 15 cent covers that began in 5/61 where the US and Canadian price both appear as 15 cents on the cover along with a third UK price.

Archie 15 cent Type 1 cover price variants are slowly gaining momentum, with 80 out of 112 now confirmed to exist, and I have come to believe that all 112 issues exist. Doug Sulipa (the largest seller of Archie back issues in the world, who found no 15 cent variants in his inventory in 2010) and I estimate that such 15 cent variants are 300-500 times scarcer than 12 cent editions. In 2013-2014 the few 15 cent Archie variants that did change hands sold for only 2-3 times of 12 cent editions, when they changed hands at all. In 2014, the Sci/Fi & monster 1961-1962 regular 12 cent issues sold for 2-5 times Guide, so the 15 cent variants of these books ought to sell at higher prices, but it's difficult to nail down “value” when items are so uncommon and/or unknown that they are rarely seen on the market. Archie comics have a fraction of collector interest next to Marvel comics (despite Archie’s hot new zombie Afterlife series), so the sales needed to assign a “value” are not there. Archie’s Madhouse #22(10/62) 15 cent cover variant now has four copies confirmed to exist, and is the variant super-key of this up-and-coming set of test market variants, but no copies have yet seen the auction block. I believe all 15 cent Archie Type 1 cover price variants have enormous long-term investment potential, especially the Big Three super-keys: Archie’s Madhouse #22, Archie’s Girls, Betty and Veronica #75(3/62) and Josie #1(2/63), the first copy of which surfaced (in a less than delightful Poor/Fair condition) at the Wizard World Portland Comicon (December 23-25, 2014). Copies of 12 cent Josie #1 sold in Very Good 4.0 for $500 and later in 5.5 Fine minus (with a small water stain) on eBay in 2014 for $960. Archie keys from the 1960s are tough to find in better than Fine condition, and from 1970-1985 Very Fine is usually the best grade to be found. Archie comics, like most publishers, occasionally released unintentional sexual innuendo issues that are sought after collectibles, books such as Archie #271(6/78) that brings about $60 in Very Good, while Betty and Me #16(9/68) brings about $100 in Very Good, although neither have the visceral effect of Marvel Comics television spin-off Alf #48(12/91) which brings about $60 in fine condition.

U.S. published Type 1a cover price variants (published simultaneously for foreign distribution) have variant elements beyond start and end dates that are not only currently being mapped out, but which are also increasing in demand and realized sales according to Doug Sulipa. Cheryl Blossom’s first appearance in Archie’s Girls, Betty and Veronica #320(10/82) is a Bronze Age super-key and hot seller, with VG copies quickly selling in the $100 range when they surface at all, and with Very Fine copies turning in the $600 range. Archie’s Girls, Betty and Veronica #321(12/82) recently sold on eBay in CGC 9.4 for $250, and issue #322(2/83) sold in CGC 9.6 for $300 in 11/2013. A Type 1a Canadian cover price variant of Cheryl Blossom’s second appearance in Jughead #325(10/82) sold on eBay in CGC 7.0 for $200 in 9/2013. The character Cheryl Blossom appeared 25 times in various Archie comics from 1982-1985, and all such books are solid sellers at descending prices based on release dates. Type 1a Canadian newsstand cover price variants not only exist for all of them, but also sell at an average of 150% of standard editions. Bronze and Copper Age Marvel and DC Type 1a Canadian cover price variants are now routinely selling for 150-400% Guide, and select CGC high grade key issues of popular characters have been bringing 400-2000% of Guide; such books are known to be at least 10 times scarcer due to low print runs. High grade examples of Type 1a variants are scarcer still, largely due to damages that occurred in transit, long before the digital age offered simultaneous off-site printing, which renders the concept of origination virtually meaningless for the majority of contemporary books. Marvel collectors dominate about 75% of the Type 1a Canadian variant market, while DC and others split the remaining 25%, with non-DC books accounting for less than 10% of total sales, and this ratio gets steeper when you hit the 1990s, when comics with a Type 1a variant cover price that wasn’t published by Marvel (or at least DC) brings little or no premium price at all.

Charlton 15 cent Type 1 test market cover price variants now have a second example beyond Texas Rangers #32(3/62), with three known copies; one copy of Space War #15(3/62) is the newest example. Sixteen possible Type 1 variants from March 1962 may eventually be confirmed to exist, but such books are still so unknown to collectors that no sales of any variant have been reported, which contributes to the lack of new comics confirmed to exist, and real “value” is difficult to judge without any money changing hands. Charlton Type 1 variants are as rare as they are unknown to most collectors. I hope collectors take more of an interest in such obscure test market comics as time moves forward and report their findings of oddball material.

An Iron Man #55(2/73) Type 1a U.S. published U.K. pence cover price variant in CGC 9.4 for $2000 sold on eBay in 2013 and is another encouraging example of collector recognition of what had previously (and inaccurately) been considered a foreign edition of lesser value. CGC 9.4 cents editions of Iron Man #55 in the same grade were bringing $1600 on average on eBay during the same time. Dell Canadian and U.K. Type 1a cover price editions are now being collected more, and currently sell at a modest premium of 125-150% of standard cents editions. Western Publishing’s Type 1a Canadian 75 cent cover price variants of 60 cent Gold Key/Whitmans from 1984 sell briskly at 300-400% Guide due to extremely low print runs, according to Doug Sulipa. Alleged copies of 1983 Type 1a 75 cent Gold Key/Whitman variants do not exist. Gold Key/Whitman pre-pack comics dated 8-12/1980 are red hot sellers due to scarcity and bring $100-$500 or more in Very Fine or better condition. Black Hole #4(9/80) sold on ComicConnect in CGC 9.8 for $2653 on 6/12/2013, and then the same (and only 9.8) copy of Black Hole #4 in CGC 9.8 sold via Paypal for a stunning $6250 on 2/21/2014! Refer to my article, “The Whitman Mystery,” in Comic Book Marketplace Magazine #85-86(9-10/01) for the strange story behind what caused the scarcity of Gold Key/Whitman comics dated 1980-1984 and the untimely demise that resulted when they abandoned newsstand distribution.

Early Marvel Direct Sale Editions are uncommon and sell for an average of 200-300% of regular newsstand editions according to Doug Sulipa; such books were sometimes erroneously referred to as “Marvel Whitmans” due to their simultaneous distribution in department and drug stores in Whitman bags. Early Marvel Direct Market Editions have the unique honor of being “special market editions” that required a secondary market to help justify the cost of their existence in smaller print runs, because the “direct sales” market was in its infancy, and Marvel wanted to monitor retailers’ return credit, hence the confusion surrounding the odd difference in appearance between such books and their newsstand counterparts. Short gaps in production occurred from 2/1977 to 5/1979, as it cost less for Marvel to roll the dice against bogus returns than over-produce books erratically purchased by chain retailers, and so all early Direct Market Editions were produced except for the cover dates 1-3/1978, 7/1978, and 3-4/1979. Such comics are sought after by hardcore collectors due to scarcity.

Movie and television tie-in issues are increasingly strong sellers. A copy of Incredible Hulk #271(5/82) in CGC 9.8 sold in 2014 for $800 on eBay. Adventure Comics #283(4/61) copies now sell in CGC 8.0 in the $1600 range and CGC 9.0 copies now list in the $3000 range on eBay, featuring General Zod's first brief two panel cameo appearance as a Kryptonian super-villain, a villain second only to Superman's infamous arch-enemy Lex Luthor. If Adventure #283, the first appearance of the Phantom Zone as well as Zod, is worth so much money with only a cameo of Zod, then should not Incredible Hulk #180(10/74) with Wolverine's first cameo appearance be taken more seriously than Incredible Hulk #181(11/74)? Such inconsistencies in valuation almost inevitably correct themselves as investors take note of little things like the importance of a character's first full appearance. I believe the cameo craze will pass and the real money will once again focus on full appearance issues, although cameos will probably sustain a more significant dollar value than in the past. The risk of major investments in books that may or may not hold value based on unreleased movies and television spin-offs that might not be released or ultimately include characters such buyers wager on the inclusion of due to current popularity within consensus reality is quite real. Comics featuring black heroes and obscure heroes and villains in general were sought after in 2014 regardless of upcoming television shows or movies.

Pricing spreads are numb to actual marketability and have decreased the stated values of low grade issues, and especially low grade keys, to a sub-wholesale point that makes it impossible for dealers to keep in them stock even at 200-400% of Guide. Conversely, high prices and values have been assigned to slow moving books in the Very Fine range, which has only served to increase the comic book hobby's obsession with the pursuit of ultra high-grade copies in a world where most old comics exist in Good, Very Good, and Fine condition. I believe values and realized sales have gone awry in both directions. A close cousin to price spreads is price groups, being runs of books that don't reflect the demand for more desirable books and their actual market price. Consider the following example: Amazing Spider-Man #61-74(6/67-7/68) are all equally valued in OCBPG #44 in 9.2 NM- at $200. Amazing Spider-Man #65(10/67) has a prison escape cover and #68(1/68) has student protest cover, yet every other book in the run beginning with #61(6/67), the first Gwen Stacy cover, and ending with #74(7/68), the first appearance of Silvermane, is more desirable and valuable. Edited listings limit space, so books like Mad Magazine lose the detailed contents that create interest (especially the covers), because advertising dollars and listings of new comics (young collectors like to see modern books listed at face value) are vital. In the Guide's defense, it is increasingly difficult to manage a thick paper project and keep it in print without addressing what it takes to stay afloat. Which is the greater evil: attempt to define, list, explain and compare everything like your humble narrator, or strive to deftly compress a hopelessly broad but necessarily blurry snapshot of the entire comic book market? I'm not sure even the Shadow knows.

Extremely valuable comics (and authenticated signed books, regardless of grade) are now routinely transformed into two-dimensional novelty items, and some comics are intended from their inception to exist solely as high grade and/or signed solid objects, never to be held or fully seen. Coins and cards have long been sealed for protection, but such items are two-dimensional. Collectibles are condemned to the whimsy of shifting sands fanned by shadowy fistfuls of money. What can happen to high grade Bronze Age gems at auction provides a cautionary tale of an ever-shifting and fickle market, an arena in which realized prices can dive instead of increasing... like Green Lantern #76(4/70) CGC 9.6, which dropped from around $30,000 down to around $8000 over several auctions from 2010-2012. Speculative investments, and liquid commodities such as Gold and Silver, have long been a hedge against inflation, but sometimes comics provide a faster, higher return.

Of greatest concern to me is the lessening interest in lower to mid-grade books. Longtime faith in listed values of standard imperfect back issues, and the fact that the most comic books fall into that category, ought to transcend the continued widening of price spreads and price groupings that weaken the backbone of the hobby. The heartbeat of the industry remains within the pages of musty old comics and for the moment, such comics have taken a back seat to film and television related books. Reading copies are fun because there's nothing like holding the real thing in your hands with no need to worry about a spine bend.

The melding of pop culture and comics is stampeding into the future. Comic book luminaries like Neal Adams and a few other "names" help solidify attendance at comicons, and contemporary hit comics like Robert Kirkman's Outcast series helps introduce new collectors to the hobby. I worry for the day when dealers amount to less than a third of convention vendors, as there is a slippery slope between successful comic conventions and a swollen black hole of flea market mishmash. Sellers of swords, toys, posters, costumes, action figures, tattoo artists, aspiring artists, etc., all have their place as do fun-loving costumers. Keep in mind that non-comic vendors cannot sustain themselves alone, and a handful of opportunistic sellers can quickly diminish the arena with dubious offerings. Convention managers make big money from celebrity signings and photo-ops, and while celebrities from movies and television are big draws, managers are focused on filling spaces on a first-come first-serve basis, often with little or no regard to who ultimately occupies them or how many non-comic vendors end up selling the same products. Without comic book artists, writers, and back issues, the comic book conventions we've come to know and love could go away.

TODD McDEVITT NEW DIMENSION COMICS

I always think it's important to know where the substance of these market reports is coming from, so here is a little background on me. I started out with a comic shop in my hometown of Ellwood City (about 45 minutes north of Pittsburgh), Pennsylvania in 1986. Since then, New Dimension Comics has grown to 5 stores surrounding the Pittsburgh area. When I started, I thought it would be just me in one store having fun selling comics. I never expected to grow to 5 stores and 50-some employees.

All this time dedicating my life to comics has earned me the privilege to offer an overview of the comic market in my region here. It has been very flattering over the past year to run into collectors at conventions and in my stores and have them express to me that they enjoy reading what I contribute here. This year, I did something I had been thinking about for a long time. I hosted a gathering of my staff and collectors in the Pittsburgh area. We sat for hours chatting about trends in comics in general and of course specific to our region. I intend to host the same in Oct. of 2015, so if anyone would like to attend, please contact me at todd@ndcomics.com. Special thanks to those who took part this year. Very insightful!

Marvel Movie Mania: As I write this, we are on the heels of the giant announcement of many years worth of Marvel movies to come. They are on fire. It seems that they can do no wrong. There was concern that using a silly, obscure property like Guardians of the Galaxy would be an embarrassment for them, but instead it became very well liked and one of their top grossing films. The result: early appearances of a talking raccoon in Marvel comics became very expensive. Not to mention the talking tree. All of the characters announced with this new wave of movies to be made in the coming years, their appearances exploded in price immediately. A former dollar bin regular, Ms. Marvel #1, is now a marquee book for $50-100. Black Panther's first appearance in Fantastic Four #52 has doubled in price in 2 months. My only concern is the longevity of these prices. There's always a giant hot spurt when these announcements are first made. Once these films have been made and we are watching them on Netflix, I don't see them doubling again.

Conversely, DC, meaning Warner Bros., is missing the boat. Why aren't they cranking out films too? We have to wait until 2016 for Batman V. Superman?! There was speculation that Doomsday would be involved in this film. Prices on that villain's first appearance skyrocketed right away. Lately, they have been spiraling downwards. I'm not sure what the status of this characters involvement in the film series is, but I also suspect the plentiful amount of copies of these issues that were produced influences the value as well. I actually had a sealed case of Superman Man of Steel #18 that I sold as such. DC seems to have better success on the small screen. Arrow, Gotham, and The Flash are all well received. Appearances of minor characters bump prices. New Teen Titans #99 with the first Arsenal sells for $10-15. Firestorm #23 with the first Felicity Smoak sells for $8-12. This is fun, but I'm not sure these will last forever. Anyone remember the crazy speculation for DNAgents when CBS optioned it for a TV show in 1985? Or the tremendous value to a Jon Sable #1 when the TV show was on ABC? Exactly.

So, what holds value? My answer, icons. Heroes that have endured for decades and will for decades more. If buying comics with a slant on investing is your thing, I can't steer you towards the New Mutants #98s of the hobby. During my meeting with staff, dealers, and vintage collectors, I asked an important question. Do you ever see key Silver Age books going down in price? We all agreed... No. The demand and rarity for important comics is very robust. On the occasion that I have a key book to offer, there are typically several people panting for the opportunity to pull the trigger. For example, I recently purchased a Journey Into Mystery #83 and sold it in less than a week. I actually did that twice this year with that book. It certainly helps that I have a long history of pricing fairly and have developed many clients who appreciate my business approach and buy from me with confidence. With so many customers on a waiting list for key books with me, I can pay a hefty premium to buy them.

I have some curiosity about the ranking of extremely rare comics. For example, I find it odd that the first appearance of The Spectre is worth considerably more money than the first appearance of Wonder Woman. And the first appearance of Green Arrow and Aquaman, in the same comic book: More Fun Comics #73, is not even in the Top 25 most valuable comics. These 2 heroes have more longevity than the Spectre ever will. (Sorry Spectre!) I know there are other factors here such as scarcity, pre-war versus post-war, etc. that influence price. One contributing aspect that affects price I believe is the cover. For example, the cover to All Star Comics #8 does not show Wonder Woman even though it's her first appearance. However, the cover to All-American Comics #16 predominantly shows Green Lantern and is his first appearance and is much more expensive. It would be a fun experiment to take the current top 25 comic books and have them ranked by fellow Overstreet advisers without price as a factor. It would be interesting to see the ranking some of these more important comics would achieve.

There is another important shift in the vintage collecting hobby that I think is interesting to mention. I can remember a past where vintage collectors would come in, buy a comic book for say $40, and diligently remove the price tag before leaving the store with it so their wives would not see how much they just spent on a comic book. Now, in this era of high profile comic book characters and record-breaking prices making the news, these fellas who almost collected in secret now have the blessings of their significant others. Some even come in and shop with them!

Buying: With this current climate of price stimulation and demand, I have been putting forth more effort than ever to buy vintage collections. This includes big travel. This year, I took a leap of faith to fly to Las Vegas to offer on some collections. After all the costs involved, it was a great success. My stellar reputation has even encouraged many folks to mail me their collections for review, including Amazing Spider-Man #1-20 this year. Funny, all these seem like a distant memory since all those comics have sold. I'm looking forward to another great year bringing treasures home to offer to my fabulous customers!

STEVE MORTENSEN MIRACLE COMICS

2014 was another banner year for comic book collecting. All eras and titles seem to be increasing in value, with high-grades and Golden Age comics seeing especially high values. This year we saw an All-Star Comics #8 (1st Wonder Woman) sell for $44,813 in CGC 5.5. This same comic sold for $8,733 in 2011 in CGC 6.0. That's a $36,000 rise in 3 years! Golden Age super-hero comics are capturing high prices -- especially the key books, which are selling for multitudes of Guide. We all know about the Action Comics #1 CGC 9.0 sale in August of 2014; the book set a new record fetching $3.2 million.

This year also brought us CGC's new grading system for Conserved instead of Restored comics. Comics that have minimal restoration that is meant to "conserve the structural integrity" of a book receive a Conserved label. I think part of this is due to the stigma attached to graded, restored comics that carry the purple label designation. It will be interesting to see how that plays out in the market. For example, a Batman #1 CGC 5.0 (Universal) sold for $83,650 in November of 2014. That same month, a Batman #1 CGC 5.5 (Conserved) was offered up and sold for $23,900. It appears the market has not fully accepted the Conserved label as being close or equal to a Universal grade. Maybe 50-100 years from now, collectors who have conserved their comics will have the last laugh since those books will have gone through some protection against aging.

Remember that CGC holders are not archival quality like a Mylar. It is recommended that books be re-slabbed on a recurring basis. Some say the microchamber should be replaced every 7 years, while others say they might outlive our lifetimes. It is still a good idea to have a look at your CGC books that were graded more than 10 years ago. See if there are signs of aging in the microchamber and re-slab as necessary.

I've carved out my niche in the Bronze/Copper/Modern Age markets. Many of my customers are picking up key issues at rapid paces and the investment demands are rising. DC Comics Presents #26 (1st New Teen Titans) has been a really hot book. In CGC 9.8, it is selling above $500. The Guide value on the book is $85 in NM-. Another hot book is New Mutants #98 (1st appearance of Deadpool). In December of 2014, the book sold for a record $750 in CGC 9.8. One year earlier, the book sold in the $350-400 range. This is due to the announcement of the 2016 movie. X-Force #2 (2nd appearance of Deadpool) has gone from a "quarter book" to selling for $100 in CGC 9.8.

Star Wars issues have surged as well due to the new movie. Issue #1 in CGC 9.8 is now pushing $800 -- an almost 100% rise from a year ago. My suspicion is the book will continue to rise as the movie debut gets closer. The series has performed well as collectors try to complete 9.8 sets.

Some notable sales in 2014: Epic Illustrated #1 CGC 9.8 for $201; Tomb of Dracula #58 CGC 9.8 for $154; Amazing Spider-Man #315 CGC 9.8 for $81, #430 CGC 9.8 for $69; Incredible Hulk #2 CGC 2.5 for $576, #3 CGC 2.0 for $185; X-Men #136 CGC 9.8 for $162, #142 CGC 9.8 for $248, #143 CGC 9.8 for $67; Sandman #8 (1st Death) for $286; Punisher Limited Series #1 CGC 9.8 for $203; Marvel Team-Up #65 CGC 9.6 (1st U.S. appearance of Captain Britain) $117; Pretty Deadly #1 (Image) for $35; Secret Wars #8 CGC 9.8 (Spider-Man black costume) for $152; Conan the Barbarian #44 CGC 9.8 (Red Sonja cover) for $202; What If #31 CGC 9.8 for $92; Swamp Thing #3 CGC 9.8 for $381, #7 CGC 9.6 for $109; Spider-Woman #2 CGC 9.8 for $72; Godzilla #1 CGC 9.8 for $174; Thief of Thieves #1 CGC 9.8 for $158; Itchy & Scratchy #1 CGC 9.8 for $89, #2 CGC 9.8 for $106; Green Arrow #1 CGC 9.8 (1988) for $125.

On another note, I've noticed a rise in non-paying bidders on eBay this year. Even a few of my long-standing customers left me holding the bag for $500 or more. The penalties to the buyer are minimal and the rules should be changed so that sellers have more say. Despite this, I am still a great believer in the free market system on eBay and other sites. It has made the hobby very enjoyable for me by expanding my reach beyond flea markets and shows.

Graded comics continue to be the standard for buying and selling online due to their impartiality. However, on the collecting front, I've enjoyed purchasing ungraded Golden Age super-hero comics -- there's nothing like reading an old comic. Most of my collection is in CGC books but I love reading comics and I think that collectors can enjoy both.

TOM NELSON TOP NOTCH COMICS

The comic market seems to be growing along with the general economy in 2014 and the cheaper price of gas always helps. It's not that people are getting back to work, but many people get overtime and that ends up as fun money to spend on collectibles.

The movie announcements continued almost all year long, and it creates a feeding frenzy for first appearances of characters in future films.

Some of the Silver Age movie speculation books were in the Fantastic Four series: #45 first Inhumans, #46 first Black Bolt, #52 first Black Panther. Other hot Fantastic Four books from the mid '60s are the Fantastic Four #48 first Silver Surfer, #36 Frightful Four Medusa, and #67 Warlock.

The Flash now has his own successful TV series, and some of his Silver Age issues have picked up in demand also. The mega key Showcase #4 has almost doubled in value in the past year in grades below fine. The regular Flash series has seen some keys heating up also: #105 first Mirror Master, #106 first Grodd and Pied Piper, #110 first Kid Flash, #117 first Boomerang, and #139 First Professor Zoom.

Brave and the Bold has many early Silver DC first appearances and have they taken off this year: #25 First Suicide Squad, #28 first Justice League, #54 and #60 Teen Titans.

Future Silver picks: X-Men #4 Quicksilver and Scarlet Witch, Tales to Astonish #44 Wasp, Showcase #17 Adam Strange, Showcase #37 Metal Men, My Greatest Adventure #80 Doom Patrol, and Strange Adventures #180 Animal Man.

Bronze Age comics have gotten so big one can split out early Bronze and late Bronze.

The biggest Marvel keys of the early Bronze are Incredible Hulk #180 & 181, Hero for Hire #1, Iron Man #55, Giant-Size X-Men #1, Marvel Spotlight #5 Ghost Rider, Marvel Preview #15 Iron Fist, Amazing Spider-Man #129 and 121. DC Keys: Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #134, Batman #222 Beatles, #227 Classic cover, #232 Ra's al Ghul, #234 Two Face, #251 Joker, Forever People #1, and House of Secrets #92.

Some sales this year: Incredible Hulk #181 Fair $400, CGC 8.0 qualified $800, Hero For Hire #1 CGC 9.4 $1200, VG $125, Iron Man #55 CGC 8.5 SS Stan Lee $1095, Giant-Size X-Men #1 CGC 7.0 SS Stan Lee $819.95. Amazing Spider-Man #129 CGC 6.5 SS Stan Lee $550, 7.0 SS Stan Lee 700, Batman #222 CGC 9.0 $350, CGC 9.4 $900, Forever People #1 CGC 9.4 $500, CGC 9.0 $150, Marvel Preview #4 CGC 9.8 $2200, CGC 9.4 $625.

The late Bronze Age is where there have been some huge percentage gains. Ms. Marvel #1, Nova #1, Amazing Spider-Man #194 Black Cat, X-Men #101 Phoenix, Shazam! #28 Black Adam, All Star Comics #58 Power Girl, Marvel Spotlight #32 Spider-Woman, Marvel Preview #4 Starlord, Marvel Preview #7 Rocket Raccoon, She-Hulk #1, Star Wars #1, Werewolf By Night #32 Moon Knight. Some sales this year are: Ms. Marvel #1 CGC 9.6 $500, 9.0 $200, Nova #1 CGC 9.6 $250, X-Men #101 CGC 9.8 SS Stan Lee $1700, Shazam! #28 CGC 9.6 $400, All Star Comics #58 CGC 9.8 $650, CGC 9.0 $150, Marvel Spotlight #32 VF $50, Marvel Preview #4 CGC 9.8 $2200, CGC 9.4 $650, She-Hulk #1 CGC 9.6 $100, Star Wars #1 CGC 9.8 $585, CGC 9.6 $250, Werewolf By Night #32 CGC 9.4 $1,000.

Some of the scarcest high value Bronze Age books are Star Wars #2, #3, and #4 (35 cent price variants), along with Scooby Doo #1 Gold Key 1970. I believe all these books would sell for over $2,000 in CGC 9.2 if they were available via auction.

Future Bronze Age picks: Inhumans #1, Black Panther #1, Marvel Spotlight #32 Spider-Woman, Detective Comics #474 Deadshot, Captain America #217 Quasar.

Copper Age '80s comics has seen continued growth with movie announcements and it feels like there's an overall general collecting interest in this era. Some of the popular keys that were heating up are DC Comics Presents #26 New Teen Titans, New Teen Titans #2 Deathstroke, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1, Saga of the Swamp Thing #37 Constantine, Secret Wars #8, Albedo #2, New Mutants #87 Cable, New Mutants #98 Deadpool, Amazing Spider-Man #238 and #300, X-Factor #6 Apocalypse, Wolverine Limited #1. Batman Dark Knight #1, Sandman #1 and #8 Death.

The biggest book is Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 however, it is traded infrequently in comparison to other Copper Age keys. The two big heavy hitters from the Copper Age that trade with high volume are Amazing Spider-Man #300 Venom and New Mutants #98 Deadpool. Regardless of how many copies come up for sale, the demand is so strong they liquidate just as quickly. I did a count of how many total copies either raw or certified are being sold on eBay in November, 279 copies of New Mutants #98 sold that is around 9 copies per day. Amazing Spider-Man #300 had 219 copies sold around 7 copies per day. Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles saw 12 copies all CGC certified in a three month period, so that's just four copies in a month.

Some sales for Amazing Spider-Man #300 no cover $25, VG $100, VF $175, CGC 9.4 $300, CGC 9.8 $1,000. New Mutants #98 started off the year with CGC 9.8 copies selling for $425 by the end of the year CGC 9.8 copies were selling for $750. New Mutants #98 at the end of the year are selling for $100 in VG, $200 in VF to VF/NM. The value of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 is due to its scarcity, in a hypothetical situation if New Mutants #98 or Amazing Spider-Man #300 had equal scarcity as Turtles #1, I believe the value would be equal or even higher.

Future picks: Secret Wars #1, The Crow #1, Amazing Spider-Man #344, Action Comics #521 Vixen.

1990s books lead the way with Harley Quinn in Batman Adventures #12, Amazing Spider-Man #361 first Carnage,

Preacher #1 and Preacher Preview, the Superman books are Death #75, and Man of Steel #17 and #18. Some of the early Valiant still have not really popped in value, they are still in limbo. Some of the TV/Movie titles from the 1990s are heating up, raw copies of early Simpsons, Back to the Future, Chucky Child's Play, and Nightmare on Elm Street are selling for $5-$10 each.

An overview of the 2000s: I didn't focus very much on the books from the past 15 years this year, the books I did deal with were The Walking Dead, Amazing Spider-Man, and Batman titles. They still are the most popular long running titles and we were able to move some commons and variants with good success. There are just dozens of break outs in the Spider-Man run, some are limited, some are artist covers, some are just dang cool. Amazing Spider-

Man 1 DF variant, #1 Sunburst variant, #25 hologram, #36 9/11 issue, #492 and #493 Mary Jane, #546 Sketch, #568 Alex Ross, #569 Venom, #600 variants, #601 Campbell, #606 Campbell, #607, #611 Deadpool, #632 Heroic Age, #638-641 1-100 sketch, #648 variants, #651 Tron, #667 Dell'Otto, #678 Quinones, #688 Campbell, #692 variants, #700 all first prints.

Well that's all folks. With the improving economy I don't see any slowdown in the near future for back issue comic book collectors.

JAMIE NEWBOLD SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA COMICS

Greetings from San Diego! Or should I say "Sand Diego" 'cause it's 'sun, sand, and fun here while the rest of the U.S. is surviving an arctic blast! Also, it's comic books.

Lots of collections have come in this fall which is surprising, because the fall months (September through early December) are weak months for us. The pattern of sales typically dipping after school starts at the end of August and not rising again until Christmas is imminent. These fruitful opportunities to buy and sell have been consistent through the store and our website. Our 2014 selection in the CGC Collectors Society Top Ten list and nomination for an Eisner Spirit Award have contributed to an increased customer base.

These are wonderful accomplishments but only a part of the chemistry that has helped business steadily grow. Right now in early November, gas prices have been their lowest since 2006. Economy experts indulge business owners with the sense that lower gas prices will contribute to our income. That may very well be part of the equation now. For our comic book industry, the sense that Hollywood is a major contributing factor is justified. All day long we are inundated with comments about television and movie appearances; projects and actors in comic book roles. The internet displays daily revelations about comic book movies and TV shows. It can be a chore to keep up with the news and the accompanying fan interest in new and old comics that host a particular character or plot dovetailing with published comic book stories. It's also kind of exciting.

The feeling of relevance surrounding comic book stores is potent. Many people look to stores for advice and product in tune with television and the movies. The comic books themselves are reaching a broader audience as we see more new faces shopping in our store. There's a kind of groundswell of newbies to the hobby, eager to discover what all the fuss is about.

For our purposes, business is up partially due to the frequency and quantity of comic book back issue collections that we've purchased. Just like 2013, 2014 is a strong year for us in that regard. We've picked up thousands of comics with hundreds of those topical in today's market. We've nailed down some awesome Silver/Bronze Age books with quantities of keys. We've purchased a smattering of Golden Age including DCs and Atom Age Atlas comics. And, we've sold the same in frequent numbers. For Overstreeters who've heard this all before, we still see incoming collections from original owners with high-grade copies. We pay accordingly and succeeded in purchasing most of the collections that we encountered. Some required trips out but most came to the store.

San Diego's transitory population is both a blessing and a curse. We gain collections which owners are forced to leave behind when they move and lose those same customers that bought from us on a regular basis, who supported our store. The military is always a factor in this town, since we have proximity to several military bases. The Marines maintain a large presence here as well as an airfield. We are thankful during this Veterans Day week that so many of our military returned to San Diego and love our store.

By our count there are five unique third-party grading services who furnish collectors worldwide. HALO may not be familiar to Americans but Grant's grading service is thriving in the Australian region. CBCS is the newest, bringing comfort in knowing the characters behind the business. Other grading services present little or no personal face to the public. That makes it hard to establish credibility when the people to whom we entrust our books remain somewhat anonymous.

We see pricing services online that offer promises of accuracy but no established identity that validates their abilities. We're wary of anything on the internet. Especially 'net programs that promise statistics for a price (subscription). GPAnalysis has promised and delivered the stats for CGC books for years. They deliver based upon identifiable sales. No complicated explanations that rely on algorithms to compute pricing with no guarantees of their accuracy. Even Overstreet acknowledges their product is guidance in the rocky world of pricing.

Pricing comic book back issues is much more subjective than grading back issues. We've wrestled with the constraints of applying fair pricing against the cost of doing business for years. Like my fellow convention dealers, we tend to pay more to peers at shows than we would at the shop. Dealers pass a little price break back and forth to each other at every con I've ever attended. Not all dealers give or get that break but savvy, connected comic book guys know who they can do business with. We might get a 20% discount from one seller and then price it up 20% over what we paid to make a decent profit. The book will sit longer the higher its priced. That's a formula that many of my peers exist with. Sometimes buying from fellow dealers is the only way to get new inventory. A fresh stock is important to keep customers returning. Many of those customers buy on gut instincts and will pay the given prices (figuring in occasional discounts). The system rolls on like that for all of us retailers.

I've heard complaints for years about "convention prices", especially at the San Diego Convention. There's been a feeling that prices are jacked up for the show only. I disagree. The prices are what they are because that's what the dealers expected to get. Those prices and those dealers would not be self-sustaining if they weren't able to pull off those prices. Buyers that are not likely to purchase from those dealers (which includes us) can choose to go through the internet and take their chances. When buyers go to Con, they're paying for the opportunity to buy in person and judge the grade/price of a comic book. They get to erase any doubts upon a hands-on inspection and walk away with or without the book. Thank God we have the internet to confuse and bamboozle people so often that they understand convention dealers are a better alternative!

Our two corner booths at the SD show cost us $5,000 for the 6-day show. We vary our costs anywhere from full price to full price with discounts. All this in an effort to make money at an event that offers no assurances or promises. Our overhead is increased another $1,500-$2,000 from van rentals and payroll. These may seem like high numbers until you learn that we live in the same town as that show. Out-of-towners pay much heavier fees. This year the San Diego Visitor's Bureau and the City Council are urging hotels to keep their rates at a fixed price fairer to guests during the event. The emphasis is on not gouging anymore than they already do. The theory is the Con officials feel that better rates from other cities may surface when their contract is up in San Diego.

We've made lots of money and little money at various shows. The sale of a few big ticket items can make our booth profitable if we have that kind of stuff in inventory. Plenty of competitors have less than we do and we question whether the show is working for them. Our predictable heavy volume of comic book sales pays the bills at shows so we work all year to amass a fortune in back issues to keep our role in that show going. To make the show hit sales numbers that allow us to continue, discounts are introduced when and where we deem necessary. This is a system we use at the store and on the website. We're reluctant to do so at every day of every show. That can cut two ways: some buyers lay in wait for the discounts to pop up while other buyers that paid full price feel cheated. Selling at conventions requires tactics in the big leagues!

Conventions are everywhere all the time so they must be a source of income for the hosts and promoters. That's another strong indicator of the health of our hobby. Convention season used to reside in an April-August window but that's all been superseded by a show somewhere virtually every week. It is a crazy idea that any back issue guy would take on the headache and overhead of a store when shows cost less and are plentiful.

Modern Comics: Modern comics continue to be the roller coaster of sales that they have been for the last few years. Advanced writers and stories dominate the shelves, but the success of these can be impacted by gimmicks and flash-in-the-pan cash-in attempts. Giant event crossovers could be reaching a burn-out phase with customers. While enjoyable, they are appearing back to back at a rising rate. Many times, a storyline exists ONLY for the purpose of setting up the next one, and so on. Also, with constant announcements of future ideas to come and teasers of more blockbuster stories, sales for event tie-ins have dipped slightly.

Once again, comic book media has a huge relationship to sales on the stands. A breakout character in a film or TV show can cause a sluggish title to sell out, right under our noses. Demand to get the newer, fresher version of these icons in print causes many more casual buyers or speculators to enter the stores and cherry pick what they are looking for.

At the same time, we have noticed an interesting shift in consumers and readers: women. More and more women seem to be getting drawn into the comic book world, as well as the surrounding culture. Due to the intense interest of comic book movies and shows, the old stigma of comics only being for secular nerds is crumbling and being replaced with a more general and far reaching acceptance. Because of this, modern books are being put out that may reflect more buyer's sensibilities. For example: gone are the days of overly dramatic romance comics. They have been replaced with stories about strong, female characters who have escaped the literary confines of girlfriends and distressed damsel roles.

The weekly Image Comics #1 issue frenzy has died down a bit this year. While they continue to release various new ongoing and miniseries each month, the fanaticism to find the next hot ticket item isn't as strong or demanding. Many of these still sell out in a few days, but the intensity of their purchasing isn't as ravenous. Perhaps customers are becoming more patient for second printings or maybe they want to wait and see where the story goes before committing an ongoing monthly investment. In fact, the staggering number of comics being put out by the various companies may be too much for many people to follow. The number of DC Comics featuring Batman or Batman family characters has hit almost half of their books published each month. Gone are the days when people can subscribe to ALL books of a certain character; now they must pick and choose what they really want to read.

Silver Age/Bronze Age: As stated many times so far, the power of comic book movies is massive. Popular, expensive books reach even HIGHER levels. Certain books that didn't hit major desirability are gaining a new life by having a media counterpart. And with all the calls and interest, it may be possible for this cycle to continue forever. From the obvious requests like the first Black Panther (locked away in our glass cases) to the rather obscure and unexpected first Hulkbuster armor (tucked inside our dollar bins). Groot and Rocket Raccoon built investment into two relatively value-less 1980s Incredible Hulk comics issues. Black Panther in Fantastic Four #52 and Black Manta in Aquaman #35 are now as hot as Avengers #1 was two and a half years ago.

Silver Age speculators are betting on other common issues from the '60s and '70s to hedge bet for the future. We see that the exhaustible wait for Dr. Strange and the Sub-Mariner to improve their value has already begun. Even before Strange was granted a movie, the public assumed it was inevitable and made runs on our inventory for first appearances.

Saturday Night Live did a skit this season about Marvel's movie and television success. I think it was titled "Marvel Can't Fail" and spoofed Marvel Entertainment's post-Guardians Of The Galaxy winner-take-all success at the theaters. The comic books are on fire from the trickle-down effect.

DC's characters are slow to cash in even with all the upcoming movies and current batch of television dramas. Batman still runs the table for back-issue sales from the '60s to the present. Speaking of Silver Age Batman, we were fortunate to have Neal Adams and his wife do not one, but two signings at our store this year! We were honored to be his choice for a San Diego store to inhabit for a couple of afternoons. We opted to get CGC Signature Series books signed by Neal and thank CGC's Michael Balent for approving our facilitation.

Conversely, the demand for common DC comics remains second to Marvel in most every costumed-character title Marvel produced back then. Only Batman (with Detective and Brave and the Bold appearing somewhere nearby) can run sales figures matching the most demanded Marvel titles we carry.

Although it is debated in each Overstreet market report, we maintain faith in pricing common Silver Age comics in most mid- and low-grade Overstreet categories. That doesn't contradict reviews we've written in the past. We have simply mellowed with time and accepted that Overstreet is a legitimate start for most of our average Silver Age pricing. Bronze Age, too. We tend to price the higher grade stuff and keys in between GPA and Overstreet even if the copies are raw (unslabbed). We've had much success selling 9.0s and up according to GPA even when the copies are not CGC'd. Key books in just about any grade have to be priced comparative to the Guide and GPA. The online subscription price guides don't furnish us with enough validation to value their pricing over Overstreet and GPA. Although their intentions may be good, we're not ready to pay for another site with yet another password added to the dozens we already utilize.

Our store sells a hell of a lot of back issues. We've sold so much for so long that we've become our own price guide.

In reference to the subject of raising/lowering prices, we have this to say: for years, certain titles always seemed to be under-represented in Overstreet by price. One of those titles was Wonder Woman. Wonder Woman from the 1940s to the '70s was a relatively inexpensive series to buy against the prices of other DC heroes. We commonly added 10-20% to the retail of any copy we had for sale if the grade warranted it. Other retailers did the same and often qualified those prices with "It's Wonder Woman, so it's always under-priced in the Guide." Times have changed and we don't perceive that as justifiable anymore. The demand and sales of WW back issues has lessened for us. The 'I Ching' era still sells well but we hardly ever have any issues in stock. No, the award for highest-demanded Silver Age DCs is retained by the Neal Adams era of Batman and Detective.

The Batman issues beginning in the late '60s run higher in desire with Adams covers and/or interiors. For years we've upgraded the sales prices to reflect the demand and find that they will sell at an average increase of 20% over Overstreet (see above). The Frank Robbins and Denny O'Neill scripted stuff is still fun to read. The Batman key issues like #227, 232, 234 and 243-245 carry a lot of weight. Our copies routinely sell for multiples of Guide in just about any grade.

The Neal Adams Bats have now thrived for the forty, non-stop years that Jamie's been an adult!

Golden Age: Strangely, we detect little crossover in movie/TV crossover speculation like the more contemporary versions of the same characters. GA Batmans (which we have) have no more pronounceable buyer demand than they did before the Chris Nolan trilogy. We assume Timelys are still hot but we can't be sure. It's been a couple of years since we've had a marked quantity. We can't for the life of us discern any GA trend since this has been one of our lightest years for Golden Age collections to purchase. We did pick up a fat run of Adventure Comics from the late '30s through the early '50s. Purely Comic-Con or website fodder. Store customers treat them like museum pieces. Dead things that are cool to look at but no enchantment to collect (Jamie highly disagrees if "serious" collectors poo-poo them as something not worth owning).

Over the years our store has acquired and sold Western, Disney, Teen comics, Romance, and Funny Animal stuff. Certainly we all recognize these are second or third-tier collectibles in the hierarchy of comic book genres. The old Comic Book Marketplace and writers like Michelle Nolan did their damndest to keep the light of interest burning over those comics. But still, desire continues to fade with time. We used to depend on conventions and website hits to move that kind of material. We did pretty well until the past two years. The progress in sales for those comics has slowed down for us matched as well by less interest in other standbys: Mad comics and magazines sales are almost nonexistent at fair market value. Classics Illustrated actually have more demand than old Mads. Conversely, we've made offers on a couple of Classics Illustrated collections but were unsuccessful at nailing them down.

Funny Animal comics used to be the bane of our store's existence. They sold so poorly for years that we cringed when a collection came into our store. In that regard, not much has changed. Bugs Bunny and the other Dells are as dead as can be. We still manage to move the ones we get by letting them go for next to nothing to young readers and die-hard cartoon fans at the store. Westerns disappoint me because I like them, but they are slow to sell. Those and TV Western comics are always fun to look at. For example, Lone Ranger and Cheyenne comics actually sell for us - indicators that Western collectors are still out there.

Disneys from the 1940s will sell like they always do. We grasp the necessity of discounting Disneys to keep the money flowing. Their name-brand recognition keeps the spotlight on them at shows if we have them in stock. Everybody clamors for heavy discounts on Disneys, from the US to Western Europe. We get collections but the piss-poor prices we have to sell them for makes it impossible to pry them loose from owners who expect more cashola. The best Disneys, the earliest issues and first appearances, seldom show up off the streets anymore.

Local collector Steve Ensor is a longtime pre-Code Horror collector. He notes that nobody seems to be collecting runs of those comics anymore. Steve says the hobby has solidified behind the key cover issues driving up prices while the commons just sort of sit there. The true readers can get that stuff for fair prices once again.

We like the direction the hobby is going. There's enough diversity in selection and pricing to please everyone. Speculators are rampant driving up prices and interest. New comics continue to fuel the entertainment industry which refuels comic book sales. Third-party grading is keeping a lot of people honest and competition between graders is helping to motivate them to work for the collectors. Comic Conventions are everywhere with Stan Lee seemingly occupying several at the same time! His presence and signature is singularly driving people to shows. There is no better time like the present to collect and read comic books!

Significant Sales: The below listed figures are a fraction of our past year's sales. The sales represent a combination of the store, website, eBay and comic convention achievements.

TERRY O'NEILL

TERRY'S COMICS/CALCOMICCON NATIONWIDECOMICS

This report focuses primarily on the convention and mail order aspects of the comic book marketplace. Generally, sales from 2013 to 2014 have been strong. Many larger conventions have been selling out of passes, which unfortunately keeps some comic book collectors from attending, causing sales to decrease. That said, I am encouraged to see many more young people looking for older back issues from the Silver and Bronze Ages. This can only be good for our hobby.

All the movies and TV shows with comic characters and comic book references have certainly helped get a new generation interested in collecting. To meet the demand, we plan to put more comics online and on auction sites in 2015.

Golden Age: Demand for Golden Age Keys is on fire, especially the big ones such as Superman #1, Batman #1, All Star #3 & #8, and Captain America #1. I usually have five or more customers lined up for any of these if by chance I come across a copy. Sadly, most of them are locked up in collections and rarely offered at comic shows. More Fun #73 (1st Aquaman) is a comic to watch as I have had many people ask for a copy; however, I have not seen one in quite a few years. Some possible sleeper keys are More Fun #101 (1st Superboy), Human Torch #2(#1), Master Comics #21 (1st Captain Marvel Jr.), Marvel Mystery #13 (1st Vision), and All-American #19 (1st Atom). Better known titles sell at or above Guide in middle to upper grade, but sales are softer in the very high or low grades.

Demand for oddball and scarce superheroes is mainly from dealers and veteran collectors who are looking for that comic that no one has seen in thirty or so years. Some examples include All-New Comics, Speed Comics, Champ Comics, and Smash Comics. Sales of note: Young Allies #1 3.0 $2,000, Donald Duck FC #9 4.0 CGC $1,800, All-American Comics #8 7.0 $1125, #61 5.5 Restored $1,600, Mickey Mouse FC #16 3.0 $1,530, Human Torch Comics #8 5.0 $1,500, #12 2.0 $1,325, and Superman #14 2.0 $1000.

Atom Age (1946-1955): Atlas Horror/Monster in VG or better are in super high demand as are many other genres. The long running titles such as Strange Tales, Journey into Mystery, and Uncanny Tales are doing very well. Millie the Model and related Atlas teen titles are still moving fast. DC War titles have slowed down quite a bit, but the DC Sci-Fi titles such as Strange Adventures and Mystery in Space are picking up. Anything with Matt Baker art sells fast, while Dan DeCarlo material is not as hot as it once was. With so many great titles and artist, the Atom Age is a great place for an advanced collector to explore. Sales of note: Young Men #26 6.5 $650, Venus #13 5.5 $450, Saint #3 8.5 $399, Moon Girl #1 3.5 $380, All Top Comics #17 6.0 $360, Astonishing #29 8.0 $300, Billy Buckskin #1 8.5 $250, Black Knight #1 5.0 $250, Uncanny Tales #4 6.0 $230, Jann of the Jungle #16 8.0 $225, and Journey into Unknown Worlds #26 5.0 $225.

Silver Age: As in years past, the bulk of revenues from comic conventions come from Silver Age sales. All first issues and key appearances sell very well, which makes it difficult for the OCBPG to keep up with the pricing as it changes almost on a monthly basis. Some of the hottest comics for the past year are Incredible Hulk #1, Amazing Fantasy #15, Brave and the Bold #26, and Iron Man #1. Some titles that were dead for many years are now hot. Here are a few: Brave and the Bold #25 (1st Suicide Squad) and #54 (1st Teen Titans), Strange Tales #110 & #169 (1st Doctor Strange and solo title), and Journey into Mystery #114 (1st Absorbing Man). It seems that any and all superheroes and villains from all eras could possibly be the next hot comic. Just buy one of everything and have all your bases covered. Sales of note: Avengers #1 CGC 7.5 $6700, Incredible Hulk #1 PGX 3.5 $6500, Amazing Fantasy #15 PGX 2.0 $6200, Fantastic Four #1 4.5 $5000, Amazing Spider-Man #1 4.0 $2400, and Brave and the Bold #28 3.5 $2000.

Bronze Age: This is the largest amount of comics we sell by volume and it is closing fast on Silver Age in total sales dollars. Incredible Hulk #181 is always in super high demand with many dealers (including me) selling a copy and then having to pay the same price or more to replace the one sold. I cannot keep most Bronze Age keys in stock with show demand so intense. Especially good sellers are:

Amazing Spider-Man #121 & #122, Iron Man #55, Marvel Premiere #15 (1st Iron Fist), Star Wars #1, Fear #19 (1st Howard the Duck), and Ms. Marvel #18 (1st full Mystique). Every time a new movie or TV show is announced it is like winning a mini lottery as I usually have at least one of the new hot titles in stock. Some recent sales include Iron Man #55 9.2 $1300, Giant-Size X-Men #1 8.0 $775, Incredible Hulk #181 5.0 $550, 7.0 $700 & 7.5 $750, House of Secrets #92 8.0 $600, Amazing Spider-Man #129 8.0 $600, X-Men #94 8.5 $600, and Batman #232 9.2 $500.

Magazines: Yes, a good year for magazine sales with two first appearances of major Guardians of the Galaxy characters in Marvel Preview #4 (Star Lord) and #7 (Rocket Raccoon). Our magazine sales this year are the best we've seen in quite a while. We also came across a good run of high grade Mad magazines, which also sold well. If you are looking for great collectibles, don't overlook comic magazines. Sales of note: Marvel Preview #4 CGC 9.8 $2500, #4 8.0 $400, #7 CGC 9.0 $1300, Mad Magazine #29 9.2 $300, #25 8.5 $275, Planet of the Apes #28 CGC 9.4 $70, Creepy #1 6.5 $50, Epic Illustrated #1 CGC 9.8 $250.

Modern Age & Independents: New Mutants #98 and Batman Adventures #12 are the two hottest comics of the Modern Age. I sold a copy at one show and then had to pay more to replace it at the next show. Previously, we did not focus too much on this market, but the prices for many modern titles have caused us to take another look. We have had to learn this whole genre as the extent of our expertise was up to the late Bronze Age. Sure, X-Men titles always sold well up to #140, then Days of Future Past was announced and #141 and #142 were suddenly hot. Kids seem to love Carnage, so Amazing Spider-Man #361 is hot. Rocket Raccoon mini-series is also requested as well as Age of Apocalypse. So much material that was delegated to the $1 box for many years is now sought after. Sales of note: Amazing Spider-Man #361 CGC 9.8 $200, Venom #1 9.8 $100, Preacher #1 9.8 $300, Hellblazer #1 CGC 9.8 $250, Batman Adventures #12 CGC 9.6 $300, Predator #1 CGC 9.8 $160, Batman: The Dark Knight Returns #1 CGC 9.8 $400, Incredible Hulk #271 9.2 $150, and New Mutants #98 9.4 $150.

Graded Books: Graded books sell best for us in our eBay store, and it's the only way to get top dollar for modern comics. If you are only buying for investment, stick to graded comics in the highest grade you can afford. Graded comics are also closely screened and will disclose any restoration that has been done, such as color touch. I am especially glad to see the new company CBCS enter the hobby for the competition. Some sales of note: Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 65 $4500, Brave and the Bold #60 CGC 9.2 $1300, Amazing Spider-Man #50 CGC 9.0 $1200, Leading Comics #1 CGC 5.5 $1100, Mystic Comics V1#4 GC 3.5 $1000, Adventure Comics #86 CGC 7.0 $750, and Showcase #13 CGC 5.0 $500.

Internet Sales: We have a website that lists about 50,000 comics for sale. We also have a warehouse with more than a quarter million paper items including Comics, Hard Cover Books, Fanzines, Comic Magazines, Original Artwork, Lobby Cards, Pulp, BLBs Digests, Paperbacks and other collectibles. There are runs of many modern comics that we will sell upon request via want lists. Most of our entire inventory is at www.Terryscomics.com

In summary, I'm encouraged to see a lot of young people enter the hobby. Back in the late 1990s, the talk among my peers included what we might be doing in ten years' time when no one wanted old paper anymore. We also wondered what would happen if all the comics went digital and made paper obsolete. It seems our fears were unfounded, at least for the time being. So find some sleepers and make some money. Maybe read some of them and discover the entertaining source of all those comic related blockbuster movies and great TV series.

MICHAEL PAVLIC PURPLE GORILLA COMICS

Greetings from southern Alberta! Once again I'd like to thank the fine folks at Overstreet for giving me this opportunity to blab incoherently to other comic lovers around the world. I need to thank Sgt. Erock, Dave at Amazing Fantasy in Red Deer AB and Ben, Kyle and Martin at Phoenix Comics here in Calgary. They are far kinder to me than I deserve. A special shout out to Doug Sulipa, who allowed me to see his warehouse full of treasures this past summer. It was sensory overload! Finally, yes Doyle, this is still all your fault!

The back issue market in Alberta is still continuing to experience steady growth, echoing the overall economy of the region. This is across the board, from the super fancy key books to the plain old back issue. It's also across all genres. I sell plenty of Westerns, War, Romance, Funny Animals, Undergrounds, movie and TV tie-ins, you name it, someone wants it. In Calgary no store has $1 comics (let alone quarter bins!), they start at $3. There is the huge Calgary Comic and Entertainment Expo which drew just under 100,000 people in 2014 and there are several smaller old time comic shows for the hardcore Nerds. Yet I feel that the back issue market is still being under-served.

Speaking of under-served, the amount of women entering the hobby in the last few years has been noticeable and quite frankly welcomed. Why this industry tried so hard to exclude women and girls since the 1970s is beyond me. Ignoring 50% of the population is not a good business model. Despite all this, they are enthusiastic readers and collectors. We, as retailers, should do everything we can to make this hobby as inviting as we can, for EVERYONE.

Sadly, there is one very important segment of the population that we still mostly ignore: kids. While IDW, BOOM! and DC have at least consistently offered a few new titles, Marvel only offers screen grabs from the Spidey and Avengers cartoons in their kids comics. My experience is that the Marvel Heroes are far more popular than the DC ones (outside of Batman). I resort to selling cheap copies of Marvel Tales or other old reprint titles to augment the kids selection. I don't know about the average Overstreet reader, but I was 10 years old when I got hooked on comics. Would you sell a 10 year old the issue where the Joker rips the skin off his face and nails it to the wall? Not without showing that to Mom or Dad first! Remember the old DC slogan “Comics aren’t just for kids any more?” Well, that came more than true and that’s not good. The future health of the industry depends on new generations of readers, collectors and investors to survive. We better have comics for everyone or the industry will slowly die off as the average age of the hobbyist continues to rise.

Purple Gorilla Comics tries to cater to all types of comic fans, be they investors, collectors or readers, but with more of a focus on the last two. I’d rather buy a big run of $3-$5 books than pay Guide and then charge 2.5x Guide for a single key book. I can hear you shouting “You’re nuts!” from here...

We rarely get in books over $100 so I won’t bore you with sales figures, except I have to mention a few books where my price and Guide price differ greatly. Amazing Spider-Man #361 is at least $80 in high grade, with #362 and 363 going for at least $25. Anything with Carnage is at least triple Guide. Any pre-New 52 Wonder Woman are double Guide, I cannot restock fast enough. I did manage to sell five different copies of Spectacular Spidey #1 this past year, all above Guide. I think a 40 year old Spidey #1 should be worth more than $90.

Here are the most collected titles of the past 12 months: Amazing Spidey (shocking, I know!), Batman (but not Detective or any other Bat title), Avengers, Thor, TMNT, What If?, Captain America, Hulk, Iron Man, Punisher, Star Wars (Marvel and Dark Horse), Wonder Woman, Spawn, Savage Sword of Conan and Superman. New ones, old ones, beat up ones, it doesn’t matter, these titles sell.

The titles or genres where demand far outstrips supply: Harley Quinn (any comic where she appears), Deadpool, Wonder Woman, Lobo, World’s Finest, Superman, Maxx, Transformers (Marvel), Westerns (Dell, Gold Key, Marvel, DC), any Underground by Crumb, Shelton, Spain or any of the “masters”, Marvel War books, Silver Age/Bronze Age ANYTHING by Marvel or DC (any grade).

Decent sellers: Classics Illustrated, Dell or Gold Key Funny Animal books, movie or TV tie-ins (both old and new), Ghost Rider, X-Men books, Teen Titans (old and new), Wolverine, Spectacular Spidey, Flash, Aliens, Predator, Horror titles especially movie tie-ins.

I carry very few new comics but the few I carry sell well: Scooby Doo Team-Up is the best selling kids comic, followed by My Little Pony. The kiddie Avengers and Spidey books always sell out. For the older readers, Walking Dead TPBs continue to bring in hundreds of new readers a year and it’s not slowing down. Afterlife with Archie sells extremely well but the delay between issues 5 and 6 and 6 and 7 has damaged sales by 60%. Hopefully they can get back on schedule and repair the damage done. Weird Love, the excellent romance reprint title is also a popular read around these parts.

Well, I reckon I’ve blabbed enough. I have to get back to looking through every page of those 5,600 comics I just bought, because clearly, I’m insane.

JEFF AND CAT RADER OFFBEAT ARCHIVES

We have taken a different tactic this year. While making our share of sales, we have been watching the trends for overlooked books. Although the plethora of movies have speculation running wild, there are hundreds, if not thousands, of neglected books that deserve far more attention than they have gotten, or are completely ignored.

After decades of trying to dig up the rarities, like a pig does truffles, it’s become all too apparent that the Photo-Journal Index, while still very indispensable, has gotten skewed over time. Many Rare books have come out of the woodwork, making them more in line with 5-6s on the Scarcity Index, while countless that were taken for granted, and initially assigned low Scarcity Index numbers, have proven near impossibilities to find. One of my ongoing projects is to ascertain what is truly rare (often not what you might imagine), and just how simple, and cheap, it is to land some of those 7s, 8s, and even a few 9s. The Internet has opened up Pandora’s Attic and given a new spin on what we all took for granted before eBay.

Black & white comics are rife with rarities. Much is birdcage fodder but there are some gems that went off the radar decades ago, with print runs to ensure that the market will never be flooded with ultra-high graded copies. For some titles, and issues, just finding something is an accomplishment. Granted, as usual, when prices jump, and interest piqued, copies will always come out of the woodwork... if there are any left in the woodwork. Check out the print-runs on popular B&W titles that DID garner a following and realize that even then, most has miniscule first print runs. The UK B&W books such as Red Fox, and Swiftsure became standbys that flew off our shelves early, and developed a huge fan following. Others along those lines were the Adventurers (with the variant Skeleton cover), Trollords – with different printings of #1, A Plus Comics – reprinting ACG’s Adventures Into the Unknown, and Herbie (that has pretty much flown under the radar, while being one of the most ingenious, hilarious, comics in history), Trollords, Samurai (with countless printings, Empire Lanes, and even Grips. Some of the better titles lasted for decent stretches yet just up and disappeared in the new comics each week. As the fans backed off, so did the print runs, and some of the independent final issues became ignored rarities in themselves, except for a few hardcore followers and completists. Most of the B&W comics, after the initial bust, got tossed into the quarter boxes and most surviving copies have been flipped through over the years leaving the top edges beaten and shredded, as the thousands of thumbs hurriedly flipped them out of the way.

With advent of political correctness being a huge part of society, look at racial comics. Muggsy Mouse #2 (A-1 #36, has Muggsy and a group of stereotypical, thick-lipped African couriers carrying his goods on their heads). What was a daily part of life, to the point of becoming common in KIDS comics, historical artifacts are some of the few ways that will serve as reminders that not all were always treated as equal.

Moreso that some were treated as subhuman, and usually as the slapstick foil, or villain.

And in the different types of books collectors are venturing now into there seems to be little, to no, regard for the listed prices. We should be seeing some wild adjustments in the future as our hobby matures even more.

Since a large majority of our base of collectors, where most Silver Age issues are in “abundance”, issues can be had within a quick check online, and if the finances are no problem, they are all easily obtainable. While HIGH grades are becoming less of a MUST, many collectors are seeking out different comics that are NOT available in the stratospheric grades condition collectors fight over. Many of these rarely make an appearance in the market at all, maybe once or twice (if that if even that often.)

Mainstream superheroes are flying out of the “reasonable” price range of many and collectors are looking for alternatives such as early Phantom Strangers and early She’s Josie (Josie Comics), and early issues of Sabrina the Teen-Age Witch, being among the few trending.

As any long-term collector knows, Candid Tales, Bold Stories, (with variants) and It Rhymes With Lust, do pop up on occasion and I have seen copies of these digest-sized gems sneak past the hard-core collectors, and end up in the hands of newbies at amazingly affordable prices.

The Canadian phenomena is perched to turn a LOT of what we think we know upside down, and Canadian Whites / WECA books have been breaking some records that, if they were Golden Age U.S. Superhero books, they would be all over the news. I turned down a $750 offer for my VG Super Duper #3. Being the 1st app of Mr. Monster, and having Nelvana, with a cult following of collectors of Canadian WECA books, with a slim handful of copies this book is due for a HUGE correction in value. I will buy any, and all, copies at double Guide, and even at that I am positive I will have no offers.

Then we get to the temporary insane price bumps due to movie appearances that is somewhat hilarious to watch. Take a book that might have been a $3-10 book pre-movie announcement, and watch the speculators brawl it out until that once-ignored book goes for 3-4 figures. And just how long do you think that can last? Some books may hold some of that value but, as always, once the inevitable sell-offs hit they sink to levels that are at, or slightly above, what they were before the hype. These are the most tenuous types of bubbles we have in our hobby. First in makes great money, last out is holding a bunch of overpriced hot potatoes that will be sitting next to Dazzlers when the hoopla is over. perfect example? The first appearance of Groot in Tales to Astonish #13, from 1960, a GD- sold for... $585.99! Now without the Guardians of the Galaxy movie, this particular book would have remained at a bargain price for the next decade BUT what will happen when the movie fades. As a close friend stated, “Wow. I’m amazed. I get that the movie is a big hit and everything, but these comics with Groot or Star-Lord or Rocket Raccoon are, in my eyes, SO LAME!!!” And I, and many others with whom I have corresponded, concur to the Nth degree.

Many are turning to fanzines to take a look at our history. Most are far rarer than any Silver Age comic, yet are chock full o’ info, and many have illustrations by gents that became the guys that turned comic books on their collective ear. Same with many writers, in their amateur times, trying to break into the big times. Many fanzines can be had for just a few dollars, while others, from the dawn of our hobby have far more seekers than copies exist.

Another area in which to seek out rare books is variants yet to be discovered in all eras, and I’m not talking about the multiple-cover books of late in which publishers are looking to empty completists pockets. There are some examples in which 1-5 copies exist, and surely more discoveries to come. Publishing variants have inadvertently been happening from the beginning; take a close look at Superman #1, and Batman #1, and Marvel Comics #1!

We are lucky enough to have a hobby in which you can enjoy yourself, read, collect, and seek out issues to complete runs on ANY budget.

Another very fun area of collecting is seeking out the hundreds of unlisted giveaways. That is a hobby in itself and with a bit of tenacity you can build up a collection that others may covet, but NOT be able to duplicate themselves, no matter how big their change purse contains.

Another thing that has had me curious is how Steve Borock’s new grading company, CBCS, might sway things. He may just force CGC to tighten up their grading standards, and bust that monopoly wide open.

Our Picks: Instead of blowing your wad on the overpriced Star-Lord and Rocket Raccoon issues of Marvel Preview, why not give the severely underpriced #21 a shot. This issue contains a great cover, and story, featuring Moon Knight in his first solo book, pre-dating Moon Knight #1, which itself went on to carry on quite a few series, and specials all by himself.

Fitzgerald Publications are neglected but they put out some very quality comics that came from an African American publisher, with an African American artist, and churned out the amazing Archie-type (but NOT swipe) title Fast Willie Jackson. The distribution was low in the first place, the scarcity of the undervalued Fast Willie Jackson is a completable series, with only 7 issues in the run, but keep in mind that if/when you’ve landed that very elusive #7, it’s all downhill from there. Fitzgerald also published the Classics Illustrated type comic, Golden Legacy, featuring Black heroes in issues #1-16. They also came in different printings with the early issues having a Coca-Cola ad on the reverse. They’re ALL wonderful books.

Want an obtainable run of all of a Marvel character’s appearances that WON’T break the bank? Try The Watcher, you will end up with some amazing time-tested books, and some of the funnest, thought provoking reading around. Now is the time to start grabbing Dr. Strange appearances since, after years of being second, and third tier, books, his Strange Tales issues are really breaking out. If you are into DC then try to round up all appearances of Bizarro, or Mr. Mxyzptlk, they are doable tasks, and don't come much funner than that.

Dr. Droom, from Amazing Adventures #1, in June 1961, is due for some interest, along with the rest of the short series. His 1st appearance came 5 months before The Fantastic Four debuted, was a collaboration between Kirby and Ditko, and was the very first actual Marvel Superhero. The book, and series, is very overlooked, and somewhat of a Dr. Strange prototype. While never actually considered part of the Marvel Universe this guy deserves a place in Marvel history, and how many other Marvels from that era can actually be had for a bargain?

We all know that early Archies are going through the roof. Bidding gets FIERCE on early issues of nearly every title. What about Katy Keene? (The Katy gorilla cover on #38 is hot, the robot cover, #62 – the final issue is HOTTER, and scarce). Katy always had a cult-like fan base but they have a lot of room for growth, and grade? Good luck. Many are hard to find complete due to Woggon's "can't-resist-clipping" paper dolls. Wilbur is yet another Archie title that can be completed with patience and perseverance.

Speaking of paper dolls, Sugar and Spike have paper dolls featuring Wonder Woman, Superman, Flash, Green Lantern, and others hidden between the pages. This is another title in which you can't be too choosy about grade or you're playing Mission Impossible.

DC's Scribbly – by the prolific Mayer – is highly sought after, and often pricey, but take a gander at what bargains his Dell appearances are! His 1936 1st app. is actually not even listed as being a breakout issue! Just a casual mention, but if you manage to find one, you've got a prize that has been overlooked from Day 1.

Zoot Comics #2 (with a one-shot superhero appearance of The Jaguar, along with a funny animal villain, bondage torture cover!) and #3 are among the hardest issues I have ever had in locating to index. There is Ernie – an *early* Archie swipe with possibly less than ten of each to be had. Actively searching for over 20 years I have found 3 #2s, and in that 20 years I have only managed to find a single copy of #3. The Good Girl Jungle Zoot issues can be relatively easy to find, if you have the $$$ set aside but the money will not help you find a #2, or #3!

The unlisted Turok rare overprint issues (NOT #62) are true rarities and can drive any Turok completist crazy as they were tested only in very small areas in the West Coast. The price change was a failure and after a few issues they gave it up.

There is an unlisted Rex Allen #30 with 10¢ silver overprint variant that I have been searching for another for quite awhile and it has proven to be very elusive,

The countless non-MAD satire/parody mags are fun to hunt down and often have hidden gems by notable artists and cameos/stories of anybody you've heard about. Cracked and Sick are the most obvious, but there are countless more that are out there with short print runs that can be found, and due to their small runs can actually be completed with a bit of tenacity. Others are Nuts!, Get Lost, Whack, Riot, Flip, Eb!, and countless more to hunt down.

Fox has some true rarities: Zoot, Fox Giants, Romance, and many salacious at that. Add to that the appeal of the odd issues on pink and blue paper, there's a possibility that many Fox variants are unique.

Some fairly recent overlooked comics that can be had for a bargain are Transformers, Micronauts – with later issues being a bit troublesome, Marvel Premiere – rife with nice solo issues, Showcase, Brave and the Bold, etc. have countless overlooked gems, just waiting for their time to come.

Little Giant Comics, Little Giant Detective Funnies, and Little Giant Movie Funnies, all by Centaur, are all well sought after by many collectors of different genres, but if you have the patience, and are up for a knockdown dragout bidding war, they are fun books to pursue and...always end up going for far over Guide.

Romance comics, to this day are a goldmine of offbeat romance covers and stories. Love Scandals #5 has what could be considered having a "lesbian" story "I Hated Being a Woman", Lovelorn #52 has a "I Sold my Baby!" cover and story, Lovelorn #53 has a female Alcoholic cover and story "Heart of a Drunkard!", and Lovelorn #21 has a prostitution story.

Superman #123 is a very UNDERVALUED Supergirl tryout known, and highly sought after, by a few, along with a pink/orange cover that is very susceptible to fading.

Fawcetts are also undervalued compared to comparable Golden Age titles. Check out the THICK X-Mas Comics, scarcer mid-last issues, especially the monster covers, the classic Mr. Mind storyline, a remember, there was a time when Captain Marvel was more popular than Supes!

Another affordable way to complete a set that not many have managed is go for the Four Color Comics (most are neglected bargains that are slipping into the past) that has second printings, such as Mr. Magoo. I know that there are at least a few left in that huge run in which some have not been discovered yet

Currently one book that is impossible to get a bargain on is Fantastic Four #45, yet another movie tie-in book that speculators have bumped through the ceiling. Keep in mind that this book is NOT hard to find, and once the hoopla passes you might find yourself holding a book you might have been proud to hold for a couple months, until the "value" levels out again and you might be one of the casualties that got caught up in the frenzy only too anxious to pay far too much.

And for you that want something a bit different, there are offbeat peripheral licenses comic toys, and other items, like Underoos, that vary from being a breeze to nab, to others that might entail a lifelong hunt. It is ALL fun, and that is what hobbies are supposed to be.

Sales & Pick-ups: We sold four copies of Jack T. Chick's 1963 version of his Christian comic tract, Last Call, all from 1963, with 3 of the 4 having different printing variations, with the whole batch going to a thrilled buyer offering $400 for the stack.

After deciding to hold on to my lower grade Canadian Super Duper #3, after an offer of $750, I ended up popping it on eBay and after the dust settled it went for $855. Subsequently, the underbidder actually found another copy, VG/VG+, for $1,000. This book is making some serious waves, and due for a major price correction.

I have been searching for years for the unlisted "give-away" Silly Putty Man Meets the Eggo Meany. It has been one of my many banes. Last year I finally found a listing for one and geared up the snipe. I got it for a pittance but the coolest thing about it was that it was still sealed in the original plastic case with a well-illustrated header, a Silly Putty egg, and a Silly Putty ruler, along with a perfect copy of the comic. The downside is that I can't read the comic but it sure looks pretty damn cool on the shelf. My biggest conundrum is...how in the hell some kid did not tear this package open and play with it?? Go figger.

Final Thoughts: This is the first time ever in which comic-related movies has been forecast out so far ahead. This will definitely have the speculators searching for books that they may be holding for years until they are ripe. It also gives the average Joe the same opportunity, so use it to your advantage! But, beware: movie bumps might lead to many disenchanted speculators dumping their over-paid dreams of riches, and shattering their dreams of being idolized by the rest. It's a steep slope.

Despite all the positives and negatives, we are blessed in being part of a hobby in which we can find extreme enjoyment regardless of what our account looks like. Keep buying what YOU appreciate, and not what you are told is the next hottest book. At least that way, at the end of the day you will have a collection that you can be proud of.

This is just a small sampling, and we will have much more next year. We are also working on a volume, "Just When You Thought You Knew Everything About Comics..." that we will be working on this year, so hopefully we can get as much esoteric, offbeat comic info out there as possible! Thanks again for another wonderful year!

Keep enjoying your buys!

BARRY SANDOVAL & LON ALLEN HERITAGE AUCTIONS

Heritage Auctions was privileged to once again sell over $30 million worth of comics and original comic art in 2014, from big-name collections like that of Don and Maggie Thompson to many outstanding hoards from sellers who chose to remain anonymous. Here are some insights we gleaned over the past year:

Silver Age Collectors Become Choosier: As more Silver Age comes on the market, collectors have recognized that there are a lot of high-grade collections from this era out there, at least in the Marvel department. While some Marvels remain genuinely tough in high grade, others pop up often enough that collectors can be choosier and hold out for either a higher grade or better eye appeal within the same grade. However, we can't wait for the next time a collection with truly high-grade copies of late-1950s DCs comes out. A mint Adventure Comics #247, for example, would create a feeding frenzy that few Marvels could match. That notwithstanding, we are amazed at the depth of the market for Silver Age books. In our weekly auctions, "average" runs of mid-1960s Marvels are consistently selling for 75-125% of Guide values, week in and week out. The immense popularity of the super-hero movies does seem to be having a lasting effect on our market. We never thought we'd be saying that!

Rocket Raccoon and Company: We assume that most every market report in this book will examine the "hot" movie-related comics, so we need not belabor those points here. However, we find the emergence of these out-of-nowhere keys to be a positive development for all concerned. Not only does it make sellers' collections more valuable, it gives longtime collectors who have long since filled most of their wantlists some new things to target.

Atlas: We have long extolled the virtues of pre-hero Marvels in nice condition. We have had the opportunity to sell a few score of these recently and the results have lived up to our expectations (regularly selling for 200%-1,000% of Guide). The pre-Code Atlas horror comics are even more elusive. They sell at auction for a minimum of Guide in low grade to many multiples of Guide in Fine to Very Fine or better condition. Collectors realize that on many issues, they will never have the opportunity again to purchase it in even mid-grade so they will chase it to very high levels. Many likely do not exist in true Near Mint condition.

Restored Golden Age Keys: These struck us as some of the biggest bargains around over the past few years, but they are bouncing back. A new development was CGC's new grading scale for restored books that differentiates more between some of the amateur work that looks like a child did it, and the efforts of a professional conservator. The new system that Matt Nelson and Co. at CGC have come up with might need a little getting used to, but once you figure it out, it gives so much more information than the old system. The quality of work goes from "A" at the best, to "C" at the worst, and the amount of work is rated on a scale of 1-5. It's too early to have much hard data on this, but it can only help. We also believe the "conserved" designation is an important one that CGC now makes. We have long wished for an easy way to tell which books have only had minor amounts of professional conservation done that will help to preserve the books without the unnecessary attempts to make them look better by color touch and piece replacement.

Golden Age Bound Volumes: We believe the two bound volumes that we auctioned for over $100,000 each (an Action #1-24 set and a Detective #25-48 set) are the only two ever to approach such prices. But you could make the argument that these volumes are still relative bargains, especially the ones that contain publisher's file copies, which are usually gorgeous except for being trimmed. In our auctions these volumes tend to sell for somewhere between GD Guide and FN Guide. Would you rather have a restored Detective #27, or for the same price, the whole bound set of #25-48?

Original Comic Art: We were able to tie our own record auction price for a piece of American comic art this past year. $657,250 was the price for a key piece indeed, the last page of Incredible Hulk #180 featuring Wolverine's very first appearance. Other highlights of the year included $286,800 for Fred Guardineer's original cover for Action Comics #15, the earliest Superman cover art known to exist, and a new record for comic strip art with a shocking $215,100 for a 1938 Alex Raymond Flash Gordon Sunday original.

What continues to amaze in the comic art realm is how much of a premium is paid for "fresh" material. "Fresh" in this context refers to pieces that have been in collections without changing hands since at least the pre-Internet 1980s. Conversely, the bargains to be had (though bargain is a relative term given how expensive comic art is these days) can be found with important pieces that might have "been around the block" a time or two lately. This is a bit illogical, since it's the same piece of art no matter if it's had one prior owner or five of them, and it remains to be seen if this trend will subside.

Live Internet Bidding: Late in the year Heritage added live bidding to our weekly Internet sales, rather than having hundreds of lots all close at once. The difference in prices for our consignors has been dramatic! An interesting sidelight here has to do with the Overstreet values which we always have, and always will, put in every lot listing. People following the live sessions are quite obviously using the Guide values as their main criterion when deciding to throw in an impulse bid, and complained when on some lots the Guide value wasn't visible in the frame on-screen. It's proof of how important this reference book remains to the comic book hobby.

Joe and Nadia Mannarino: If you look where the All Star Auctions ad in the Guide used to be, you will see a Heritage ad, that's because Joe and Nadia Mannarino have joined Heritage! We should also note that while everyone who has seen their fantastic San Diego Comic-Con display knows about Joe and Nadia's expertise in the comic art realm, the two of them know comic books just as well, and they're also expanding our presence in the field of European comic art. We are thrilled to have these two Overstreet advisors on board, and welcome all former All Star customers.

If there's something we at Heritage can help you with, you'll find our contact information in our many ads in this book. We look forward to helping more collectors maximize the value of their four-color treasures in the coming year.

MAUI COMICS & COLLECTIBLES

As of the printing of this Guide, Maui Comics & Collectibles has officially opened its first store!

We are located at 333 Dairy Road, Unit 102 in Kahului, Maui, Hawaii 96732, at the Akaku Center, in the same building as Minit Stop. We are within walking distance of the Airport and the Harbor for any visitors! Please stop by and check us out!

Now on to the current market condition, which is exceptionally robust. We are living in the age of the Nerd! There are so many incredible comic-related things going on across all mediums that they're difficult to summarize. We've been working to open the store over the past year, so I haven't had time to keep up with the regular TV series that are coming out like Gotham, Arrow, Flash or Constantine. I did get to watch Captain America 2: the Winter Soldier, TMNT, X-Men: Days of the Future Past and Guardians of the Galaxy. Here are some quick reviews since the movies are directly related to the condition of the comic market:

Captain America lived up to the hype, and the introduction of the Winter Soldier and the Falcon have me all giddy for what's up next for the Avengers in the coming Age of Ultron.

X-Men: DOTFP was definitely an improvement on all of its Fox predecessors, and the credit goes to their portrayals of Bishop (Omar Sy), Blink (Fan Bingbing) and the Sentinels. I was barely interested in the storyline, it seemed like another recycled time-travel/political intrigue and "oh the consequences" mish-mash. I've previously ranted on this, but Fox sucks at X-Men, the main reason being the lack of comic-styled costumes. They even made it a point to make fun of the colorful, flagrant superhero outfits in the very first X-Men movie in 1999, as if Fox meant to say "Yeah, the only thing you want out of a live action comic-book film is the only thing we promise not to put in a single one of our movies as long as we own the franchise!" I am truly disappointed that since it has been so long since its release, people are starting to credit the X-Men franchise with the propagation of the current comic culture ubiquity. Far from it, they're just hitching a ride on the coat-tails of Disney and their loving treatment of all things Marvel.

Guardians of the Galaxy was hands down the BEST comic movie of the year. Having been absent from collecting during the Abnett and Lanning run of comics in 2008, I was not familiar with the team in the movie. I certainly wasn't ever interested in the team as assembled in the 1990s. Having seen the movie and James Gunn's interpretation of the characters, it definitely makes me look twice at even the 1990s run of comics. Yondu was the stuff of nerd-gasms, a gruff, tough character with a soft-side and a secret weapon that makes him invincible. The Guardians themselves weren't too shabby neither. Also, Nebula got some good screen-time and her first appearance (Avengers #257) has increased in value to $25. Not bad for the former dollar-bin fodder.

I feel obligated to mention the Teenage Mutant Ninja

Turtles movie. I said it before and I'll say it again: Michael Bay, you suck at Ninja Turtles! Michael Bay's Turtles were bloated, grotesque and their personalities were caricatures of all previous incarnations – a truly unoriginal take. The Turtle-nostrils are emblematic of how I feel about the entire thing. They insisted from early on that the turtles would be everything that the fans didn't want them to be (even aliens for a short time), and would also now have nostrils. And true to his asinine quest to profit from licensed properties, Bay refused to budge. He fought all of fandom for those nostrils. And the gigantic box-office success that Bay may perceive as a victory is only just a residual of how enduring and loved the TMNT are to all the people who lived in America during the late '80s and early '90s. But Bay should read between the lines, as all the adults who were kids when the Turtles first came out absolutely hated it. The original 1990 TMNT movie, meanwhile, is infinitely re-watchable.

The true TMNT fans who love all incarnations have rebelled against Bay's attempt to drive down the value of anything TMNT related in his shameless cash-grab. Instead of abandoning the material and shunning all things TMNT, the fans are clinging harder to the earlier stuff. TMNT values of the first run of Mirage comics beginning in 1984 have risen gently over the past year. The first printing of issue #1 (1984, first appearance of TMNT) enjoyed an increase of approximately 20% from $4,200 to $5,000 for a copy in CGC graded 9.2 condition.

The truly hardcore TMNT fans will also note that there has been a sharp increase in the cost/value of anything from the 1996 Image Comics run (Volume 3, with Frank Fosco, Erik Larsen, etc.). They have jumped in price considerably. Issues #1-4 tend to hover around the $10 mark, 5-9 for around $20, and any issue from 10-22 (final Image issue) is going for anything from $60 to $100, with the final issue #23 going for around $110 (all in high grade of course). Most of this has to do with how rare these comics are (low print run). I personally embrace the higher prices. The art and the cover inking warrants it, and the story is definitely interesting and contained (one highlight being a cyborg Donatello getting his ass scraped all over town). There were 2 additional issues (#24 and 25) made by the artists that were not official, but they helped to end the story that had been cancelled abruptly by Image. You can obtain free PDF copies of these 2 issues online, or you can buy a print copy from the inker Arseniy Dubakov. He's also got an auxiliary storyline to the original Cerebus crossover from TMNT #8 (Vol. 1), presented as Tales of the TMNT #71 (Vol. 2) and a new, completely original hardcover book called Odyssey, which takes place in outer space, all of which can be found on Arseniy's eBay store.

Other notable sales for this past year include a dearth of low-grade Silver Age comics, especially Marvel. People can't get enough of the stuff these days! I find that as time moves on, the grades of Silver Age comics are starting to matter less and less to consumers. It may be the new, inexperienced people coming to the market, or it could just be that people wanna grab them before prices start to climb. I also sold high grade copies of Action Comics #89 (approximately 7.5 condition for $500) and Whiz Comics #69 (approx. 8.0 condition for $300), which were my only Golden Age sales of the year.

I've heard folks talk about how all these new fans of superhero or nerd by-products like movies and TV shows aren't necessarily translating to new comic book and graphic novel customers. I don't agree. While most people are content to be fed superheroes and science-fantasy in any other format than print, there are still more who recognize print as the medium of the vanguard of creators. Digital comics have also made it easier to get the material in front of curious eyes.

In the coming year we have a lot of nerdy stuff to look forward to; the continuation of the ever-awesome Spider-Verse arc, Secret Wars, Convergence (DC) and the much-anticipated sequel to Fight Club. We've also got the entire Marvel and DC movie slates that have been laid out, as well as the Daredevil Netflix series, season 5 of The Walking Dead and Game of Thrones coming up in 2015! I'm so excited I can barely contain myself! The future promises to be a bright place to NERD OUT!

MARC SIMS & WALTER DURAJLIJA BIG B COMICS

Happy 45th Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide everyone. We sold the most price guides ever in 2014 and I have a feeling we'll sell even more this year. This year's Guide is undeniable, there are just too many indispensable features for any comic book collector to be without one, so if this Guide you are reading is not your own, please calmly put it down and head into your local comic book shop to pick up your own copy. As always I'd like to thank all the advisors for sharing their views and insights in these Market Reports. Kudos to the Overstreet team on another great edition of the Guide.

Please visit the Big B Comics website www.bigbcomics.com, it is a great introduction to our business. We hope you'll find it inviting and informative and don't be afraid to give us some feedback!

We can only describe 2014 as a fantastic year for Big B Comics. Our three Ontario, Canada retail stores all showed growth, Hamilton and Barrie both had banner years and our new and improved Niagara Falls store has blown away all expectations. We did very well at all the conventions we attended, especially at the beast that is now Fan Expo Toronto. All indications are that 2015 will be another great year for our hobby and industry!

The core of our business remains graphic novels and new comics. Our shops put service and selection first and we've been rewarded with a strong and loyal customer base. We have passionate comic fans frequenting our shops; we'll take this time to thank everyone who continues to support Big B Comics. Brick and Mortar comic shops can never compete in price with the large online discounters, but we can offer exemplary service, excellent selection and a friendly comfortable place to come and partake in the hobby so many of us love. Lift the lid off a good comic shop and you'll find a strong, vibrant and happy comic book community.

At Big B Comics we have an active back issue scene, we attract all kinds of collectors from variant hunters to Image first issue speculators to recent back issue seekers to Bronze, Silver and Golden Age fanatics. The key for us is to keep getting in new stuff. There is an old saying in the comic book market and that is 'you're as good as your last collection'. People are not interested in hearing stories about the olden days and how we once owned a Batman #1 etc. That info and two dollars will get someone a cup of coffee. People want to see stuff and as a shop Big B Comics is focused on delivering. We were buying as much as we could all year long, new collections, old collections, good collections, bad collections and individual books of note from all eras and all genres.

The best collection we bought last year was a few hundred really nice pre-Code Horror books and amongst them was a big stack of the ultra hot Atlas pre-Code Horror books. It didn't take me long to go through those! Modern comics we bought and sold in a heartbeat included New Mutants #98, Batman #1 (New 52), Legends #3, Walking Dead #1 and about 10 random #1s from DC's New 52 First Wave.

Over the whole year our spending on back issues was up over the year before and we can attribute this more to being aggressive by necessity. We bought books so our customers could have a nice selection, margins be damned!

Here are some books we sold over 2014 (USD$):

Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 3.0 - $9,000

Amazing Spider-Man #1, Raw 1.8 - $1,700

Amazing Spider-Man #1 CGC 5.5 - $4,800

Tales of Suspense #567 CGC 9.2 - $3,000

Tales to Astonish #48, CGC 9.2 - $650

Sgt. Fury #1 CGC 4.0 - $600

Doctor Strange #169 CGC 9.2 - $600

New, young comic buyers have really turned the back issue market on its head. Many veteran collectors and dealers were left scratching their head as to just what the heck has been going on. Remember when a Modern Age book spiked up in value? Used to be we'd all unload them as quickly as we can knowing they would crash back down in value shortly thereafter. I did this in early 2014, I bought two Batman Adventures #12s at what I thought was too much money then sold them for what I thought was too much money!! I got $250 a piece for them and thought I did great. Turns out I didn't do that great. The supply of CGC 9.8s is skyrocketing for books like Batman Adventures #12, New Mutants #98, Batman #1 (2011) yet values keep rising. Perhaps we've underestimated just how many new buyers have entered the market? Seeing demand outstrip supply while supply is increasing is a healthy trend.

Run books lost a little more ground this year, and this after a slow 2013. It's still key issues that rule the day. We will say that a welcome trend has been the continued shrinking of what is deemed a run book. The old-timers can remember back in the day when most titles with big runs had those blocks of prices like #11-20, #21-30 etc. Have a look in this year's Guide, titles have never been so splintered and broken down into keys, mini-keys, sub-keys, almost keys, accidental keys, the book before a key etc. This is acting to shrink the number of run books in the bigger titles. Here's an example, in the old days it used to be that Fantastic Four #48 to #50 got separated from the batch, now look at the *FF*s from say #35 to #50, hardly any run books left in that stretch. So the bad news is that run books are still soft but the good news is there are less and less run books each year!

The Bronze Age keys are hot again, Werewolf #32, ASM #129, Hulk #181, Batman #anything by Adams, Doc Strange #1, Luke Cage #1 etc. are all tough to get for any kind of deal now. I'm expecting this trend to continue this year.

If we had a time machine to go back a mere 5 years I'd be picking up all the dreg copies of all the Silver and Bronze keys. It's amazing how the price to join the "I own a key comic, as raggedy as she may be" club has shot up.

It seems all keys are speculated on, from 1933 to 2015 if the book has the 1st appearance of somebody, then that book is deemed to have a shot and prices for an amazingly wide range of comics has increased dramatically.

Last year's Guide featured an essay on the Canadian Golden Age Comics known as "Canadian Whites" and while the extra exposure has dislodged a few issues here and there these books remain stubbornly impossible to hunt down in any satisfactory volumes. Ivan Kocmarek's brilliant posts on comicbookdaily.com have done a lot to educate us all on these comics, let's hope 2015 brings us some important new "Canadian Whites" finds.

It was another fun year over at our comic book fan website www.comicbookdaily.com (CBD). The site saw the number of visitors increase; we think this is due to CBD's renewed focus on comic collecting. This is a volunteer contribution site and Editor in Chief Scott VanDerploeg's focus on finding writers passionate about collecting comic books has made the site that much better. Walter Durajlija's Under-valued Spotlight and Auction Highlights blogs are not afraid to make the call and commentators are not afraid to call him out on them.

We at Big B Comics remain optimistic about our hobby. In 2014 we saw Disney/Marvel map out the next 5 years of their comic book movie development, and a few months later we saw Warner/DC do the same. In a way, our hobby and local comic book shops have just been rewarded with billions of dollars in free advertising over the next 5 years. Let's go out and make the best of it.

Finally, both of us (Marc and Walt) would like to acknowledge and thank the Big B Comics team for their continued commitment and for their fantastic work.

WEST STEPHAN PEDIGREE & RESTORATION EXPERT CBCS

As you read this market report, CBCS will have just entered its second year and has established itself as a true certification (grading) service for comic books. Even though there certainly have been a few bumps in the road that first year, CBCS has demonstrated its ability quickly move forward. A company of just five employees those first few months has now turned into a juggernaut, now employing well over 20 comic book enthusiasts and dedicated personnel.

As a restoration detection expert for CBCS, I've seen a significant number of comic books with restoration and conservation. I'm always a bit surprised when a copy of Amazing Spider-Man #300 has a dot of black color touch on the spine, but I'm sure the submitters are just as surprised when they receive the book back. When checking for restoration/conservation, never assume a book cannot be repaired due to how new the book is or how long it has been in your collection. I found trimming on a Golden Age book that was in a submitter's collection for three decades. An Amazing Spider-Man #1 that was submitted had the cover, first and fourth wraps married from another copy. Always do your best to look over any comic book you are about to purchase. If you see something that looks off, ask the seller. If you are still unsure, it may be best to even walk away. No one wants to find unpleasant surprises in their collection years later!

For me, it is always fun when a submission containing pedigree books is on my desk. Always submit any pedigree comic with any documentation you may have. Some pedigrees are much easier to identify than others. For example, seeing a Reilly stamp on the back cover or the coding of a Davis Crippen "D" Copy on the top of the first page makes identifying the book as a pedigree rather easy for someone who has extensive knowledge of pedigrees. Looking at a Hawkeye and trying to determine whether this book was put in mothballs by Joe Smejkal certainly can be more difficult, even for the most seasoned hobbyist. There have been a lot of books submitted to CBCS that the owner had no idea was a pedigree, such as the Pennsylvania copy (and Gerber Photo Journal copy) of Suspense Comics #3, the Big Apple copy of Young Allies #7, the Cookeville copies of Batman #42 and Superman #13, and the Cosmic Aeroplane copy of Top-Notch Comics #1, just to name a few.

Silver Age is an incredible era with such a great line-up of superheroes. We were quite surprised to see an Amazing Spider-Man #14 (from the Magik Woo collection) come through our doors and receive a grade of 9.8! Amazing indeed! Other incredible keys were sent in for certification, including an Amazing Fantasy #15 CBCS 9.6 Slight Restoration, Amazing Spider-Man #1 CBCS 9.4 and #5 CBCS 9.6, Brave and the Bold #28 CBCS 7.5, two different copies of Fantastic Four #1 CBCS 8.5, Incredible Hulk #1 CBCS 8.0, Journey Into Mystery #83 CBCS 9.6, Strange Tales #110 CBCS 9.2, Tales of Suspense #39 CBCS 9.4 and Tales to Astonish #27 CBCS 9.4.

A personal favorite era of mine is the Golden Age. It's always fun to see a box of Golden Age books land on my desk for certification. Within the first six months, CBCS certified three copies of Superman #1. Also sent in for certification were Action Comics #1 CBCS 6.5 Restored, #25 CBCS 9.4, #30 CBCS 9.4, Adventure Comics #40 CBCS 6.5, Batman #1 CBCS 7.5, Detective Comics #27 from the personal collection of Bob Kane, Fantastic Comics #3 CBCS 8.0 Restored, and, as mentioned before, even the best known copy of Suspense Comics #3 CBCS 9.0 Pennsylvania copy. Also sent in were numerous EC's from the Gaines File, all CBCS 9.4-9.8.

I would just like to end this report by thanking all of you who have helped make CBCS a legitimate force in our hobby. I would also like to thank Bob Overstreet and his crew for all they do for our hobby! I am looking forward to having many more years in this amazing hobby of ours looking and enjoying so many more great funny books!

AL STOLTZ BASEMENT COMICS

Yet another year that seemed to mostly duplicate the year before in sales and trends. Movie related comics and first appearances were in huge demand and crazy prices were able to be had for all grades even for pounded-to-death copies. First appearances of Rocket Raccoon and Star-Lord blew out as fast as they could be loaded onto our eBay store. Nova and Ms. Marvel #1s in 9.6 & 9.8 reached levels that even stupefied me...weren't these dollar comics not that long ago? As long as the movie madness continues, I guess some of the public and most of the speculators that live at the edge of the comic world will buy and sell and keep this part of the market humming along. Only problem I see is when a person who paid six times Guide for a Good copy and then tries to sell it after the great cool down may find out that they will only get offered a fraction of price they paid. This could slowly hurt the comic market and eliminate those buyers for any future speculating on movie comics, but then that buyer always seems to get replaced by another who just has to have the next hot thing.

Our first full year in our Warehouse/Office was a great success and sales were up!! Having more space to spread out and sort collections and literally build our booths for shows and get them just right was a plus for us in the end. Hard to believe it's only been a year and we are fully moved in and comfortable now...that means a slight mess at times and comic piles sitting here and there. Comics for sale? Collections small and large? Call or stop by the office and sell us some comics!

We only set up at five major shows for 2014 and a handful of smaller one day shows but had fun as usual and sold a broad mix of material as usual. Comics, graded comics, Art, Fanzines and well, just about anything else. Attendance was high for most of them but actual vintage comic buyers are starting to get a little thin. After playing with comics for so long I find that I need to buy all sorts of comic and Pop Culture items to keep me interested. One collection we bought was amassed by a Texas collector and consisted of Christmas cards from famous artists, Correspondence from them including letters from Steve Ditko and Jerry Siegel. Original sketches and part of a collection of Terry and the Pirates art by the late Shel Dorf. We have four magazine boxes of this material and have yet to process it but will get around to it eventually.

CGC and CBCS graded comics are our best sellers online

since the third party grades insure relief on the part of the buyer and they feel they can buy with confidence. Both companies did a great job getting our books graded and I think I only rolled my eyes a few times last year when looking at a given grade for the first time. Bronze Age books have picked way up yet again and goofy keys and first issues in 9.8 seem to sell very fast for us. On our way to Mega Con this year with over a hundred books to be graded on site, and I am sure they will sell quickly on eBay when we post them up for sale.

Auctions and the crazy prices for comics. Been bidding and watching the auction houses all year and I am stunned by the prices realized for older comics. Not the rare super shiny high grade key issues but the Goods and Very Goods of older obscure titles that while legitimately scarce or just tough to find were so many times over Guide that I had to wonder who was buying this stuff? The Guide price went out the window more often than not and prices were pounded up and I assume these books ended up in private hands to be hidden away for eternity. I managed to win some auctions and was amazed to see that even after paying crazy high there was still money to be made on them.

The next year or so will be interesting to see if crazy money for older funny books continues and demand for super expensive low grade Marvel keys continues. Maybe DC key issues will finally start catching up and sell like wild for 2015. Maybe Turok will be made into a movie and the Rock will get the lead role...finally get to overprice Turoks before I retire.

DOUG SULIPA

DOUG SULIPA'S COMIC WORLD

Forget the Recession: Collectible back issue comics are BACK and BOOMING!!! 2014 was new benchmark for me, as I recorded my best year of sales EVER, in my 43+ years of selling as a comics dealer! It was a NON-STOP WHIRLWIND of customers for us from July 2014 into early 2015. I am including in this market report most of the important and valuable information that made 2014 a blockbuster year for us. (Unfortunately this means the standard back issue market needs to take a back seat, to make room for all the info on Hot Key issues). As should be common knowledge by now, almost the entire Marketplace was driven by the success comics have enjoyed in the movies, on television and in other media too. This was the year when even many of the hardcore longtime collectors took a huge pause in their buying habits, and started joining the stampede to buy up the 100s of hot key issues related to the recent past, current & upcoming TV & movie related key issues. When Disney paid billions of dollars each for Marvel and Lucasfilm, I knew we were in for a wild ride, as they are perhaps the greatest marketing machine that the media have ever known. When we consider all the media and merchandising, and add the internet and social media, it is easy to see that comics are currently the most popular they have even been, and on a global scale in most languages too.

My biggest moneymakers for 2014 include (a combination of multiple copies, with Raw copies in all grades, plus High Grade CGC Copies; my approx. sales for 2014 by title); Legends #1,3 (1986 DC $2000); SHAZAM! #1,25,28 (1973-1978 DC $3000); New Teen Titans #1,2 & DC Comics Presents #26 ($3000); Captain Canuck comics (all series = $6000; I could have sold 20K worth if I could locate more of the Scarce to Rare issues); assorted Harley Quinn comics ($5000); assorted Power Man & Iron Fist related Key comics ($5000); Captain Britain (1976 series $20,000+ in sales) on #1,2,8,24 (including 5 copies of #1 in CGC 9.8 for $799 each; 5 copies of #8 in CGC in 9.8 for $1199 each each); Epic Illustrated #3(over 100 copies sold, well over $5000 in sales); Ms. Marvel #1,16,17,18 ($6000); Black Panther #1 (1977 over $3000 in sales); Vampire Tales #2 ($2000+, includes 5 copies in CGC 9.8 at $399 each); 8-12/1980 & 1983/84 Whitman pre-pack comics (over $10,000+ in sales); 1970s Marvel Magazine #1s in CGC High Grades; (over $10,000 worth sold); 1980s Canadian Newsstand Cover Price Variant comics (70% Marvel, 20% DC, 10% other = over $10,000 worth sold). I could have sold a lot more of the above if I could have located more High Grade copies.

Collectors, dealers, TV and movie fans alike all used IGN's Top 100 Comic Book Villains Of All Time and Top-100 Comic Book Heroes Of All Time lists in droves in 2014, with almost everything on the two lists seeing spikes and avalanches in demand. An odd side effect is that many first appearances listed are cameos which often now have higher values than first full appearances (bucking 44 years of evaluation history in the Overstreet Guide.) For example, Adventure #283(4/1961; 2 panel cameo of General Zod lists at $750 in 9.2 in Guide, but CGC 9.0 to 8.0 copies sell at around $1800), meanwhile Action #297(2/1963; 1st full app. of Zod) remains overlooked and lists at only $250 in Guide.

First appearances of all the major villains (especially the arch enemies) for all the major heroes of Marvel and DC have gone through the roof in demand, many now bringing 200% to 1000% current Guide #44 values. Shazam! #28 ($20 in 9.2 in Guide #44) hit peak prices of (VG=$100; VF=$400 for Raw copies) before cooling off a bit by late 2014 (with CGC copies; 9.8 = $1325; 9.6 = $875). All the major Villain and Hero Key issues of DC Comics from the 1955-1974 era were in very short or non-existent supply in VF or Better, thus it was common to see overgraded FR, GD, VG and FN copies on eBay selling for 200%, 500% and even 1000% Guide prices, all through the year 2014. Examples are: Action #252, Aquaman #35, Batman #171,181,189,227,232,251, Brave and the Bold #25,28,54,60-62, Detective #359, 411, Flash #110, 139, Hawkman #4, Richard Dragon #5, Showcase #37,55,59, Strange Adventures #180,187,205 and many more.

The other fast growing part of the market is demand for: (A) Heroes or villains that started out obscure, but have lasted 10-50 years, joined popular teams, or have grown in stature over the years (Animal Man, Black Adam, Black Manta, Catman, Mockingbird, Peggy Carter, Squirrel Girl, Vixen, Zatanna, etc.); (B) First appearance of early Black Heroes and Villains (plus other ethnic minorities and related) from the 1960s, 1970s & beyond (Black Goliath, Black Panther, Brother Voodoo, Dawnstar the Native American, Gabe Jones of Howling Commandos, Lobo from Dell, Misty Knight, Northstar and Kevin Keller, etc); (C) Vintage reprints of valuable Key issues are suddenly in very high demand, with many bringing 200-600% of Guide Raw, and 500-1500% Guide in CGC 9.0 (Includes select Millennium Editions, Marvel Milestones, Astonishing Tales #29, Marvel's Greatest #35-37, Marvel Super Action #4,14,18, Marvel Super-Heroes #56,74,92, Marvel Tales #98,99,106,137,138, Sgt. Fury #167, Action #1 and Detective #27 Giveaways, 1966 Marvel Golden Record Reprints and Many More).

Archie Comics: Archie back issues continue to gain momentum in sales, with all major Key issues in VERY High demand, with very LOW supply. Most 1961-1969 Key issues are Scarce to Rare in FN or better. Most 1971-1985 Key issues are Scarce to Rare in VF or better; thus it was common to see overgraded FR, GD, VG and FN copies on eBay selling for 200%, 500% and even 1000% Guide prices on eBay. Riverdale is in the works for a FOX TV series by Greg Berlanti (producer of Arrow and The Flash.)

Josie (1963-1982; #1-20 = all low print) was the hottest Archie book of 2014, #1-50 are all scarce due to high demand; #1-10 bring 300% to 1000% Guide on eBay, with most copies in GD, VG or FN at best. Raw copies of Josie #1 sold for FN = $960 and VG = $500 on eBay in 2014; #11-40 bring 200% to 500% Guide on eBay. Overlooked Key issues include: #42(Josie meets folk singer named Alan M. Mayberry who becomes Roadie for Pussycats band), #43(Alexandra Cabot and Sebastian the Cat discover their Witchcraft powers); #45-50 (first 6 Josie and The Pussycats Band issues); #101-106(low print run and scarce.)

Cheryl Blossom (last year's bestseller) racked up many impressive sales this year, with many people now seeking her first 28 Appearances from 10/1982 thru 6/1985. My new MINIMUM price on these Key issues is: VF/NM=$50; VF=$30; FN=$20; VG=$14; and GD=$7. For first appearances in each title issues, add 50-100% or more. These include; Archie Comics #323-326, Archie's Girls Betty And Veronica #320(1st app.), 321-322, 326-328, Archie's Pals 'N' Gals #161(1st solo Cheryl), Archie At Riverdale High #89,90,92,96-99, 103(1st Cheryl date with Archie), Archie's TV Laugh-Out #91, Archie Giant Series #526(1 pg. cameo), #530, Betty And Me #136(1 panel cameo), Everything's Archie #104,107, Jughead #325 (2nd app.), Laugh #380, Pep Comics #396(9/1984). Archie's Girls Betty And Veronica is still hot. Recent CGC eBay sales: #320; USA 9.2=$405; Canadian 9.0 = $750 & $590; Canadian 7.0 = $480. Jughead (#325: CGC Canadian 8.5 = $372; CGC Canadian 7.0 = $200). Explorers of the Unknown #1-3 & 6(cameo) featured Agent Blaze Blossom of the CIA, a futuristic version of Cheryl Blossom, still overlooked with VF copies selling at around $10 each.

The Horror and Sci-Fi issues from 1961-1962 era are red hot and hard to find, bringing 150-500% Guide (Archie #123-125,127, Archie Giant #17,19, Betty & Veronica #70,73,75,77,79,80, Jokebook #58,59,76, Jughead #77-82,85,86,88, Laugh #128,129, 130(Creature), 132,133,136,139, Life with Archie #9,11,35,39, Little Archie #18,20,22, Madhouse #6,8,11,13,15-26,29,35,36, 38,42,48,51,58,60, Pals N Gals #18, Pep #151-154, 158-158).

Archie Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Adventures comics are now in demand in all grades, with high grade collectors seeking them out again, many CGC copies are now breaking the $100 barrier, even with low Guide values. TMNT Adventures #50-72, Specials #6-10 and Digests, all had low print runs and are now quite hard to find, still bringing 200-500% Guide, if you can find them at all. We sold #72 in CGC 9.8 for $300, a #1 Mini from 8/88 and ongoing series from 3/89 now sell for $200-$300 in CGC 9.8.

Other notable keys: Afterlife with Archie = all issues and #7 (1st modern Archie Universe appearance of Cheryl Blossom as she turns into "BLAZE"; see Explorers of the Unknown for first Blaze Blossom; VF/NM = $10); Archie Comics #271 (6/1978; classic "Pearl Necklace" sexual innuendo cover; VG/FN range brings $50-$100); Betty & Me #16 (sexual innuendo-c; VG=$100; GD=$50); Archie Giant #551 (Josie sexual innuendo-c; VF=$20+); Life With Archie magazine #16 (Kevin Keller gay wedding; VF = $35.) #23(11/2012; 1st Afterlife with Archie as a variant cover; Low Print = 1500 copies? VF copies bring $50+; We sold 3 CGC 9.8 copies for $350 each.)

The new Sabrina Horror series #1 was released in 12-2014 and Sony Pictures has a live-action film in the works. Sonic the Hedgehog will be a hybrid live-action and CG animated big screen movie by Sony Pictures, Marza Animation Planet, & SEGA based on the video game series. Thus all the key issues of Sonic and Sabrina are bringing 150-200% Guide in all grades.

MICHAEL TIERNEY COLLECTOR'S EDITION & THE COMIC BOOK STORE

This year the high-dollar key books didn't come through like last year, but even without them, overall Old Comic sales were still up.

Comics-based movies and television continue to bring in new customers, especially youth, as the public perception of comic books continues to transition from pop culture into mainstream, driving increased sales of Old and New Comics.

Marvel stayed firmly on top of the New Comics sales graph, but DC kept the pressure on by trying different things.

One moderately successful innovation came when DC introduced themed variant covers for each month, at regular cover price and with no order limitations. The most successful theme was the first: the Bombshell covers. Least successful were the Monsters, selling only slightly less than the Batman 75th Anniversary covers. The Selfies, Darwyn Cooke and others all fell in the middle.

Harley Quinn had a breakout year. The new direction with Wonder Woman had mixed results, with men liking David Finch's art, but some women disliking the character's portrayal. Lumberjanes was a strong independent hit with female readers.

The biggest disappointment came, once again, in September. When ordering DC's Future's End one-shots, the only reliable sales data from the year before pertained to the Standard covers, which hardly sold at all. So I hardly ordered them at all, which was perfect. Ordered the 3D covers slightly above normal sales, which I worried would be too few, but this was still an increase in overall dollars, since they were $3.99 each. This was a huge mistake. They didn't even sell in quantities equal to my reserve lists. Most customers didn't want them, considering them to be apart from normal continuity, and I ended up taking a 3D bath. Tried running a sale on them, offering sets of all 41 issues ($163.59 cover price) for $90, and only had one taker.

The lesson here is that gimmicks resulting in increased cover price no longer work, and this wasn't just for DC. In the '90s, special chromium covers sold in the hundreds for one independent publisher, but that was a different market and a different Valiant. In 2014, I was only able to sell a handful of the latest editions, both stores combined.

Another old time gimmick that has completely spoiled is the major cross-over storyline. Few people buy extra titles beyond the main storyline that they don't already collect. Many titles see no extra sales at all. No one has bought them all in years.

The pleasant surprise of the year was hearing Marvel running radio ads in my market. It was the first local comics promotion that I've heard which I didn't do myself. Usually, publishers rely on promotional material to be handed out. Mainly it's posters, haven't gotten any ceiling dangles in a while, but DC has been doing something different with advertising on plastic shopping bags. I like them and so do my customers. Some ask for them every time, and a few even started collections. This is a promotional avenue that shows a lot of potential. They're like mini-billboards that customers walk around with in their hands.

A lot of those advert sacks walking out the door also contained back issue comics.

While he may be called Batman, he was the Big Dog in back issue sales this year. Key Golden Age Batman were #19 in FN- for $600, #26 in GD for $150, #28 in GD- for $150, and #53 in VG+ for $260. The second printing of Batman 3D #1, with the original glasses, sold in VG+ for $50.

Batman's Detective Comics were likewise hot. Key sales were #287 in VF+ for $75, and #293 (Aquaman backup feature begins) in VG for $50.

Sold multiple copies of the New 52 Batman incarnation of #1 in VF- to NM for prices ranging between $45 and $75. The 1st appearance of the Joker's Daughter in Batman Dark Knight #33.4 also sold multiple NM copies for $25 each.

The most notable Superman sale was #97 in VG+ for $120, but there was a lot of activity in his universe. Superboy and the Legion of Super-Heroes in Adventure Comics #300 sold in FN+ for $130. Thanks to his reintroduction into modern continuity, the 1st full appearance of Doomsday in Superman Man of Steel (vol. 2) #18 sold multiple copies in FN to NM, with prices ranging from $10 to $25.

DC overall was very active, especially with key issues.

2014 was a breakout year for Harley Quinn.
(Harley Quinn #1 shown)

The origin of the Infinite Earths in Green Lantern #40 sold for $100 in VF+. The origin and 1st appearance of Zatanna in Hawkman (v1) #4 sold in GD+ for $25. The 1st appearance of Abel in House of Secrets #81 sold for $105 in VF.

Notable sale for Marvel was Amazing Spider-Man #129 (1st Punisher/1st Jackal) VG+ $150. Sold a couple of Amazing Spider-Man #300 with the 1st full appearance of Venom, one in VG+ for $51 and another in FN+ for $100.

The 1st full Wolverine story in Incredible Hulk #181 sold for $112 in GD-.

Pre-Super Hero Marvels were hot, especially Journey Into Mystery. Sold #64 in VF- for $105, #72 in VG for $60, and #74 in VG+ for $75. The 1st appearance of Groot in Tales to Astonish #13 went early in the year, before the release of the Guardians of the Galaxy movie, in GD- for $60.

In other theater-related activity, X-Men were particularly hot, thanks to their Days of Future Past movie.

The big back issue seller for Marvel was Fantastic Four. Sold #6 in VG+ for $390, and two copies of the 1st appearance of the Silver Surfer and Galactus in #48, one in GD+ for $65 and another in VG- for $115.

For independent publishers, there wasn't a lot to talk about in back issues. Sold a 1st Printing of Linsner's Cry For Dawn #1 in NM- for $80, and a VG- copy of Cerebus #15 for $25. Sold a pair of Hellboy's 2nd appearance in Next Men #21, one in VF for $24 and another in VF+ for $35.

Old Dell Comics continued to be strong movers in my market. Sold the Dell Giant Christmas Parade #6 in FN- for $41, Donald Duck Beach Party #1 in FN- for $44, and Silly Symphonies #9 in VG+ for $38. The top dollar Dell of the year was Four Color #386, featuring Uncle Scrooge #1, in VG+ for $400.

Dell's successor, Gold Key, was also active. Sold Doctor Solar #1 in VF- for $75. Star Trek #1 sold for $75 in VG.

Archie's Sonic the Hedgehog #1 went for $24 in VG+.

Had a bunch of activity with early printings of Classic Comics and Classics Illustrated. Most notable was a 1st Print of #54 in FN+ for $79 and a 1st Print of #58 in FN+ for $72. Even sold a Classical Comic, Ideal #2, with the Corpses of Dr. Sacotti, in FN for $95.

Not much activity with Westerns. The only notable sale was Gene Autry #80 in FN for $15.

Same situation with Romance comics, with A Date With Judy #9 in FN- for $36 being pretty much it..

I did sell some War comics. The 1st appearance of the Haunted Tank in G.I. Combat #91 went for $150 in FN-. Our Army at War #110 went for $45 in VG+. Ranger Comics #26, with a classic Japanese WWII good girl cover, sold in FN+ for $175. Sgt. Fury #13, featuring Captain America and Bucky, sold in VG+ for $90.

Also sold a bunch of the Marvel G.I. Joe (if those really count as war stories), with the 1st appearance of Storm Shadow in #21 in VG for $34.

All of that activity was just the tip of the iceberg, as back issues sales continue to increase every year.

TED VANLIEW SUPERWORLD COMICS

Holy Moley! It's a great time to be a comic collector and dealer. Comics have become one of the world's premier collectibles. We can congratulate ourselves for appreciating an intrinsically wonderful hobby well ahead of the mainstream.

And mainstream we are becoming. Growing up as a comic collector, I kept a low profile about it, except with trusted friends... and girls certainly weren't impressed. Now, with the movies being blockbusters, everybody's jumping on board, even the hotties.

Any time there's an announcement about a movie in the works, related books jump in demand and value. I've gotta admit that I long thought '80s and '90s books would never amount to anything. Boy, was I wrong!

Anything Deadpool, especially his 1st appearance in New Mutants #98 has jumped up. X-Factor #5 & 6 (1st Apocalypse), New Teen Titans #2 (1st Deathstroke), Avengers #181 (Scott Lang), #195 & 196 (Taskmaster) and so many others are in great demand.

First appearances from the '60s and '70s are hopping too, especially if tied into a movie or TV show appearance. Nova #1, Marvel Super-Heroes #13 (1st Carol Danvers), Fantastic Four #52 (1st Black Panther), She-Hulk #1, Fantastic Four #44-47 (Inhumans) and zillions of others too!

Golden Age: Timelys remain very tough to locate, especially war-era issues and classic covers. There's huge demand for Hitler covers across the board, from every publisher.

DCs are strong as well, with very recognizable characters and consistently high quality art. Funny that the editors didn't realize for decades how important the great villains were, as the most sought after issues are the ones featuring them, especially on the cover.

Underrated publishers are Quality and Fawcett. Both had art and stories that were superior to Timely and sometimes DC. Most of the covers are somewhat uninspiring though, and that holds them back with collectors. Anything by Jack Cole is worth getting, and some of Charlie Biro's stuff is outrageous. There's a lot of great Crandall art in Quality issues too.

Archie (and MLJ) titles from the 1940s and 1950s are very sought after, especially in decent condition, as they're hard to find and are a lot of fun. There are lots of headlight and innuendo covers among them too. Forget about finding Speed Comics below #35. Sheesh! Love 'em, but where are they? Prize Comics are great sleepers too, and hard to find. Four Favorites have outrageous covers and stories, and they are seldom seen. Ditto for Catmans.

Silver Age: Marvel is slaughtering DC, largely because they have been doing such a bang-up job with their movies. DC has some good TV shows, and that's helpful. We're all hoping they get on the horse with the movies. We'll see.

Any movie or TV tie-in automatically rockets to the Moon in demand! Outside of those books, things are still percolating along steadily. The "keys" rule, but regular run books sell well too, especially in high grades, just not as quickly. There are some DC books that are murderously tough to locate in anything resembling decent grade. I've been looking for a copy of Action Comics #242 in legit VF or better for 10 years, and I haven't found one. By and large, all 10¢ and early 12¢ DCs were very well read and are very scarce in higher grades. Batman remains the most consistently popular DC title. The character is endlessly fascinating, and has a great stable of villains and supporting cast.

Silver Age Marvels, of course, are the leading light in the entire hobby! Viva The King!... and The Great Ditko too. Kirby virtually built the foundation upon which the multi-billion dollar publishing and movie franchises of today are based. Early Marvels in high grade continue to command rising prices. Mid-'60s (1965-67) Marvels are not as hard to find, but are much tougher than they used to be in high grade. I remember when the 1968 "expansion" books, such as Captain America, Iron Man, etc., were everywhere. Now they're very sought after, and while they're available in high grade, demand and prices have climbed steadily.

Other publishers, such as Dell, Gold Key, Charlton, Tower, Archie, et al have been shouldered to the side. We sell them occasionally, but can't predict with any consistency. There are some sleepers in there though, such as Magnus #1, Konga #1 and Gorgo #1, Mysterious Suspense #1 and other hidden gems.

The Bronze Age continues the Silver Age trends, where there are some great DCs, but Marvel has assumed primacy. Green Lantern #76 is a huge book, which started the O'Neil/Adams "social relevancy" team-up, has a classic cover and is a widely accepted demarcation book beginning the Bronze Age. Anything Neal Adams from this period is top shelf, be it Batman, Detective, Green Lantern, World's Finest, X-Men, Superman and a trove of covers.

There's a wide array of Marvel keys from this era. They launched zillions of new titles to go with the established ones each year from around 1970 in the 1980s. Tomb of Dracula, Werewolf By Night, Frankenstein, Conan, Ghost Rider, Hero For Hire, Marvel Team-Up, among many others from the early '70s. The mid-'70s saw Nova, Ms. Marvel, She-Hulk and many others. Giant-Size X-Men #1 sells instantly in any grade. Incredible Hulk #181 remains Top Dog. Even copies missing the value stamp sell for unprecedented prices. All the black covers and black picture frame cover books are hell to find in high grades.

We already mentioned the Copper and Modern Ages. I never thought any books from this era would amount to anything, but I was wrong! Not only movie and TV show tie-ins have taken off, but also issues related to new series and storylines.

Well, I won't bore you further 'til next time. May the Many Moons of Munnopor shine on you.

JASON VERSAGGI COLLECTOR

So a funny thing happened on the way to the comics shop. After numerous sit downs and conversations about comics, the industry, the market for both comics and original art, I was asked to be an advisor to Overstreet. Needless to say I was thrilled. The book that had been my lifeblood as a collector starting around 1984 - THE sole source of my endless hours of research into my passion, now wanted my input. I wholeheartedly accepted.

As a die-hard comics collector since the mid-'80s, I knew back then I had to load up on the whales. Like stocks you have to own the blue chips. This wasn't just investment philosophy, I literally was in love with the Silver Age of Comics and that spurred my interest in the Golden Age and Timely and Alex Schomburg! So I took my hard-earned paper route money and bought Silver Age keys, NOT funny animals doing martial arts and I'm not talking about the Turtles. I'm talking about their legion of knock-offs that if you can believe it, were hotter than a lot of key Silver and Bronze Age books for a good part of the '80s.

Now that we are in a post-bubble bubble (The '90s collapse really wasn't a collapse for the comic collecting market as much as the new published product and merchandise) but it was really the infancy of original comic art. I can sit here and tell you Marvel and DC keys are hot in high grade. Well no kidding they have always been and always will be, but comic art is the new frontier and that's with some astronomical prices being set all the time for the real high end stuff.

The fact that you could have owned twice-up Jack Kirby covers for a few thousand bucks in the late '90s and right after the clock struck twelve on Y2K and now they are all but untouchable grails. This is not that long ago. We're talking about 10-15 years ago. What are the new hot items? Well thanks in large part to the multimedia success of Marvel, ALL things Marvel are very hot and most are reasonably good buys now and moving forward. There used to be the fear that the Big Two were not cultivating new readers, but now they are cultivating millions of new fans and have made comics fandom mainstream. This means higher demand for all collectibles if the quality is there. Original art is a one of a kind item. The comics may be scarce in high grade but there is always more than one available. Not so with the art. If you miss out on a key piece or a cover you've always covered it literally may have been a once in a lifetime opportunity.

What's some less obvious art I've noticed a huge amount of interest in in the past year or so? I think like with the comics market when fans become priced out of an area such as the super high grade keys, they move down a notch to lesser grade keys, and then down further to NEW keys. Did anyone ever think the Ms. Marvel and Scott Lang Ant-Man first appearances would turn Ms. Marvel #1 and Marvel Premiere #47 into super late Bronze Age-early Modern Age keys that are now some of the hottest comics around? Same is true with comic art. It's the '90s. I have had a very hard time finding quality covers from the '90s. The era that has been so infamous for so long may have found the time that heals all wounds. We're now 25 years removed from 1990 and that means the '90s are now classic!

I've found that it was a matter of not just thinking about the characters I loved like Spider-Man because of Lee, Ditko, Romita, and Andru but it was the Spider-Man adventures that were new for me as I was collecting. That meant guys like Alex Saviuk and Sal Buscema and artists like Paul Ryan on Avengers and Fantastic Four and Javier Saltares and Mark Texiera on Ghost Rider. Kieron Dwyer on Captain America, Ron Lim on Silver Surfer, Jim Valentino's Guardians of the Galaxy, Rick Leonardi and Incredible Hulk covers by Dale Keown and Gary Frank and of course the brief brilliance of Jeff Purves. This was my wheelhouse. Guess what? Not only is this some great work from the era, but it's very hard to find and when you do, the prices are staring to soar. There is a tremendous amount of very high quality artwork that spanned long runs - when we got long runs - that for many adults collecting now those were their defining moments. I have found it very tough to acquire quality pieces privately and they don't make it to auction mostly because of the lousy track record of modern pieces selling at low prices at the auction houses. Sure if you have a McFarlane Amazing Spider-Man cover you'll make it past the velvet ropes but are any of the big auction houses whispering sweet nothings in your ear for the right to sell your Ron Frenz Thor cover or your Bret Blevins Sleepwalker? Maybe they should figure out how to market these pieces better because the demand is very high and there is not much quality to be had.

As for the comics I am noticing getting attention, you have to look beyond Marvel and DC for some of the best comics being published today. In my opinion Archie is doing great things and breathing new life into the character as they position the Archie property for new media entry. This makes all Archie - long undervalued - a great comic to target. Also, the work Dynamite has done with the pulp heroes and salvaged Golden-Agers is sensational. They are great reads now and should make their predecessors from the Golden Age very relevant today and beyond. The Shadow, The Spider, Green Hornet, Black Terror, and Dark Horse's Captain Midnight are all a breath of fresh air and a welcome addition to the 2015 comics scene for this comics historian purist.

JOSEPH VETERI, ESQ. COMIC ART CON

I hope you all are having a great year! Most of the Overstreet advisors will naturally comment on the vintage comic book market, the insatiable demand for the well noted keys and what comic books are "hot." This year I feel a change is in order. I will focus this year's report on comic art.

I believe the comic art market isn't just white hot, it's just begun to shift into overdrive. Now, I am not going to list impressive auction sale after impressive auction sale after impressive auction sale. Anyone can ascertain that data by checking the auction sales of many of the fine auction houses that offer comic art. This year's report will focus on posing some helpful questions that all comic art collectors should ask themselves, both the novice and experienced.

In 2013 I was approached by Gemstone Publishing to give my insight and opinions about collecting comic art for their new series of "How To" books entitled, The Overstreet Guide to Collecting Comic & Animation Art. Several questions were posed which I feel can be very helpful to all comic art collectors. I hope these questions encourage you to clearly define your collecting interest(s) and build a collection that in time will showcase "you" and all that you enjoy and cherish. The questions are as follows: What is your collecting focus (covers, splashes, panel pages, character, artist, action pages, battle pages, historic story arcs, first appearances, etc.)? How do you define eye appeal?

Other than eye appeal, what are the ways you evaluate a piece of comic art (character inclusion, action pages, battle pages, subject matter, dialogue, condition, artist(s) who penciled and/or inked the piece, historical significance, what title was the page published in, etc.)? How does the significance of the featured character affect the appeal of the piece? What would compel or motivate you to instantly want to purchase a piece of comic art? How important is it that the main character is in all or most of the panels? How does the flow of the story on the page or as I like to say "how the page reads" contribute to the desirability of the piece? Will missing word balloons or caption boxes factor in your decision making if you should or should not purchase a particular piece of comic art? Will you collect comic art only from the main or original title of a particular character or are spin-off titles acceptable? How does the aging of the art board/paper or vellum affect your decision to purchase or not purchase a piece? How do you place a value on a piece of comic art? What are your criteria to determine value? Does restoration or clean-up impact the desirability or value of a piece? Do the different pencil/inker teams affect the desirability of the piece? What are your collecting goals in 5 years? 10 years? I hope these questions helped evoke some thought and will in time, bring you clarity and a keen collecting focus. Also, the more you speak with other collectors and attend conventions, the better!

As most of you know, I am the co-founder and co-promoter of COMIC ART CON, "The First Exclusive Comic Art Convention." The convention has grown tremendously since its inception in 2009. I would like to thank all of the attendees, dealers and comic artists that have supported the show and have contributed to the show's success! In 2015 Comic Art Con is moving from its usual 2,200 square foot room to a massive 5,000 square foot ballroom. For more information go to www.comicartshowcase.com. I wish you all the best!!!

TODD WARREN COLLECTOR

Hello everyone. 2014 was a very fun year for me as a comic collector. I bought and sold a lot of books that I love, both comic books and pulps, and strengthened or made new friendships with fellow collectors around the country. I attended several comic conventions: the amazing Baltimore Comic Con, one of the best shows for old comics, the New York Comic Con, which has become the San Diego of the East, Philadelphia Wizard World, the monthly Philadelphia Comic Con, and one pulp show, Pulp Adventurecon. It's always fantastic to run into folks who I know at these shows and see what everyone has been up to since I last saw them. The camaraderie is one of the best, most enjoyable parts of our hobby and I look forward to more good times next year.

On a personal note, I'd like to give a shout-out to two fellow Golden Age comic collectors and great friends of mine, John Finley and Larry Sutliff, who both suffered serious health issues in 2014. I know they'll get a kick out of seeing their names mentioned here. John and Larry, here's wishing you all the best and a speedy recovery back to full health!

Golden Age: The biggest news in the vintage comic book market in 2014 was the sale of a high-grade copy of Action Comics #1 for just over $3.2 million. Wow. Think about that for a minute. $3.2 million for a comic book. It surpassed the previous record sale of over $2.1 million set in 2011.

Before 2010, no comic book had ever sold for $1 million. Since then, 6 have eclipsed that number. Comic books have entered the rarified air previously reserved for fine art. Each of the 6 times the media coverage was widespread, bringing lots of attention and possibly new collectors with it.

It's said a rising tide lifts all boats, and while Action Comics #1 has maintained its hold as the most desirable and expensive book in the hobby, and its price has steadily risen, so have those of many other Golden Age keys. Here are some Golden Age keys that have increased in value significantly over the last year:

- All Star Comics #8 – the 1st appearance of Wonder Woman is now a highly coveted book. A few years ago they were easy to find at reasonable prices, but now demand is insatiable and it's a whole new market. Prices keep rising on this book. If you wanted one, you may have missed the opportunity to buy an affordable copy.

- Batman #1 – pound for pound one of the best comic books of the Golden Age, it features the 1st appearances of both the Joker and Catwoman, as well as an early Robin appearance. Demand is through the roof!

- Captain America Comics #1 – the second Cap movie, Winter Soldier, was extraordinary and as he continues to become more and more of an A-list character, this book will top many collectors' wantlists.

The debut of Wonder Woman in All Star Comics #8 is highly coveted.

• Marvel Family #1 – now that a movie has been announced and Black Adam confirmed as the villain, his 1st (and only) Golden Age appearance is suddenly in demand. Although demand has recently spiked, this is a pretty common issue so it will be interesting to watch this one.

• More Fun Comics #73 – with the 1st Green Arrow and 1st Aquaman, this book is super-hot. The Arrow TV show has really taken off and the promise of JLA and Aquaman movies have revived interest in these characters.

• Sensation Comics #1 – all of the Wonder Woman keys are hot, and this one with the best cover of the three is no exception.

• Superman #1 – always in demand and scarce compared to other keys like Batman #1 and Captain America #1, Superman #1 continues to be the third most valuable comic book with many strong sales this past year.

• Wonder Woman #1 – like the other Wonder Woman keys, this book is hot. The JLA and Wonder Woman movies have resparked interest in the character.

And one book to keep an eye on:

• Whiz Comics #2(#1) – I didn't see any recent sales of this one, but with the coming JLA and Shazam movies, interest is sure to pick up.

Golden Age Comic Sales:

All-Star Comics #3, CGC 6.0, $16,500

Police Comics #1, CGC 7.5 White, $8500

Pulps: Pulp conventions, like pulp collectors, are much scarcer than their comic book counterparts, and I consider myself lucky that one of the few pulp shows in the country is held every November just a half hour drive from my house. The trip there this year was especially worthwhile for me because I was able to finally add a copy of Doc Savage Magazine #1 to my collection. I think I first put it on my wantlist in the mid-'90s, so I was thrilled to finally complete the quest.

One of the biggest selling points for pulps, especially for cross-over collectors coming from Golden Age comics, is the seemingly endless selection of incredible covers. In recent years comprehensive books have been published spotlighting some of the major pulp cover artists, such as J. Allen St. John and Margaret Brundage. This year a fantastic new book about the work of Walter Baumhofer was released. Baumhofer is best known for his work on Doc Savage (including the aforementioned #1), The Spider, Nick Carter, and Dime Mystery. Books like these spotlighting cover artists are invaluable guides for new pulp collectors as they enter the hobby.

JEFF WEAVER VICTORY COMICS

Having just celebrated our fifth year as a brick and mortar store, and over a decade at conventions and online, Victory Comics is pleased to report on the state of the market.

Fueled by a string of continuing movie successes, comic book characters have become firmly established in the American entertainment mainstream. The public has so far shown a voracious appetite for the sequential art legends that most of the readers of this article will have followed for long before the latest craze.

In general, the back issue market is extremely brisk right now. The volume of sales is very, very strong and this past year we've noticed two independent factors that are really driving this phenomenon.

The first driver is the fact that non-rare, non-key material from all eras has come down substantially in price. A lot of low- and mid-grade Bronze and even Silver can be purchased for under $10 or $5. While some see this as a bad sign for the market, we disagree. This market correction was inevitable. Over the last decade the internet exposed the true volume of low- and mid-grade material available to the marketplace. It also eliminated what used to be called regional scarcity – that is, some books were more available in certain areas of the country than in others. These lower prices have made this material much more financially accessible to buyers.

The second driver is the influx of new comic buyers who are motivated by the mainstream popularity of comic-related characters. In our experience, these new readers are less “collectors” and more “consumers” of comics. Let me explain a bit what I mean.

While those of us in the traditional collecting community have always enjoyed the comic stories, we also get considerable satisfaction just knowing that a certain issue is safely stored in our collection. Because of that many of us are willing to spend a tremendous amount just to acquire a certain issue. Of course many buyers of comics today, including new ones, share that outlook.

But generally speaking, many in the new audience for comics get a disproportionate amount of their enjoyment from the reading of the stories and somewhat less from just having the comics in a long box in their closet. That means they are less likely to spend a large amount for a single issue but prefer to buy numerous lower priced issues so they can maximize the enjoyment of the hobby. This person is less likely to spend $300 for a Captain America #100 and much more likely to spend $300 on 150 $2 issues of Cap. They are spending the same amount. They just spend it differently.

So you add these two factors together -- 1) lower priced comics and 2) large numbers of new buyers looking for lower priced comics – and you get a hopping market at the lower end of the price spectrum. Keep in mind this lower end of the spectrum includes tons of material that used to be the “middle” of the market, but which have come back to earth pricewise.

Those plying digital comics think this phenomenon points to a bright future for them. They believe because newer readers tend to be consumers rather than collectors that they can provide the same material in the digital ether. But they take the point too far. Comic readers, both old and new, still highly value the physical medium of the paper comic book. As we laid out in more detail in last year's market report (and I'm happy to go over it with anyone who wishes to contact me), digital is no more likely to provide the

In the end, sequential art story-telling is inextricably linked to the two dimensional paper format. Sure, there are short term profits to be turned in the digital marketplace but for comics to continue we need a renaissance of the kind we saw in the 1960s when the last great entertainment invention (then, television) almost drove comics to extinction. But I'll get off my soapbox now (so I can take the calls of the DC and Marvel execs who want to discuss this further.)

At the top end of the market, truly rare, key or ultra-high grade books continue to go higher and higher with no end in sight. I remember as a child looking at all the thumbnail pictures on the top of the pages of the Overstreet Guide and dreaming of how one day I would be able to afford an All-American #16. Well I could have purchased one – but I bought an SUV instead. The point here is that many of these keys have become more expensive than any of us could possibly have imagined. All the keys – Gold, Silver, Bronze – are smoking hot. Collectors can expect to pay a hefty premium for these issues.

The other collecting area that is very strong is movie-related books. Whenever a new character is announced for a movie (or even speculated about) the price of that character's first appearance zooms up. Some of these we believe will retain long-term value and others may not. But that hasn't stopped people from snatching them up like crazy. New Mutants #98 and Batman Adventures #12 are two of the books in this category that seem to fly off the racks.

Everything Star Wars (especially the original Marvel #1) is on a rocket ship to the moon in terms of popularity. Daredevil has been rejuvenated by the new Netflix show. And everything Avengers is sizzling. That's true at the store, at shows and online.

The Comic Store Front: As I mentioned earlier, our store has just passed its five year anniversary. Year over year growth in terms of sales and subscribers is strong. Currently we are looking at opportunities to expand to additional locations.

Our store's approach is to present a clean, modern atmosphere that is friendly to everyone, not just the hardcore fan. We think parents coming in with children are a great thing, not a bother. As a result we have an extremely diverse customer base.

Free Comic Book Day continues to be the greatest marketing strategy ever developed in our industry. The person who came up with the idea should get a medal or maybe an Amazing Fantasy #15 signed by Stan Lee. It brings out masses of people and gives those of us who sell comic books made of paper much needed exposure.

On the marketing front, we participate in two summer reading programs run by area libraries, we sponsor a Little League team, we participate in promotional activities with a local movie house, and we give out free comics at report card time to area kids.

Items that are hot in the store include Star Wars,

Batman, Walking Dead and anything movie-related. I suspect this is similar to stores everywhere. We also have a large stock of back issues, including vintage back issues, which differentiates us from most of the other local stores. Given the complexity of the back issue market it is difficult for them to stay on top of it without an active convention presence.

Online Selling: We continue to find that online buyers have the most diverse appetite for comics. That, of course, is due to the fact that it is the largest audience. In a store you have thousands of customers; at a convention you have tens of thousands of customers. But online you have millions.

As a result we have great success selling esoteric Gold and Silver as well as the standard vintage superhero fare. The online community also has a large number of "cover" buyers (buyers who purchase books almost entirely by what's on the cover) relative to the other market segments. They love that pre-Code Horror and Crime material. (But who doesn't?)

One of the continuing challenges of online selling is ensuring that the books we are listing are the ones that the online buyers actually want. There are tons of Silver Age books which bring almost nothing online so it is not the best marketplace for that type of material.

I can't count the number of people who have refused my initial offer for their collection because they decide they are going to get more selling it piecemeal on eBay. They almost always call me within a few weeks after they realize what a time consuming process it is and how heavily the online buying community discounts books from unknown or inexperienced sellers.

That being said, online selling continues to revolutionize our industry and to supply important price signals about the value of books. It is certainly not the be all and end all on the subject but it is critical to understanding the market.

Conventions: This year Victory Comics considerably ramped up its convention presence. We are travelling coast to coast. It is fair to say that the comic convention scene has changed radically since I went to my show back in 1982 in New York City.

I'll share one short story (at the risk of sounding like an old guy who regales everyone with tales about how he walked uphill both ways to school). I was a high school kid who travelled to New York from northern Vermont on the train. There I was walking around and buying what my limited budget allowed me to afford. Also walking around the show with no fanfare and no entourage was Stan Lee. I distinctly remember the aspiring comic artists who would just walk up to him and ask him to critique their work. Stan gladly took the time to look at their material and give them pointers. That's a far cry from today where you have shows with tens of thousands of fans (in some cases over a hundred thousand) and it is impossible to have that more personal connection with people like Stan Lee or the many other big name celebrities.

Thanks for joining me on that trip down memory lane. That being said, here's my feedback on the conventions at which we've exhibited in the past year.

ReedPop's New York Comicon and Chicago C2E2:

It is an understatement to say that these two shows have become convention powerhouses. The energy in their exhibit halls is intense and the crowds overwhelming. They can really put on a show!

New York Comicon is in my view replacing San Diego Comicon as the premier comic book event of the year. Comics have become a smaller and smaller part of San Diego over the last many year while Reed's NYCC continues to expand.

NYCC's sister show in Chicago was also a barnburner this year. I didn't know there were that many people in the greater Chicago area.

Wizard World Everywhere: The Wizard World pop culture universe keeps growing and growing.

Now with over two dozen shows (including one in China) Wizard deserves a lot of credit for bringing the Comicon experience to some smaller cities. Wizard World is rapidly becoming America's comic show company.

But just because the shows are in some smaller cities that doesn't mean the crowds are small (Tulsa, Ok, had over 30,000 people attending!!!). The Wizard experience is definitely more pop culture focused. There are comics but Wizard also brings top tier celebrities and a host of other retailers. So comics are a part, but only a part. Wizard's flagship show in Chicago is one of the pillars of the comic show circuit.

Baltimore Comicon: Baltimore Comicon continues to shine as the comic book focused show. If you are into comic books there really is no larger selection of choice material anywhere. The show features dealers from all over the country and the list of comic artists and writers is huge. This show is definitely worth traveling for if you love a room packed full of old funny books.

Megacon: Orlando's early spring comic show has been a staple of the East Coast show circuit for years and years. This is one that has really grown recently. The product mix here is a combination of comics and manga. Given its balmy weather, this show was loved by dealers and fans alike for giving everyone an excuse in the early part of the year to head down to Florida.

This show has been purchased by a convention company from the family that built it. And the new owners moved the dates in 2016 to Memorial Day and increased the number of days to 4 from the current 3. Time will tell how these changes affect the show. There certainly was a lot of wary dealer chatter about the change at the end of the 2015 show. Many will miss Megacon kicking off the East Coast show season.

Tampa Bay Comicon: Last year was our first at this midsummer event on Florida's west coast. What a spectacular event. Tens of thousands were in attendance. The owners here are a delight to deal with and this is a show well worth attending. I've also exhibited at their sister show in Indiana. That show is also well run and a great experience for fans and dealers alike.

Conclusion: This is a great time to be a comic collector. A lot prices have come down and comic shows and the internet are making more and more comics accessible to more and more people. Hopefully we will see you on the road or at our Falls Church, VA, comic and gaming superstore.

LON WEBB

DARK ADVENTURE COMICS

This has been an extremely exciting year both in comic sales and in purchases. It has been quite some time since I've seen the market as fluid as in this last year. Major motion pictures and popular television series based on long-time favorite comic characters are helping fuel the interest, it seems, as the biggest trending books are tie-in related. The laundry list of most requested issues are:

- Preacher and Hellblazer comics due to the Constantine TV show and rumors of upcoming films.
- More Fun Comics #73 and Action Comics #258 - 1st app. of Green Arrow and his origin issue, respectively.
- Action Comics #283 - 1st General Zod and Phantom Zone.
- Flash Comics #86 - 1st Black Canary, and subsequent issues, especially #92 with its tough white cover, along with All Star Comics #38 and Brave and The Bold #61 & #62 (which also boasts the 1st Silver Age Starman, Huntress, and Wildcat.)
- New Teen Titans #2 (of course) with the 1st Deathstroke, though it is slowing down.
- Iron Man #55 with the 1st Drax and Thanos, though it, too, is slowing as prices have leveled the interest.
- Avengers #55 & #57-1st app. and death of Ultron, and also later issues #66, 67, etc. with further Ultron incarnations. Avengers #28 continues to demand interest as being the 1st app. of The Collector.
- Captain America #117 remains undervalued with the 1st Falcon app. and sells in all grades.
- Fantastic Four issues as a whole have been experiencing some price resistance at Guide, but most issues #1-75 sell well when priced adequately. Especially of interest is #45 (1st Inhumans), #48 (idiot-proof investment issue), #52 (1st Black Panther, #53 (2nd Black Panther-and way undervalued), and any Hulk vs. Thing issue.
- Flash #113 (1st Trickster), #114 (1st Captain Cold), and #117 (1st Captain Boomerang) are all trending at the moment.
- Tales To Astonish #13 (1st Groot) and later appearances in Hulk Annual #5 and Sensational Spider-Man #1 are also in higher demand. The Marvel Preview #4 and #7, with Star-Lord and Rocket Raccoon are cooling considerably due to massive price increases. Guardians of the Galaxy overall appearances have stalled and plateaued, price-wise.

This is by no means a complete list, as an entire in-depth report could be written on the fluctuations of the trending film tie-in comics of interest, but overall, what is most telling and something to note is that real collector dollars are being paid and efforts made to track down and purchase these - as opposed to weak interest in the past. These sustaining sales tell me the current crop of TV/films that are finally doing the genre proud are also boosting the back issue market and creating longer term buyers and collecting rather than flash-in-the-pan impulse sales that all too often burn out.

The films and TV shows have yet to achieve a saturation point curving into indifference, and this has helped create much of the excitement and movement in the markets lately, and is a refreshing time for both dealer and collector alike. Younger blood is moving into the collector spheres and that is a godsend for the hobby is general, as is the ever-growing arena of female collectors.

Cosplay has helped, rather than hurt the overall market and has helped bring in an even more varied crowd at conventions, which invariably leads to a percentage of those joining the ranks of the hobby, giving a shot in the arm to the modern markets. Batman Adventures #12 (1st Harley Quinn), Batman Family #6 (1st Joker's daughter), Black Canary, Catwoman, Ms. Marvel, and the many strong female characters that have hit a note with readers are also causing them to expand their interests into the back issue market - and that is only the super-hero tip of the iceberg. Modern comics offer much for the female reader and numerous store owners in the know have capitalized on that by fostering knowledge and awareness of the many varied independent titles to their customer base.

Due to personal issues this year with the health of my father, I have not been as available or active in locating and securing books as in the past, but many of the items on my customers' want lists are simply getting tougher to locate outside major auction house sourcing. With being curtailed on traveling this year, I have mainly operated our serious books via mail order and lists, using eBay and conventions for average inventory while also being active in putting buyers and sellers together for commission.

Based on on-line sales I have recently observed, I may once again be moving our better items onto the eBay platform, as it seems to finally be encouraging serious buyers. I prefer third-party grading for on-line sales, but many of my long-time customers are against it on principle, and believe it or not, won't buy a slabbed book. Regardless, simply due to the realities of the marketplace and because we will be actively attending convention circuits again in the near future, much of our Golden and Silver Age inventory will be third party graded - in some cases, just for the added safety in handling.

Golden and Atom Age sales have become as strong this year as I have ever seen them, with supply being the main problem. There is a huge segment of this age that simply does not sell without substantial discounting, but the bread and butter Super-hero issues (especially war-time titles), Horror, and Good Girl art sell strongly at and above Guide. Sales include: Adventure Comics #72 (FN) $3000; #73 (FN) $4000; All-American Comics #16 (FR/GD) $3200 cash/trade; #102 (NM-) $5300; All Winners Comics #19 (GD) $1000; #21 (VG) 1500; various Timely Captain America, Human Torch, Mystic, and Daring Mystery issues for between 1.2x-1.5x Guide by grade. I also connected a buyer with a seller on an unrestored off-white Detective Comics #27 in 6.0 and negotiated a cash/trade of approx. $710k, which netted a nice commission - but the joy of it was in creating a win-win for everyone on a book I had been watching and trying to get for myself for years.

Books to watch include: Most Timely (of course, though it is doubtful how much more Caps can achieve); Frazetta art issues (all - as the interest is at an all-time high); Simon-Kirby studio books (popping all over the place now); Cat-Man and Hangman issues and appearances; Hitler, Tojo, axis covers (Big Shot Comics have many); early Archie Peps; Fox Giants and St. John Giants; Horror annuals, like Voodoo; Matt Baker art (all-time high interest); and Harvey cartoon character 1st appearances.

The Silver Age market has given us our most numerous sales this past year, with Marvel being far ahead of the pack. Extremely high grade Marvels and DCs simply sell - end of story - and even non-keys, especially when they're priced in reality rather than in the land of hopes and dreams. Low grades sell right below half of Guide for average issues and right at Guide for keys. Mid-grades sell at mostly discounted prices, even for keys - and Silver Marvel has many of them. There is a large supply of '60s books out there, and priced right, virtually all Super-hero will sell. Everything else is feast or famine, and I won't waste the space re-iterating market reports of the past on my views here - just look them back up.

Some sales outside the norm include: Action Comics #242 (FN) $1000; #252 (VF) $3000; #210 (VF-) $3500. Books to watch include: Marvel "prototype" issues; 2nd appearances of many major characters (many which are way undervalued); Neal Adams art issues; Suicide Squad appearances; 2nd tier Marvel character 1st appearances; Beatles appearances; psychedelic cover issues; science fiction photo cover movie/TV tie-ins, especially UFO. To mix it up more: Archie's Pals n Gals #23; Jughead #58; Betty & Veronica #75; Madhouse #22 & 36; Harvey Hits #3 & 7; Challenge of the Unknown #6 by Ace; Adams' Deadman in Aquaman; and early Kid Colt Outlaws.

Bronze and Modern Age comics are selling briskly, but in mainly high grades. Keys are the "key" here, and the higher the grade, the better. The flipside of this is that there is a ton of off-grade material out there to be had for very little that comprises some of the best reading in the hobby! Specialized advisors in this section can offer a much more realized and rounded view on these ages than myself this year, as our bent has been vintage, vintage, vintage of late. The standard books to watch include: New Mutants #98-1st Deadpool; Adams Batman; Incredible Hulk #180, 181, & 182; Marvel Super Specials; Nightmare Publications mags; Marvel Premiere #47; Bissette Swamp Thing; and UNDERGROUNDS - high grade 1st prints with Crumb, Shelton, Deitch, Williams and the like.

This year has also seen a surge in the popularity of boxed Mego figures; rare super-hero playsets (like the Bat-Cave and Captain Action Tower); early Aurora kits; early sci-fi ('30s-'50s) and comics fanzines; '60s-'70s comics-related posters; and even Slurpee cups. Our shelves have been cleaned this year, and it is and has been a fun time to buy, sell, and collect, and I see that continuing on into 2015 - perhaps even beyond this current level (which is a welcome high after a stagnant last decade or so). Maybe I'll even go brick and mortar again! We are poised to begin a massive re-stock and buying campaign, so keep us in mind this year if you have a stack of books or a warehouse, especially on the East Coast or in the South - as that is our domain.

VINCENT ZURZOLO, FRANK CWIKLIK & ROB REYNOLDS METROPOLIS COLLECTIBLES COMICCONNECT.COM

Vincent Zurzolo - Metropolis Collectibles and ComicConnect.com

Over the years, Metropolis has become synonymous with Action Comics #1 due to major purchases and sales; 2014 was another one of those years. We hit a new world record when we paid $3.2 million for Action Comics #1 CGC 9.0 white pages. It was another historic milestone in the world of comics and we were very happy to be a part of it.

One thing members of the comic book community should realize is that there is a ripple effect when a purchase of that magnitude is made. It not only increases the value of Action Comics #1, as was evidenced by our March sale of Action Comics #1 CGC 5.0 for $658,000 (this same issue sold several years earlier for $436,000), but also increases values for other titles and what buyers will think about paying for other comic books in the market.

Every year people ask me "Do you think the market is over-priced? Do you think the comic market will crash? Do you think prices can keep going up?" The correct answers are: No, no, and yes.

Seriously speaking though, the answer is a little more in-depth than that. The comic market can't be looked at as one market where broad brush stroke answers can be given for the whole market in one sentence. What I've seen over the years is that when one segment of the market softens or is viewed as over-priced, buyers move to another segment. If Silver Age is too expensive, collectors and investors will buy Golden Age. If Amazing Spider-Man is too hot, people may buy Tales to Astonish instead. Horror was underpriced for decades then exploded in the early '90s and then cooled off. Bronze was red hot right before the recession and then it cooled off. Now both are coming back again. As the popularity of comic books continues to grow we will see more and more trends and cycles occur.

My sales team keeps a keen eye out for trends. While the growing strength of the Golden Age continues we have also seen comic books from the 1990s exploding in value. Many titles that would have been in the four-for-a-dollar bin have started to climb. The nostalgists have come into play here.

This happens with every generation. I saw it happen to me. I grew up in the '70s and '80s. When those comics became 25-30 years old, I started looking back on them fondly, as they reminded me of my youth and happier/easier days gone by. The prices for Bronze Age/Copper Age started to increase and then the prices for exceptionally high grade copies hit the stratosphere. It has already started to happen with '90s and '00s comics and it will continue. Mark my words. And if you look back a few years, you will see that I had talked about Valiants and now that the purchase of the characters has occurred along with the subsequent movie deals comics like Bloodshot #1 are going up in value.

2014 was exciting for my company when we hit record sales with one CGC 9.2 Incredible Hulk #1 at $320,000 and then another copy at $326,000. The excitement continued as we opened Metropolis Gallery at our new location in midtown Manhattan. Our first show featured the works of the legendary Frank Frazetta and helped us cement our place in the burgeoning original art market. When you are in New York City, I hope you make an appointment to visit with us.

We sell a large amount of raw comic books through our mail order business as well as conventions. The key to this part of our business is accurately grading and describing the comics, offering quality customer service and shipping quickly. The graded comic market has continued to prosper as well. CGC celebrated their 15th anniversary.

Sales of CGC-graded comics have continued to do very well. Interestingly enough, this past year we saw a new third party grading service, CBCS, enter the market. As any red blooded American will tell you, competition and a choice are good for everybody, and with comic veteran Steve Borock at the helm of CBCS the company has gained instant acceptance in the market. We've seen CBCS books sell consistently and even hit new records. All of this bodes well for the future of the hobby.

Until next year, thanks, and keep on collecting!

Metropolis and ComicConnect have now opened Metropolis Gallery as part of their new location. We look forward to hearing about its impact in next year's market report. - RMO

Frank Cwiklik - Metropolis Collectibles

I could rattle off stats and numbers, but there's one change we made this year that sums up the roaring success we've enjoyed, and that the vintage comic business has enjoyed overall. In November, we finally made our move to a sparkling-new office and showroom in the Herald Square area of midtown Manhattan, a stone's-throw from the world-famous flagship Macy's store, and close enough to Times Square that you can see the lights of Broadway from the corner. While many comics buyers and casual collectors still have mental images of comic dealers' offices being dingy closet-sized storefronts, or cluttered offices choked with dust and cigar smoke, here we sit in a white, beautifully appointed 5000 sq. ft. gallery showcasing one of the finest collections of original comic art in the world, with a massive stockroom holding hundreds of thousands of vintage comics. It took a lot of hard work to get here, and it's also a testament to the size of the comic collecting community, and the esteem with which this hobby is now held by the public in general.

The dramatic shift in buying patterns that I noted last year continues apace, as newer buyers flood the market, attracted by the record sales we've racked up in recent years, and the explosive popularity of DC and Marvel movies and TV series. These new buyers are snapping up books that we thought lost causes until recently, as first appearances of previously obscure characters such as Rocket Raccoon (from Guardians of the Galaxy) and Captain Boomerang (from the upcoming Suicide Squad movie) become red-hot thanks to the insatiable hunger for comic-related content across other media. The Daredevil Netflix series has ignited interest in previously-ignored early DD appearances, and the always-popular Frank Miller run is again catching fire. Appearances of characters such as Zatanna, Ra's al Ghul, and the Flash rogues gallery in DC's assorted TV shows has turned previously dead Silver Age DC keys into must-own collector's items.

In addition, many new buyers, with empty longboxes to fill and renewed interest in comics history, are snapping up various unusual issues and off-key off-grade bargain books just to enjoy the fun of owning little pieces of comics history. I'm continually surprised by what shows up on our invoices every morning, and am delighted that so many previously neglected comics are once again being snapped up by collectors who are rediscovering the simple pleasures of the hobby. Most interesting were the sudden interest in the first appearance of Black Mask, which was triggered due to the last Batman: Arkham video game, which goes to show just how massive the influence of comics on pop culture has become. (And just on a personal note, if you haven't played the Arkham games yet, they are the best iteration of the character outside of comics and are amazing and what is wrong with you that you haven't played them yet? Go! Now!)

This new interest in the comic collecting field has also led to some interesting changes when it comes to conventions. It's a double edged sword: on the one hand, thousands of new comics fans are crowding convention halls as the attendance at the major shows reaches critical mass and even smaller shows see huge attendance boosts. However, many of these folks seem to be curiosity seekers hoping to get a glimpse of a TV star or internet sensation in the popular "celebrity zoos" that clog the halls. This makes for an exciting carnival atmosphere, but it's getting harder and harder for vendors to make a go of it with the rising cost of expenses and diminishing returns. We've seen some dealers actually opt out of a few major cons because of it, which is a troubling development. I'm not sure if this is a longterm problem or a temporary side effect of the growing popularity of what was once "nerd" culture, but it has affected the market for both good and bad.

Even with this overcrowding, we've had some impressive sales at recent shows, and the Chicago shows especially have proven to be reliable home runs for us, both in terms of sales and the chance to make new contacts. We've noticed new collectors entering the market via less expensive and more common keys that more jaded buyers have neglected, as the first appearances of Captain Marvel, Apocalypse, and others have gotten red hot amongst novice buyers. While this may seem like a flash in the pan, we've noticed that collectors who started with us over the past ten years buying the Marvel Silver Age keys have recently traded up to Golden Age Timely and DC, or more esoteric niche books, such as ECs, Good Girl art, and Archie. We expect these new buyers excited by Incredible Hulk #272 and Marvel Super-Heroes #18, if carefully cultivated, will become the next generation of Amazing Fantasy #15 and Incredible Hulk #1 owners, and beyond. The trick is keeping them in the market, and the occasionally frenzied action on con floors, with books trading hands two or three times in a weekend for increasingly inflated prices, may seem tempting in the short run but can damage the business longterm. We're hopeful that the lessons of the '90s speculator boom have been learned, and the vintage market, which is certainly sturdier than the comic shop market of the gogo '90s, can withstand any bubble pops or chicanery. Luckily, many of these new buyers come armed with stats and research, and have done their homework, making them savvy and less likely to be swayed by fads. It'll be interesting to see where this trend goes in the coming months, though I am very optimistic in the longterm.

The New York City Javits show has also become more a pop culture event than a dealers' show, but our NYC clientele always comes through. We're really looking forward to the return of the classic Big Apple shows in 2015, which are killer shows for us saleswise. The Big Apple show tends to attract the serious buyers who are priced out of Javits, and so our booth is hopping all day long with folks ready to buy and sell. As with other cons, buying patterns have been split between constant requests for the same few hot movie-related keys, and dedicated collectors searching out more unusual material – we've especially noted a resurgence in interest in Timelys at the New York cons, which proves that the true classics never really lose their luster.

We've also enjoyed great sales at the London SuperCon, which has quickly become one of our strongest shows. Marvel keys are red-hot there as elsewhere, and ECs and classic horror also have a big following, with strong sales of both genres at the show. The UK show has become a great way to make face-to-face contact with overseas clients we've worked with for many years, and we've made some great new contacts at the show each year. I can't say enough good things about the show's organizers, who are among the easiest to work with, and most accommodating, of any con staff we've ever dealt with, making the con a true pleasure to attend. Attendance grows for this show annually, and we're delighted to have been in on the ground floor.

The UK market is not the only one outside our borders that we enjoy sales success with, as our international clientele has grown steadily, due to the continued popularity of comic-based TV series and movies, and the internet's ability to create global culture crazes. We've especially seen this with comics previously thought to be slow sellers or lost causes here in the States: Bronze X-Men, Silver Age mid-grade DC, and obscure Golden Age hero comics are all very popular with customers outside of the US and UK, especially in Italy and Australia. In fact, it could be persuasively argued that comic book culture, long a phenomenon specific to the USA, is now the global culture, as superheroes and modern comic genres excite audiences and buyers across Europe, Africa, and Asia. A significant portion of our orders now ship overseas, and it's a very exciting development.

In more top-tier vintage sales, the demand for the auction model, both for sellers and buyers, has grown significantly. Everyone hopes either for their book to blow past auction estimates thanks to furious bidding, or for their targeted lot to go under market due to slow bidding – it's become a little like playing the slots. It makes retail sales tougher to pull off, but we still have many clients who prefer to simply browse and buy, or who want to snag the book of their choice without the hassle of bidding or watching an auction. While many of our biggest keys are now consumed by the insatiable auction machine that is ComicConnect, we have still closed on a number of high-demand and high-ticket key issues and rarities at retail. This proves that while the market may shift in buying patterns over time, the tried and true classics, when priced right and matched up with the right buyer, can still find a home quickly in the retail sales market. I believe that as the new crop of buyers mature over time, they will settle into a regular buying pattern and will return to the traditional retail model, as long as the material is available and dealers keep their stock fresh, cultivating their clientele with great customer service and attention to detail.

Rob Reynolds - ComicConnect.com

Working for ComicConnect feels like being in the center of the comic book collecting universe. We are fortunate to be a part of an amazing community of like-minded folks who love comics for both collecting and investing. In 2014, our market place and auction captured the attention and fired the imaginations of gape-jawed comic enthusiasts around the world.

In the June Event Auction, we sold the entirety of the John Wise Collection, one of the industry's most respected and well-known collectors. We set numerous records for Mr. Wise, including quite a few surprises on restored copies that were previously undervalued. ComicConnect singlehandedly forged a new market for Golden Age restored books as the "take notice" prices commanded at auction forced investors to strongly consider alternatives as untouched books become increasingly valuable and scarce in the marketplace. Many of these comics are going into collections never to be seen again.

In 2014, ComicConnect proved itself as the destination auction house for the world's best comic collectors and investors. We sold thousands of comics worth millions of dollars while shipping orders to dozens of countries. Buyers continue the graduation trend as Bronze Age collectors move to Silver Age books and Silver to Gold. A good share of our consignments come from these clients liquidating one collectible age to focus on another. This shift has driven the market to brehtaking new heights as established collectors duke it out with investors that have brought new money in to the auctions.

Original Art: ComicConnect was honored to handle the Nick Cardy Estate Collection. It was a beautiful mix of wartime sketches, large western paintings, dark moody landscapes, and commercial work from late in his career. The collection was well received by bidders and we are all proud of the work we did for his family. Top sales for the year includes the cover to More Fun Comics #79 $44,277, the Avengers Annual #1 cover hit $58,754, a Frazetta animal battle sketch $23,500, and the splash page to Walking Dead #1 cleared $21,500. We sold over 1,000 original art auction lots in 2014 and we're looking forward to what comes across our desk this year.

The Mile High copy of Jungle Comics #1 was one of 2014's top Golden Age sales.

THE WAR REPORT

by Matt Ballesteros & the War Correspondents
(Andy Greenham and Mick Rabin)

I am proud to present the seventh installment of the short annual digest that we refer to as the “War Report,” a recurring log that expressly focuses on the war genre through each of the comic ages. For those first-time joiners, I would like to welcome you and explain why we publish the War Report.

Our aim was not just to shine light on influential issues or entire titles, but to zero-in on the creative and publishing teams behind each of the comics. Not just to catalog as many titles and issues as we could unearth, but to assign them categorical nomenclature and numerous classifications. Not just to rank key issues of the genre, but hopefully to attain a clearer impression of their true importance and standing in the comic hobby and marketplace (both in potential value and their prospective significance as a comic book). And finally, to pontificate on a subject dear to us through our own, time-earned opinions and general musings, which may also illuminate why we are so fervent about the category.

I would like to open again by thanking my contributing brethren, Mick Rabin and Andy Greenham. Mick and Andy unselfishly return each year not only to dispense their own conjecture on the subject, but also to assist with factual data which aids in quantifying and qualifying our postulations.

In regard to the report, you will find that it focuses on a range of subjects varying from spotlighting key issues or comic runs, highlighting the publishers and creators behind them (whether sharing facts on those luminaries or hypothesizing particulars), pin-pointing key and sometimes obscure details about certain characters or storylines (that may change the way you look at them), discussing any given comic’s importance in the overall comic book market place, sharing our opinions on value and investment opportunities in the niche field, and presenting our very own war comic book ranking as we believe it exists in the war comic collecting hobby; a ranking system, incidentally, that we developed eight years ago in our effort to illuminate the books that were stand-out collectible treasures—whether in war or in the grander comic book collecting world. If you are interested in gaining a better understanding of how we came about creating the criteria for ranking war comics as whole, the following brief synopsis, Definition of a “War Comic” Briefly Revisited (directly below) should give some background as to our approach and ultimate conclusions.

As always, we openly welcome your thoughts and comments on each of our annual submissions. And, of course, we hope you enjoy this year’s rendition!

Definition of a “War Book” Briefly Revisited

If you want an in-depth look at our comprehensive classification process, I encourage you to pick up a copy of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide #39 or #40, or you can visit www.warcomicroport.com for more details. However, to provide a base foundation to our model, the following is our classification of a “war comic:”

After cataloging hundreds of war comic titles that we cross referenced both against this guide and other comic book publications...

- We characterized war comics as “Stories centered on the military, which is involved in major armed conflicts” (i.e., no cold war, police actions, spy stories, etc.).
- We eliminated war stories with superheroes (by employing the notion that “a war story with a superhero is by definition a ‘fantasy’ story”).
- We defined classifications for specific war themes. We selected “War Battle Tales” (i.e., stories that were predominantly centered on characters engulfed in battle). Therefore, at this time, we purged classifications such as War Adventure, War Propaganda, and Tragedy in Wartime, etc.
- We categorized two main comic book ages: The Golden Age and The Atom/Silver/Bronze Age.

News from the Front - A Medal of Honor

I am delighted to report the following incredible and historic intelligence that has just been passed down to me from Bob Overstreet’s team at Gemstone Publishing: Our Army at War #83, the first true appearance of Sgt. Rock, has finally earned its place in Overstreet’s top 20 Silver Age comics listing! While as of the drafting of this report, they are refraining from sharing its actual rank amongst the other comics on the list, they have just confirmed that Sgt. Rock has definitively invaded the nearly impenetrable top 20 of the lineup (to see where it placed amongst the superhero-laden roster merely skip just a few pages ahead to the “Top Comics” section of this very Price Guide).

This is a significant milestone for a myriad of reasons, to say the least! Let’s start with the fact that this may be the first time that a non-superhero-based comic book has broken into the ranks of the top 20 list. Considering that the global pop-culture market is inundated with spandex-wearing characters, it is an incredible feat that OAAW #83 has been able to break through the glitz and garner such notoriety and prominence. This is especially true given that it is a comic book that hails from a discontinued series, based specifically on a World War II character and storyline. We are admittedly ecstatic to see this landmark turning point come to fruition.

This has been subject of heavy debate as of late in the hobby. Earlier this year there was a near 50-page impassioned exchange on the matter on the CGC forums. There were arguments made on both sides as to whether the war comic warranted the honor of being on Overstreet’s top 20 list, or any other comic book ranking of merit for that matter. There were avid advocates with countless opinions both for and against this concept. Some fans claimed that it deserved high marks and a very lofty position, arguing that its importance was not only underrated, but that its rarity and its exclusive following earned it such stature. Critics argued that the comic presently did not truly justify that level of regard because of its perceived obscurity, coupled with a market flooded with incoming collectors who hold no knowledge of Sgt. Rock as a pop-culture icon (particularly in contrast to popular superhero-driven fervor). Good arguments on both sides.

Not surprisingly, we wholeheartedly believe that OAAW #83 indeed deserves and warrants this acclaim and notoriety. The Sgt. Rock mythos and character have already made an indelible mark on the comic book world as a whole, and it is our educated belief that we have yet to see the extent of what Sgt. Rock and the related saga can do. Plus, Sgt. Rock is a badass. Admit it. You know it to be true.

(A quick note from the market; since our last report a CGC 7.0 of Our Army at War #83 sold for about $7400. CGC 4.0's are easily clearing over $2000 each, a CGC 3.0 went for about $1000 and a CGC 1.8 just went for nearly $800!).

Field Report

The market remains calm in 2014-2015. Except for a spike of action here and there, the war comic landscape remains fairly quiet. This stems from that fact that very few books were released from collections. A tough notion for completists for sure, but certainly a continued respite for long time-collectors who would much rather have the casual or irregular war comic buyers/investors look elsewhere for easier prey to hunt—leaving the war landscape a bit easier to traverse from a purchasing standpoint. Yet, as we've stated countless times in previous reports, it is only a matter of time before a long-time war comic collector releases their pedigree collection into the market.

This will undoubtedly spur some serious and unruly acquisition action in the marketplace. For now, however, if you are a devoted war comic collector, focus must be on maintaining a keen eye on opportunities to obtain true rarities, key books, highest grade copies, and even small collections. All the same, some war titles are still getting good action as interest rises on perhaps once overlooked or underestimated comic titles. Case in point: two particular runs that appear to have gained stronger interest in the last year are Atlas War titles as a whole, and interestingly, Star Spangled War Stories from DC's Big Five omnibus.

Firstly with Atlas, be aware that any high grade copy of its war titles are being picked up instantaneously, with issues of the Battle comic series getting a lot of love and attention. As we stated in last year's report, we see Atlas gaining continued momentum and ascending new heights of respect and value. Do not undervalue this comic line's potential. Conversely, Star Spangled War Stories is getting attention for primarily two reasons: Dinos and Mademoiselle Marie! Although based in fantasy, the dinosaur issues that crossed-over into the war genre struck a chord with many a young reader when originally published and then gradually garnered and maintained a perpetual cult following that remains unyielding with both war and non-war comic collectors to this day. Its novel theme has kept these comic books in an alternative yet popular niche, driving up demand (and naturally, cost) of acquisition.

Although many argue that dealer prices on the dino books have been overreaching over the years, prices seem to have settled into an accepted, and from our point of view, a now justified market value due to their entertaining lore and by all means, scarcity—particularly in grades 7.5 or better (by the way, the CGC 9.0 copy of SSWS #90, the first issue in the Dinosaur run which also features Mademoiselle Marie, went for about $4,200 recently). If you want to see an example of scarcity specifically due to comics that were swiftly bought and summarily read, then go no further than DC's dinosaur/war hybrid tales of the early 60s! Respectively, anything with Mademoiselle Marie (who also appears in the issues of Star Spangled War Stories, but just immediately prior to the onset of the behemoth lizard lore) are searing off any auction block, particularly if they are 6.0 or better. Rest assured, it is a true rarity to see an 8.0 copy or better of the issues she graces in the title (especially Star Spangled War Stories #84 through #91), as scant few copies exist in any grade. Consequently, the high grade scarcity of these issues is compounded by the fact that only single copies in the 9.0 or 9.2 region prevail, with a lone CGC 9.4 of SSWS #88 accounting for the only copy on census of that caliber in the entirety of the run.

Additionally, the dearth of select copies is now coupled with growing demand as clearly Mademoiselle Marie. It can be said that Mademoiselle Marie remains an enduring personality in the Big Five war line, not only for her story, but also for the strength of character she represents - the symbolic spirit she characterized in the resistance against tyranny, and more meaningfully, as the notion was largely unsung at the time of these issue's publishing, the important roles that women play in war based conflicts.

Now, if you are a Golden Age fan, then the character and titles that you need to get your hands on are those of Don Winslow. Although breaking the mold of our "what is a war comic" criteria, largely due to the fact that Don Winslow comics fit more in Spy-based or War Adventure categories, this personality and the comic lines he appears in are too fundamental and historically important to overlook. We would not go as far as saying that he is the Golden Age Sgt. Rock at this time, but he may be the first contiguously run war-based character on record in the comic book medium.

Although created as a recruitment tool for the Navy in comic strips and then reprinted in comics, Don Winslow managed to make the leap from strips into original comic book stories, and then into radio and even film serials. Through multiple mediums, Don Winslow maintained a presence that ran nearly a 20 year span which made an ineffaceable mark in the comic book hobby. Make note and get your hands on whatever you can find.

Battlefield Ops - A Word from a Brother in Arms

By Andy Greenham

Hello, my fellow comic book aficionados!

Another year has passed and here we are again - new Overstreet time! As a fan, it truly is my favorite time of year. Reading the market reports from all of the Overstreet advisors is something that I really look forward to every year. For me, being allowed to come back again this year to contribute is such a great pleasure. I, once again, thank Matt Ballesteros and Mick Rabin for allowing me to join their ranks, and to be given this opportunity to submit my 2 cents' worth. Of course, this wouldn't be possible without Bob Overstreet, J.C. Vaughn, and Mark Huesman encouraging us to represent this wonderful genre and to take it a step further by publishing our beloved War Report in this ever-important price guide. Thank you, gentlemen!

My focus this year will be on two things:

1. Presenting a list of Mademoiselle Marie appearances from each of the main DC war titles. This will be a nice little sub-set that collectors can try to put together, hopefully without too much difficulty.

- I'm also presenting a checklist of keys and semi-keys that I personally believe are very important to have in your war comic collection. These will be books of importance as well as potential investment opportunities.

A Revolutionary Character

Not to take away from the grittiness of the early Atlas books, the realism of the Harvey books, or the fun and excitement of the Charlton ones, the DC comics were the ones that grabbed me the best.

Known as the Big Five, DC had five terrific war comics running at one time; All-American Men of War, G.I. Combat, Our Army at War, Our Fighting Forces, and Star Spangled War Stories. Each one of these titles were great for their own reasons, but what caught a hold of me initially, were the characters that continued to come back, issue after issue. My favorites were Sgt. Rock, the Haunted Tank, the Unknown Soldier, and Mademoiselle Marie.

As a supplement to what we have been saying in this report about this important character, a complete list (to the best of my knowledge) of Mademoiselle Marie appearances from the Big Five DC war titles:

Star Spangled War Stories #84- Aug 1959- "Battle Doll!" by Robert Kanigher and Jerry Grandenetti

Star Spangled War Stories #85- Sept 1959- "Human Air Raid!" by Kanigher and Grandenetti

Star Spangled War Stories #86- Oct 1959- "A Medal For Marie!" by Kanigher and Mort Drucker

Star Spangled War Stories #87- Nov 1959- "T.N.T. Spotlight!" by Kanigher and Drucker

Star Spangled War Stories #88- Dec 1959- "The Steel Trap" by Kanigher and Drucker

Star Spangled War Stories #89- Feb-Mar 1960- "Trail of the Terror Rockets!" by Kanigher and Drucker

Star Spangled War Stories #90- Apr-May 1960- "Battle of the Sunken Village" by Bob Haney and Irv Novick (possible Kanigher)

Star Spangled War Stories #91- June-July 1960- "The Train of Terror!" by Kanigher, Ross Andru and Mike Esposito

Our Army At War #115- Feb 1962- "Rock's Battle Family!" by Kanigher and Joe Kubert

Brave and the Bold #52- Feb-Mar 1964- "Suicide Mission" by Kanigher and Kubert

Our Army At War #140- Mar 1964- "Brass Sergeant!" by Kanigher and Kubert

The Spoils of War

I am certain it is not surprising that our report over time has grown to include a small segment dedicated to parsing out our opinion on investment tactics in the war niche. This is a price guide, after all. Please understand, however, that our position has been and remains that these comics are to enjoy for the art and amazing content.

It is also not lost on us that this very report has played a small part in putting a spotlight on—and our very own bias in—the overall segment. Nevertheless, broad enthusiasm for acquiring war comics has definitively risen, driving value and scarcity and making us that much more astute to the financial nuances within it. Thus, this segment is an excerpt of our contemplations on said gradations we encounter along the way. In our postulations we highlight one or two issues or titles that we believe are ascending or descending in value, doing our best to forecast which war comics we see as prudent or even risky acquisitions.

Colossal Disclaimer: The information provided in this segment may be wholly inaccurate. None of the writers, contributors, or publishers of this report can be responsible for the accuracy of this information or for how you use this information, none are financial or investment advisors and none can predict how the marketplace will ultimately value these books. Use at your own risk. These are merely the opinions of seasoned war comic collectors.

Long Term Return

Combat (Atlas 1952) – With only an 11-issue run, this title still made an impact on the war comic genre. With barely 20 copies on census however (for the entire run!) these are a tough find in grade. Nevertheless, we believe that between the individual comics themselves and the Atlas War pedigree, these 11 issues have potential. The crown jewel of the title is issue #1 of course. Not just because it's a number one, but because of its incredible all-black dramatic Russ Heath cover! Highly coveted by all war enthusiasts, issue #1 and the ensuing 10 issues are worth further inspection and are good long-term investment prospects.

Don Winslow – This is the second time we have featured Don Winslow in the Spoils of War segment of our report. With reason, we think any of the comics he appeared in from 1937 through 1945 are worthwhile acquisitions. If you've skipped to this section to troll our recommendations, then I suggest you read our short Field Report segment above to see our rationale on the notability of this character and the titles in which he appeared.

Short Term Return

Sgt Rock #302 – A momentarily quiet but very important Bronze Age pillar. This is the book that truly bridges the Silver Age monolith Our Army at War and Sgt Rock with the Modern Age. Featuring Rock in his own title, this issue kicks off a ten-year run that kept the character firmly planted in the psyche of pop culture through the '70s and '80s. In essence, it is Sgt Rock #1 of the Bronze and Modern Ages. And with his first appearance in OAAW #83 now making the top 20 Silver Age roster, this book has got nowhere to go but up in value as its importance and significance is comprehended. Your problem however will be finding it. It is actually more difficult to come across than OAAW #83, with less than 20 copies represented on census. Take our word for it; Sgt Rock #302 is a very worthy comic book to get your hands on for a multitude of reasons and we are confident it will only ascend in value. As of this writing there are currently only five CGC 9.8 copies on census, yet expect to only pay a bit more than $500+ for a copy (an inexpensive investment in our minds).

Losing Ground

Low grade, late Silver Age war – With the increased awareness and interest in the war comic genre, a flood of low grade books hit the market over the last few years. This was of course a welcome sight for many war comic completists who were looking to fill holes in their collections. Unfortunately the initial prices and, subsequently, sales of low grade war were a bit over-inflated, so over time as the initial demand diminished and low grade books continued to surface in abundance, the market softened on this particular specimen of comic. However, the market has been correcting itself recently and most of that segment now remains in a bit of lull instead of a decline.

Gaining Ground

It should come as no surprise that the Mademoiselle Marie and Dinosaur issues in Star Spangled War Stories are getting a lot of action right now. So, keep your eye out for mid to high-grade issues of Star Spangled War Stories #84 through #115.

A comic to watch carefully, better yet, to actually acquire is Our Army at War #196. A classic Kubert/Rock cover and a Kubert story inside, its importance to both the war comic genre and to the entire comic hobby has, in our opinion, yet to be realized.

Intel from the War Correspondents

Jerry Grandenetti's Art of War

By Mick Rabin

Collecting a specific genre of comics for 25 years tends to lead a person toward certain biases. In a collecting area replete with artists whose styles varied considerably, it's not hard to imagine that people develop a preference for some art styles over others. Where Heath and Kubert were the most significant part of my own original impetus to collect DC war in the first place, it took repeated viewings to truly appreciate the work of Jerry Grandenetti.

Those familiar with DC war comics tend to recognize Grandenetti's myriad washtone covers. As compelling as the washtones are, though, he was unrivaled even by Kubert and Heath during the '50s for the sheer breadth of astounding Big-5 war covers, washtone or line-drawn. I found myself developing an appreciation for the non-washtone Grandenetti covers soon after I discovered the “perty thirty” washtone run in GI Combat. From there it was a less precipitous (but predictable nonetheless) slide into recognizing how amazing his art was on the interiors.

Grandenetti kept his foot in comics through most of the ‘60s, ‘70s, and ‘80s but never as prolifically as his incredible 10-year reign as the cover king (and interiors, too) for DC war comics. He did quite a few stories for Warren after his DC tenure. If you think that the DC work was an acquired taste, then the Warren stuff is even more so. It was largely done in a wash style, especially the interiors. It’s regarded highly, but tends to go a bit too heavily into abstraction for my own taste. Apparently DC reeled him in a bit, but I thought that the more abstract he was moving, the better it got. I see his late ‘50s and early ‘60s stuff as the best of his career.

I spoke with him a number of times toward the end of his life, and he referred to the DC years as being too restrictive for him, but acknowledged that he was gradually allowed to get more abstract during his tenure there. By the time he left around 1964, he was really ready to let his hair down, and I’d say that he did.

In the cases of many artists—comics and otherwise—there are formative periods where their style resembles the norms of that period and era. Then as they develop their own style, they do their largest and best remembered body of work but their art doesn’t really ever stray much from their “style” from that period. Heath’s and Kubert’s styles remained virtually unchanged for the last 40 years of their careers. Kirby got looser toward the end of his life.

Then there’s Grandenetti. Grandenetti didn’t necessarily change his style, maybe more his presentation. I get the feeling he was holding back during those years. Until he got to Warren.

Those were the years he reflected most warmly on. I think his abstract style was always there, but he just suppressed it. Good or bad, it’s that five-to-six-year window for DC war—from roughly 1959 to 1964—that he just nailed it. If you collect comics for the art (as many do), then there is some staggeringly beautiful work rendered by Jerry Grandenetti awaiting you in the pages of the Big-5. The bad news is that there are so many of them, you can spend quite a chunk of change trying to find them all. The good news? You can play pin the tail on the Big-5 war book and 90 percent of the time, you’ll score with a Grandenetti!

Uncovering the Washtones

By Mick Rabin

Our apologies, due to an error in last year’s report the Washtone issues that Mick was referring to were not actually identified. Therefore we are revisiting an excerpt of his contribution for your enjoyment and edification along with reprinting the Washtone list he intended on sharing.

Often referred to as greytones (or mistakenly as “painted covers”), washtone covers have become universally lauded as some of the most eye-catching covers ever made in any genre of any era of any publisher.

When you mention washtones, people can often rattle off specifics with some of the more famous examples, like the beautiful run of Sea Devils covers or the staggering Kubert Hawkman cover to Brave and the Bold #44. There are a few people outside of the war comics collectors’ circles who have a vague notion that the war titles contain some beautiful washtone covers, but few have taken the time to explore much beyond G.I. Combat #87, which is widely recognized as one of the best. Fewer still know that GIC #87 is in the middle of the longest string of uninterrupted washtone covers in the history of comics—the “Perty-Thirty.” Those 30 issues start with GIC #75 and continue unabated until GIC #104. Even Sea Devils can’t touch that.

For the sake of this column, I decided to compile a list of the washtones in all of the Big-5 titles and sort them by date. There are more washtones after Feb./Mar. 1964, but I decided to cap the list with GIC #104 which is at the end of the “Perty-Thirty.” After that issue, they only appeared sporadically, but the practice lasted well into the 1970s. All in all, they comprise some of the most compelling and collectable issues in all of the Big-5 runs. For the uninitiated, there are some incredible surprises awaiting you.

THE GREAT WASHTONE LIST (for DC War’s BIG 5)

AAMOW – All American Men of War
GIC – G.I. Combat

GAINING RANK

In 2008, a group of war comic veterans got together to create a definitive ranking of war comics for the purpose of defining what were truly the top war comics in the hobby. Criterion of course included typical factors such as: who were the artists and writers, character appearances, storyline, scarcity, popularity, value, and so on. After months of research and deliberation, we developed a list that we not only use for our own exploits, but also share with you here in this report. Each year we watch the market carefully and then apply our findings by making adjustments to the ranking of the comics on the list to better reflect their standing. We are typically very careful not to make any major adjustments (even if there are singular spikes on any given year) as we know the market naturally corrects itself in a measured manner. Therefore, be sure to not only make note of where a war book may be in the hierarchy, but also pay special attention to any comic that makes a move up or down the scale from the previous year.

TOP COMICS

The following tables denote the rate of appreciation of the top Golden Age, Platinum Age, Silver Age and Bronze Age comics, as well as selected genres over the past year. The retail value for a Near Mint- copy of each comic (or VF where a Near Mint- copy is not known to exist) in 2015 is compared to its Near Mint- value in 2014. The rate of return for 2015 over 2014 is given. The place in rank is given for each comic by year, with its corresponding value in highest known grade. These tables can be very useful in forecasting trends in the market place. For instance, the investor might want to know which book is yielding the best dividend from one year to the next, or one might just be interested in seeing how the popularity of books changes from year to year. For instance, Pep Comics #22 was in 11th place in 2014 and has increased to 9th place in 2015. Premium books are also included in these tables and are denoted with an asterisk(*)

The following tables are meant as a guide to the investor. However, it should be pointed out that trends may change at anytime and that some books can meet market resistance with a slowdown in price increases, while others can develop into real comers from a presently dormant state. In the long run, if the investor sticks to the books that are appreciating steadily each year, he shouldn't go very far wrong.

GRADING DEFINITIONS

When grading a comic book, common sense must be employed. The overall eye appeal and beauty of the comic book must be taken into account along with its technical flaws to arrive at the appropriate grade.

10.0 GEM MINT (GM): This is an exceptional example of a given book - the best ever seen. The slightest bindery defects and/or printing flaws may be seen only upon very close inspection. The overall look is "as if it has never been handled or released for purchase." Only the slightest bindery or printing defects are allowed, and these would be imperceptible on first viewing. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. No dates or stamped markings allowed. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. No interior autographs or owner signatures. Centerfold is firmly secure. No interior tears.

9.9 MINT (MT): Near perfect in every way. Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. No interior tears.

9.8 NEAR MINT/MINT (NM/MT): Nearly perfect in every way with only minor imperfections that keep it from the next higher grade. Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is off-white to white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. Only the slightest interior tears are allowed.

9.6 NEAR MINT+ (NM+): Nearly perfect with a minor additional virtue or virtues that raise it from Near Mint. The overall look is "as if it was just purchased and read once or twice." Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears are allowed, although on Golden Age books bindery tears of up to 1/8" have been noted. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. One corner may be almost imperceptibly blunted, but still almost sharp and cut square. Almost imperceptible indentations are permissible, but no creases, bends, or color break. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered, with only the slightest discoloration. No staple tears, stress lines, or rust migration. Paper is off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. Only the slightest interior tears are allowed.

9.4 NEAR MINT (NM): Nearly perfect with only minor imperfections that keep it from the next higher grade. Minor feathering that does not distract from the overall beauty of an otherwise higher grade copy is acceptable for this grade. The overall look is "as if it was just purchased and read once or twice." Subtle bindery defects are allowed. Bindery tears must be less than 1/16" on Silver Age and later books, although on Golden Age books bindery tears of up to 1/4" have been noted. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted. A 1/16" bend is permitted with no color break. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration apart from slight foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples are generally centered; may have slight discoloration. No staple tears are allowed; almost no stress lines. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Slight interior tears are allowed.

9.2 NEAR MINT- (NM-): Nearly perfect with only a minor additional defect or defects that keep it from Near Mint. A limited number of minor bindery defects are allowed. A light, barely noticeable water stain or minor foxing that does not distract from the beauty of the book is acceptable for this grade. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with only the slightest dimming of reflectivity. Generally well centered and secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted. A 1/16"-1/8" bend is permitted with no color break. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration apart from slight foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. No staple tears are allowed; almost no stress lines. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Slight interior tears are allowed.

9.0 VERY FINE/NEAR MINT (VF/NM): Nearly perfect with outstanding eye appeal. A limited number of bindery defects are allowed. Almost flat cover with almost imperceptible wear. Inks are bright with slightly diminished reflectivity. An 1/8" bend is allowed if color is not broken. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted but no creases. Several lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for very minor foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. Only the slightest staple tears are allowed. A very minor accumulation of stress lines may be present if they are nearly imperceptible. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white and supple. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Very minor interior tears may be present.

8.5 VERY FINE+ (VF+): Fits the criteria for Very Fine but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

8.0 VERY FINE (VF): An excellent copy with outstanding eye appeal. Sharp, bright and clean with supple pages. A comic book in this grade has the appearance of having been carefully handled. A limited accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Cover is relatively flat with minimal surface wear beginning to show, possibly including some minute wear at corners. Inks are generally bright with moderate to high reflectivity. A 1/4" crease is acceptable if color is not broken. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for minor foxing. Spine is almost flat with no roll. Possible minor color break allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. Very slight staple tears and a few almost very minor to minor stress lines may be present. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is tan to cream and supple. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is mostly secure. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present.

7.5 VERY FINE- (VF-): Fits the criteria for Very Fine but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

7.0 FINE/VERY FINE (FN/VF): An above-average copy that shows minor wear but is still relatively flat and clean with outstanding eye appeal. A small accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Minor cover wear beginning to show with interior yellowing or tanning allowed, possibly including minor creases. Corners may be blunted or abraded. Inks are generally bright with a moderate reduction in reflectivity. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for minor foxing. The slightest spine roll may be present, as well as a possible moderate color break. Staples may show some discoloration. Slight staple tears and a slight accumulation of light stress lines may be present. Slight rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is tan to cream, but not brown. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is mostly secure. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present.

6.5 FINE+ (FN+): Fits the criteria for Fine but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

6.0 FINE (FN): An above-average copy that shows minor wear but is still relatively flat and clean with no significant creasing or other serious defects. Eye appeal is somewhat reduced because of slight surface wear and the accumulation of small defects, especially on the spine and edges. A FINE condition comic book appears to have been read a few times and has been handled with moderate care. Some accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Minor cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases. Inks show a major reduction in reflectivity. Blunted or abraded corners are more common, as is minor staining, soiling, discoloration, and/or foxing. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor spine roll is allowed. There can also be a 1/4" spine split or severe color break. Staples show minor discoloration. Minor staple tears and an accumulation of stress lines may be present, as well as minor rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is brown to tan and fairly supple with no signs of brittleness. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present. Centerfold may be loose but not detached.

5.5 FINE- (FN-): Fits the criteria for Fine but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

5.0 VERY GOOD/FINE (VG/FN): An above-average but well-used comic book. A comic in this grade shows some moderate wear; eye appeal is somewhat reduced because of the accumulation of defects. Still a desirable copy that has been handled with some care. An accumulation of bindery defects is allowed. Minor to moderate cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases and/or dimples. Inks have major to extreme reduction in reflectivity. Blunted or abraded corners are increasingly common, as is minor to moderate staining, discoloration, and/or foxing. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor to moderate spine roll is allowed. A spine split of up to 1/2" may be present. Staples show minor discoloration. A slight accumulation of minor staple tears and an accumulation of minor stress lines may also be present, as well as minor rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is brown to tan with no signs of brittleness. May have the faintest trace of an acidic odor. Centerfold may be loose but not detached. Minor tears may also be present.

4.5 VERY GOOD+ (VG+): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

4.0 VERY GOOD (VG): The average used comic book. A comic in this grade shows some significant moderate wear, but still has not accumulated enough total defects to reduce eye appeal to the point that it is not a desirable copy. Cover shows moderate to significant wear, and may be loose but not completely detached. Moderate to extreme reduction in reflectivity. Can have an accumulation of creases or dimples. Corners may be blunted or abraded. Store stamps, name stamps, arrival dates, initials, etc. have no effect on this grade. Some discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor soiling is allowed. As much as a 1/4" triangle can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" square is also acceptable. Only minor unobtrusive tape and other amateur repair allowed on otherwise high grade copies. Moderate spine roll may be present and/or a 1" spine split. Staples discolored. Minor to moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. A minor acidic odor can be detectable. Minor to moderate tears may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple.

3.5 VERY GOOD- (VG-): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

3.0 GOOD/VERY GOOD (GD/VG): A used comic book showing some substantial wear. Cover shows significant wear, and may be loose or even detached at one staple. Cover reflectivity is very low. Can have a book-length crease and/or dimples. Corners may be blunted or even rounded. Discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor to moderate soiling is allowed. A triangle from 1/4" to 1/2" can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" to 1/4" square is also acceptable. Tape and other amateur repair may be present. Moderate spine roll likely. May have a spine split of anywhere from 1" to 1-1/2". Staples may be rusted or replaced. Minor to moderate staple tears and moderate stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple. Minor to moderate interior tears may be present.

2.5 GOOD+ (GD+): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

2.0 GOOD (GD): Shows substantial wear; often considered a "reading copy." Cover shows significant wear and may even be detached. Cover reflectivity is low and in some cases completely absent. Book-length creases and dimples may be present. Rounded corners are more common. Moderate soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing may be present. The largest piece allowed missing from the front or back cover is usually a 1/2" triangle or a 1/4" square, although some Silver Age books such as 1960s Marvels have had the price corner box clipped from the top left front cover and may be considered Good if they would otherwise have graded higher. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is likely. May have up to a 2" spine split. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Moderate interior tears may be present.

1.8 GOOD- (GD-): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

1.5 FAIR/GOOD (FR/GD): A comic showing substantial to heavy wear. A copy in this grade still has all pages and covers, although there may be pieces missing up to and including missing coupons and/or Marvel Value Stamps that do not impact the story. Books in this grade are commonly creased, scuffed, abraded, soiled, and possibly unattractive, but still generally readable. Cover shows considerable wear and may be detached. Nearly no reflectivity to no reflectivity remaining. Store stamp, name stamp, arrival date and initials are permitted. Book-length creases, tears and folds may be present. Rounded corners are increasingly common. Soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing is generally present. Up to 1/10 of the back cover may be missing. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are increasingly common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is common. May have a spine split between 2" and 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Staple tears and stress lines are common, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges. Acidic odor may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Interior tears are common.

1.0 FAIR (FR): A copy in this grade shows heavy wear. Some collectors consider this the lowest collectible grade because comic books in lesser condition are usually incomplete and/or brittle. Comics in this grade are usually soiled, faded, ragged and possibly unattractive. This is the last grade in which a comic remains generally readable. Cover may be detached, and inks have lost all reflectivity. Creases, tears and/or folds are prevalent. Corners are commonly rounded or absent. Soiling and staining is present. Books in this condition generally have all pages and most of the covers, although there may be up to 1/4 of the front cover missing or no back cover, but not both. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are more common. Spine roll is more common; spine split can extend up to 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be missing or show rust and discoloration. An accumulation of staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges but not in the central portion of the pages. Acidic odor may be present. Accumulation of interior tears. Chunks may be missing. The centerfold may be missing if readability is generally preserved (although there may be difficulty). Coupons may be cut.

0.5 POOR (PR): Most comic books in this grade have been sufficiently degraded to the point where there is little or no collector value; they are easily identified by a complete absence of eye appeal. Comics in this grade are brittle almost to the point of turning to dust with a touch, and are usually incomplete. Extreme cover fading may render the cover almost indiscernible. May have extremely severe stains, mildew or heavy cover abrasion to the point that some cover inks are indistinct/absent. Covers may be detached with large chunks missing. Can have extremely ragged edges and extensive creasing. Corners are rounded or virtually absent. Covers may have been defaced with paints, varnishes, glues, oil, indelible markers or dyes, and may have suffered heavy water damage. Can also have extensive amateur repairs such as laminated covers. # OVERSTREET ADVISORS

Even before the first edition of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide was printed, author Robert M. Overstreet solicited pricing data, historical notations, and general information from a variety of sources. What was initially an informal group offering input quickly became an organized field of comic book collectors, dealers and historians whose opinions are actively solicited in advance of each edition of this book. Some of these Overstreet Advisors are specialists who deal in particular niches within the comic book world, while others are generalists who are interested in commenting on the broader marketplace. Each advisor provides information from their respective areas of interest and expertise, spanning the history of American comics.

While some choose to offer pricing and historical information in the form of annotated sales catalogs, auction catalogs, or documented private sales, assistance from others comes in the form of the market reports such as those beginning on page 96 in this book. In addition to those who have served as Overstreet Advisors almost since The Guide's inception, each year new contributors are sought.

With that in mind, we are pleased to present our newest Overstreet Advisors:

WE'RE CONFUSED!

We hope that someone who reads this will be able to explain why this kind of thing happens, because we don't get it!

The following is a true story...

At the biggest convention of the year, a dealer who traveled hundreds of miles to set up bought a high-grade Fantastic Four #1 for roughly 1/2 the price that we would have paid. After that comic passed through the hands of several dealers, Metropolis did in fact buy it. The fellow who initially sold it at the convention could easily have made seven thousand dollars more if he had sold it to us.

SHOULDN'T THESE GUYS KNOW BETTER?
SHOULDN'T EVERYONE?

Is it still better to get more money for your comics than less?
Does the Earth still revolve around the Sun? Are there still people out there who are not offering their books to Metropolis and losing money by selling to the wrong guy?

If anyone out there can shed some light on why this still happens in this day and age, could you please let us know?

The following represents a sample of prices we will pay for your comic books. Other dealers say they pay top dollar, but when it comes down to it, they simply do not. If you have comics to sell, we invite you to contact every comic dealer in the country for offers. Then call us for your best offer. We can afford to pay the highest price for your vintage comics because that is all we sell. If you wish to sell us your comics, please ship us the books securely via FedEx with a tracking number. If your collection is too large to ship, send us a detailed list and we'll travel to you. The prices below are for NM copies, but we are interested in all grades. Thank you.

3. DOUBLE GRADING SYSTEM to ensure greatest accuracy.

Our staff reflects over 75 years of comic evaluation and retail experience. There is not a more knowledgeable staff anywhere. For more info, call Toll-Free

1.800.229.METRO

Please limit the number of comics to 10.
Comics should be from 1930 -1975.
That is our field of expertise.

SELLER TIP :

Sometimes having your comics sealed by a 3rd party grader increases the value. Other times it won't and you only lose money on grading fees. Our consultation determines when and when not to have a comic "slabbed" saving you money.

COMIC CONNECT

WORLD'S PREMIER ONLINE COMIC MARKETPLACE & AUCTIONEER

For over 30 years, the experts at ComicConnect have been recognized and renowned for selling the most sought after comic books and collections. Our services have been enlisted by individuals who are the most aggressive collectors in the market. ComicConnect will help you realize the best return when you are selling your comics.

In today's market, the decision of just how to sell your comics is critical. Making the right choice is like walking a tightrope without a net. Perhaps the most common pitfall novice sellers fall into is blindly consigning to the first auction house they come across. If you're considering parting with your collection, and think an auction house is the best way to go, we strongly advise you consider the following:

Do the Math. The commission rate an auction house charges you, the seller, is typically 15%. However, the auction house will also charge the bidder a "buyer's premium" of 19.5%. Make no mistake about it, a bidder in an auction simply deducts that additional 19.5% from the final price they are willing to pay. That's nearly a 35% cut from each and every transaction. By having their hand in the pocket of both the bidder and the seller, the auction house ensures the most profit for itself, while the consignor hemorrhages on their investment. With ComicConnect's small commission and No Buyer's Premiums, the rest of the proceeds go back into your pocket where it rightfully belongs.

When you consign to ComicConnect, you have at your disposal the services of the most experienced comic book sellers in the world. More importantly, you benefit from the thousands upon thousands of long-term customer relationships we've developed over the past 30 years. We're in it for the long haul, and will work with you to develop a strategy that will get you the highest return. We won't "square-peg" your collection into a formula that doesn't fit. We will pursue the avenue or avenues that work best for the comics you consign. Sometimes, that means selling your comics to the private individuals who pay the very best for being offered the very best. Oftentimes, we will arrange exclusive viewings at our showroom in Manhattan. We also maintain thousands of want lists of customers waiting in the wings for certain comic books to come to market - comic books that you may have in your collection.

"The Batman #1 you sold me was in the nicest, unrestored condition I've ever seen!", Bob Overstreet, author "The Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide."

"I'm glad that you have a great selection of Golden Age and Silver Age comics in stock. You have been able to constantly find books to fill some very tough missing holes in my collection. I also appreciate your consistent, tight grading and fair prices!"

Dan Hampton, Las Cruces, NM

These are just two of the many satisfied customers that have bought books from us in the past. Over the years, we have developed a very strong return customer base because we ACCURATELY price, grade, and describe books (in detail) over the phone and through the mail/email. If CGC books are desired, we can definitely fill those needs as well !!! In the past few years, we have acquired nearly EVERY major Golden Age and Silver Age book more than once for our many want list clients. These include books like Action 1, Detective 1, Detective 27, Marvel 1, Superman 1 and more recent gems like AF 15, FF 1, Hulk 1, Flash 105 and Showcase 4, 8, 22. OUR SPECIALTY IS GOLD, SILVER, BRONZE, AND COPPER AGE BOOKS (1933 - 1993). Please check out our great selection of old books! (CGC or Raw).

We don't claim that we can fill every list all the time, but if any company can accomplish this, it would certainly be us! We can say this with much confidence because our representatives travel to the majority of the 50 states and Canada plus attend many of the major comic book conventions (San Diego, Chicago, Detroit, New York, etc.) to uncover books you would not have the opportunity to find. When we are not on the road, we spend MANY hours on the phone locating books from our long list of past and present comic sources we've developed over the 25 years we have been dealing in comic books. When sending your want list either E-MAIL us, or mail us and include a self-addressed stamped envelope (if possible), your phone number, and a good time to reach you. We DON'T send out catalogs, so please ask for specific books and conditions desired. We will contact you when we find the items you've requested. Phone calls are also welcomed. WE WILL GLADLY SUGGEST AND PERSONALLY PUT TOGETHER COMIC BOOK INVESTMENT PORTFOLIOS FOR BIG AND SMALL INVESTORS. # COMIC COLLECTOR/DEALER

for many comics of interest

▼ POINTS TO CONSIDER ▼ TO SELL ON EBAY OR NOT TO SELL ON EBAY—THAT IS YOUR QUESTION?

- Consigning your comics to an eBay seller or an auction may not let you realize your collection's potential. EBay sellers and auctions charge 15% to 35% on every transaction regardless if they sell for less than guide. Many items sell for way below guide and you still pay all related charges. Many dealers buy these items well below market value. After you consider all charges and the final selling price you will generally net much less than we would pay. Selling to us there will be no charges, no waiting for payment. It's easy, and you will be treated with honesty and fairness.
- We have over 25 years experience in comic fandom. We have purchased many well-known collections while competing against other interested parties. Give us the chance to show you your top price.
- Being a collector/dealer gives us the ability to buy your entire collection and pay you the most for it. You will maximize your collection's value.

WHY DO ALL THE OTHER DEALERS IN THIS BOOK SELL TO ME?

Because over the past ten years or so I have been buying comics from dealers throughout the country. In fact, over the years I have bought comics from just about every dealer who advertises in this book. I spend millions of dollars a year buying. If professional dealers sell me comics, why can't you? A dealer is extremely knowledgeable, has shown his comics to all kinds of buyers from retail customers to every other dealer in the country at shows. They choose to sell to me because of honesty, financial reliability, and of course the prices I pay.

$$$ Cash For Comics $$$

Cyberspace Comics is currently buying comic collections and comic store overstock. We are also looking for Golden Age comics, Silver Age comics, Bronze Age comics, graphic novels, TPBs, hardcovers and any other type of comics out there! I'm paying good money for 10 cent comics and 12 cent comics. Especially Marvel Comics and DC Comics. Spider-Man, Avengers, X-Men, Fantastic Four, Thor, Batman!

I want them!

I'm also looking for Golden Age comics (1930s, 1940s, 1950s), Silver Age comics (1960s), Bronze Age comics (1970s) and even Indy comics

- the weirder and more independent, the more interesting they become!

I know I am paying great prices! *How do I know that?

I've been buying comic books and collections from many of the other dealers advertising in this book who have bought collections from people just like you. If I buy your collection from another dealer, ask yourself: how much money did you leave on the table?

Cyberspace Comics offers an incredible selection of over 65,000 unique issues ranging from the Golden Age to the present. Your order can even qualify for free shipping! See our selection here: www.cyberspacecomics.com/aa

JOHN VERZYL AND DAUGHTER ROSE, "HARD AT WORK."

John Verzyl started collecting comic books in 1965, and within ten years he had amassed thousands of Golden and Silver Age comic books. In 1979, with his wife Nanette, he opened "COMIC HEAVEN," a retail store devoted entirely to the buying and selling of comic books.

Over the years, John Verzyl has come to be recognized as an authority in the field of comic books. He has served as a special advisor to the "Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide" for the last 25 years. Thousands of his "mint" comics were photographed for Ernst Gerber's "Photo-Journal Guide to Comic Books." His tables and displays at the annual San Diego Comic Convention and the Chicago Comic Convention draw customers from all over the country.

The first COMIC HEAVEN AUCTION was held in 1987, and today his Auction Catalogs are mailed out to more than ten thousand interested collectors and dealers.

BIG LITTLE BOOKS

INTRODUCTION

In 1932, at the depths of the Great Depression, comic books were not selling despite their successes in the previous two decades. Desperate publishers had already reduced prices to 25¢, but this was still too much for many people to spend on entertainment.

Comic books quickly evolved into two newer formats, the comics magazine and the Big Little Book. Both types retailed for 10¢.

Big Little Books began by reprinting the art (and adapting the stories) from newspaper comics. As their success grew and publishers began commissioning original material, movie adaptations and other entertainment-derived stories became commonplace.

GRADING

Before a Big Little Book's value can be assessed, its condition or state of preservation must be determined. A book in Near Mint condition will bring many times the price of the same book in Poor condition. Many variables influence the grading of a Big Little Book and all must be considered in the final evaluation. Due to the way they are constructed, damage occurs with very little use - usually to the spine, book edges and binding. More important defects that affect grading are: Split spines, pages missing, page browning or brittleness, writing, crayoning, loose pages, color fading, chunks missing, and rolling or out of square. The following grading guide is given to aid the novice:

9.4 Near Mint: The overall look is as if it was just purchased and maybe opened once; only subtle defects are allowed; paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh; cover is flat with no surface wear or creases; inks and colors are bright; small penciled or inked arrival dates are acceptable; very slight blunting of corners at top and bottom of spine are common; outside corners are cut square and sharp. Books in this grade could bring prices of guide and a half or more.

9.0 Very Fine/Near Mint: Limited number of defects; full cover gloss with only very slight wear on book corners and edges; very minor foxing; very minor tears allowed, binding still square and tight with no pages missing; paper quality still fresh from cream to off-white. Dates, stamps or initials allowed on cover or inside.

8.0 Very Fine: Most of the cover gloss retained with minor wear appearing at corners and around edges; spine tight with no pages missing; cream/tan paper allowed if still supple; up to 1/4" bend allowed on covers with no color break; cover relatively flat; minor tears allowed.

6.0 Fine: Slight wear beginning to show; cover gloss reduced but still clean, pages tan/brown but still supple (not brittle); up to 1/4" split or color break allowed; minor discoloration and/or foxing allowed.

4.0 Very Good: Obviously a read copy with original printing luster almost gone; some fading and discoloration, but not soiled; some signs of wear such as corner splits and spine rolling; paper can be brown but not brittle; a few pages can be loose but not missing; no chunks missing; blunted corners acceptable.

2.0 Good: An average used copy complete with only minor pieces missing from the spine, which may be partially split; slightly soiled or marked with spine rolling; color flaking and wear around edges, but perfectly sound and legible; could have minor tape repairs but otherwise complete.

1.0 Fair: Very heavily read and soiled with small chunks missing from cover; most or all of spine could be missing; multiple splits in spine and loose pages, but still sound and legible, bringing 50 to 70 percent of good price.

0.5 Poor: Damaged, heavily weathered, soiled or otherwise unsuited for collecting purposes.

IMPORTANT

Most BLBs on the market today will fall in the Good to Fine grade category. When Very Fine to Near Mint BLBs are offered for sale, they usually bring premium prices.

A WORD ON PRICING

The prices are given for Good, Fine and Very Fine/Near Mint condition. A book in Fair would be 50-70% of the Good price. Very Good would be halfway between the Good and Fine price, and Very Fine would be halfway between the Fine and Very Fine/Near Mint price. The prices listed were averaged from convention sales, dealers' lists, adzines, auctions, and by special contact with dealers and collectors from coast to coast. The prices and the spreads were determined from sales of copies in available condition or the highest grade known. Since most available copies are in the Good to Fine range, neither dealers nor collectors should let the Very Fine/Near Mint column influence the prices they are willing to charge or pay for books in less than near perfect condition.

The prices listed reflect a six times spread from Good to Very Fine/ Near Mint (1 - 3 - 6). We feel this spread accurately reflects the current market, especially when you consider the scarcity of books in Very Fine/Near Mint condition. When one or both end sheets are missing, the book's value would drop about a half grade.

Books with movie scenes are of double importance due to the high crossover demand by movie collectors.

Publisher Codes: BRP-Blue Ribbon Press; ERB-Edgar Rice Burroughs; EVW-Engel van Wiseman; FAW-Fawcett Publishing Co.; Gold-Goldsmith Publishing Co.; Lynn-Lynn Publishing Co.; McKay-David McKay Co.; Whit-Whitman Publishing Co.; World-World Syndicate Publishing Co.

Terminology: All Pictures Comics-no text, all drawings; Fast-Action-A special series of Dell books highly collected; Flip Pictures-upper right corner of interior pages contain drawings that are put into motion when rifled; Movie Scenes-book illustrated with scenes from the movie. Soft Cover-A thin single sheet of cardboard used in binding most of the giveaway versions.

PROMOTIONAL COMICS

THE MARKETING OF A MEDIUM

by Dr. Arnold T. Blumberg, DCD with new material and additional research by Sol M. Davidson, PhD, and Robert L. Beerbohm

Everyone wants something for free. It's in our nature to look for the quick fix, the good deal, the complimentary gift. We long to hit the lottery and quit our job, to win the trip around the world, or find that pot of gold at the end of the proverbial rainbow. Collectors in particular are certainly built to appreciate the notion of the "free gift," since it not only means a new item to collect and enjoy, but no risk or obligation in order to acquire it.

Ah, but there's the rub. Because things are not always what they seem, and "free gifts" usually come with a price. As the saying goes, "there's no such thing as a free lunch," so if it seems too good to be true, it probably is. This is the case even in the world of comics, where premiums and giveaways have a familiar agenda hidden behind the bright colors and fanciful stories. But where did it all begin?

EXTRA EXTRA

As we learn more about the early history of the comic book industry through continual investigation and the publishing of articles like those regularly featured in this book, we gain a much greater understanding of the financial and creative forces at work in shaping the medium, but perhaps one of the most intriguing and least recognized factors that influenced the dawn of comics is the concept of the premium or giveaway. (Note: Some of the historical information referenced in this article is derived from material also presented in Robert L. Beerbohm's introductory article to the Platinum Age section.)

The birth of the comic book as we know it today is intimately connected with the development of the comic strip in American newspapers and their use as an advertising and marketing tool for staple products such as bread, milk, and cereal. From the very beginning, comic characters have played several roles in pop culture, entertaining the youth of the country while also (sometimes none too subtly) acting as hucksters for whatever corporation foots the bill. From important staples to frivolous material produced simply to make a buck, these products have utilized the comics medium to sell, sell, sell. And what better way to hook a prospective customer than to give them "something for nothing?"

Starting in the 1850s, comics were being used in free almanacs such as Elton's, Hostetter's and Wright's to lure readers for the little booklets to sell patent medicine, farm products, tobacco, shoe polish, etc. Most of these are exceedingly rare today, hence it is difficult to compile an accurate history. More mention of these early precursors can be found in the Victorian Comics Era essay following this one. But although comic characters themselves were already being aggressively merchandised all around the world by the mid-1890s--as with, for example, Palmer Cox's The Brownies--the real starting point for the success of comics as a giveaway marketing mechanism can be traced to the introduction of The Yellow Kid, Richard Outcault's now legendary newspaper strip.

Newspaper publishers had already recognized that comic strips could boost circulation as well as please sponsors and advertisers by drawing more eyes to the page, so Sunday "supplements" were introduced to entice fans. Outcault's creation cemented the theory with proof of comic characters' marketing and merchandising power.

Soon after, Outcault (who had most likely been inspired by Cox's merchandising success with The Brownies in the first place) caught lightning in a bottle once more with Buster Brown, who has the distinction of being America's first nationally licensed comic strip character. Soon, comic strips proliferated throughout the nation's newspapers as tycoons like Hearst and Pulitzer recognized the drawing power of the new medium and fought circulation wars to capture the pennies of the nouveau readership. They paid exorbitant salaries to comic strip artists such as Rudolph Dirks (Katzenjammer Kids), and used the funnies as newspaper supplements and as premiums to attract readers. Corporations soon had the chance to license recognizable personas as their own personal pitchmen (or women or animals...). Comic character merchandise wasn't far behind, resulting in a boom of future collectibles now catalogued in volumes like Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys.

TWO BIRTHS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

Comic books themselves were at the heart of this movement, and giveaway and premium collections of comic strips not only appealed to children and adults alike, but provided the impetus for the birth of the modern comic book format itself. It could be said that without the concept of the giveaway comic or the marketing push behind it, there would be no comic book industry as we have it today. Well-known now is the story of how in spring 1933 Harry Wildenberg of Eastern Color Printing Company convinced Proctor & Gamble to sponsor the first modern comic book, Funnies on Parade, as a premium. Its success led to the first continuing comic book, Famous Funnies, and the rest, as they say, is history.

This unused cover was designed as the second cover for "Motion Picture Funnies Weekly." While the concept for this promotional comic title never caught on, the inaugural issue did feature the origin and first printed appearance of the Sub-Mariner.

J. Proskauer came up with an idea for printing "Comic-Books-For-Industry." In July 1936 he made his first sale through his newly formed William C. Popper & Co. to David M. Davies, then advertising manager for Seagram's Distillers Corp. for three million copies of Seagram's Merrymakers in time for the 1936-37 Christmas season. "Thus was a new industry born," wrote Printing News in August 1945.

Even a casual perusal of the listings in this section of the Guide will dazzle the reader with the endless variety of purposes that this medium has served. Yes, promos have been used to hawk products from athletic equipment to zithers and zip codes, but comics are too versatile an art form to be confined to a few uses. They've swayed elections in cities (The O'Dwyer Story, 1949), in states (Giant for a Day: Jacob Javits, 1946) and nationwide (The Story of Harry Truman, 1948); solicited for charities (Donald Duck and the Red Feather, 1948); addressed health issues (Blondie, 1949, mental hygiene); discouraged kids from smoking (Captain America Meets the Asthma Monster, 1987); coached youngsters in sports skills (Circling the Bases, 1947, A.G. Spaulding); explained scientific complexities (Adventures in Science, 1946-61, GE); pleaded for social justice (Consumer Comics, 1975); espoused religious causes (Oral Roberts' True Stories, 1950s); protected the environment (Our Spaceship Earth, 1947); encouraged tourism (Wyoming, The Cowboy State, 1954); conveyed a sense of history (Louisiana Purchase, 1953); taught about computers (Superman Radio Shack Giveaway, 1980); trained employees (Dial Finance Dialogues, 1961-70) and executives (Beneficial Finance System, Managing New Employees, 1950s); cautioned safety (Willy Wing Flap, 1944(?)); announced corporate annual results (Motorola Annual Report, 1952); defended free enterprise (Steve Merritt, 1949); hammered communism (How Stalin Hopes to Destroy America, 1951); fought discrimination (Mammy Yokum & the Great Dogpatch Mystery, 1956, B'nai Brith); aided young workers in job-hunting (The Job Scene, 1969); battled the scourge of sickle cell anemia (Where's Herbie, 1972, U.S. H.E.W.); inspired the overcoming of adversity (Al Capp by Li'l Abner, 1946); fostered reading (Linus Gets a Library Card, 1960); recruited for the armed forces (Li'l Abner Joins the Navy, 1950); beguiled readers into learning languages (Blondie, 1949, Philadelphia public schools); and even instructed in such delicate matters as birth control

Every market and product has been on the promotional comic book bandwagon. Freihofers Baking Company distributed a comic in the 1940s that featured reprinted pages from "All-American Comics."

(Escape from Fear, 1950 (revised 1959, etc.), for Planned Parenthood).

READ ALL ABOUT IT

The impact of this new approach to advertising was not lost on the business world. Contrary to modern belief, comic books were hardly discounted by the adults of the time...at least not those who had the marketing savvy to recognize an opportunity - or a threat - when they saw one. In the April 1933 issue of Fortune magazine, an article titled "The Funny Papers" trumpeted the arrival of comics as a force to be reckoned with in the world of advertising and business, and what's more, a force to fear as well. At first providing a brief survey of the newspaper comic strip business (which for many of the magazine's readers must have seemed a foreign topic for serious discussion), the article goes on to examine the incredible financial draw of comics and their characters:

"Between 70 and 75 per cent {sic} of the readers of any newspaper follow its comic sections regularly...Even the advertiser has succumbed to the comic, and in 1932 spent well over $1,000,000 for comic-paper space."

"Comic Weekly is the comic section of seventeen Hearst Sunday papers...Advertisers who market their wares through balloon-speaking manikins {sic} may enjoy the proximity of Jiggs, Maggie, Barney Google, and other funny Hearst headliners."

Although the article continues to cast the notion of relying on comic strip material to sell product in a negative light, actually suggesting that advertisers who utilize comics are violating unspoken rules of "advertising decorum" and bringing themselves "down to the level" of comics (and since when have advertisers been stalwart preservers of good taste and high moral standards), there is no doubt that they are viewing comics in a new light. The comic characters have arrived by 1933...and they're ready to help sell your merchandise too.

Fortune wasn't the only one to take notice as World War II came and went. In 1948, Louis P. Birk, the head of Brevity, Inc., an important promotional comics publisher said, "Comics are serious business." In an article in Printers' Ink magazine, he estimated that more than 80 different "comic booklets" had been produced and more than 45,000,000 million copies distributed in the five years before 1948. But of course, comics were serious business long before businessman/historian Birk noted the fact for posterity.

THE MARCH OF WAR AND BEYOND

Through the relentless currents of time, comic strips, books, and the characters that starred in them became more and more an intrinsic part of American culture. During the turmoil of the Great Depression and World War II, comic characters in print and celluloid form entertained while informing and selling at the same time, and premium and giveaway comics came well and truly into their own, pushing everything from loaves of bread to war bonds.

In the 1950s and '60s, there was a shift in focus as the power of giveaway and premium comics was applied to more altruistic endeavors than simply selling something. Comic book format pamphlets, fully illustrated and often inventively written, taught children about banking, money, the dangers of poison and other household products, and even chronicled moments in American history. The comic book as giveaway was now not only a marketing gimmick--it was a tool for educating as well.

The promotional title "March of Comics" was a prolific comic that ran for 36 years and 488 issues featuring a variety of subjects and characters. (#20 shown)

The 1970s and '80s saw another boom in premium and giveaway comics. Every product imaginable seemed to have a licensing deal with a comic book character, usually one of the prominent flag bearers of the Big Two, Marvel or DC. Spider-Man fought bravely against the Beetle for the benefit of All Detergent; Captain America allied himself with the Campbell Kids; and Superman helped a class of computer students beat a disaster-conjuring foe at his own game with the help of Radio Shack Tandy computers.

Newspapers rediscovered the power of comics, not just with enlarged strip supplements but with actual comic books. Spider-Man, the Hulk, and others turned up as giveaway comic extras in various American newspapers (including Chicago and Dallas publications), while a whole series of public information comics like those produced decades earlier used superheroes to caution children about the dangers of smoking, drugs, and child abuse.

Comics also turned up in a plethora of other toy products as the 1980s introduced kids to the joy of electronic games and action figures. Supplementary comics provided "free" with action figure and video game packages told the backstory about the product, adding depth to the play experience while providing an extra incentive to buy. Comics became an intrinsic part of the Atari line of video cartridges, for example, eventually spawning its own full-blown newsstand series as well.

As the twentieth century gave way to the twenty-first, giveaway comics were still being produced for inclusion in action figure and video game packages, as well as in conjunction with countless consumer items and corporations. It seems that the medium still has a lot to offer for all those companies desperate to make the most of their market share.

A COMIC BY ANY OTHER NAME

One of the earliest names for promotional comics was "special purpose comics." In their pursuit of superheroes, collectors have allowed promotional comics to lie fallow - under-appreciated and uncollected. Without a legitimate name, these products were given sundry other appellations - industrial comics, promos, giveaways, premiums, promics - each accurate but only for a small segment of the unorganized but lusty and lively medium. Perhaps no one name can cover all the variations and purposes of this branch of comic art, but for practical reasons if we accept the general premise that these comics were created to promote an idea, a product or a person, then "Promotional Comics" is probably as convenient a catch-all title as we can come up with.

We used the phrase "for practical reasons" because the word "practical" goes to the heart of promotional comics more than it does for any other comics product. What greater testimony is there to the medium's impact on American culture than to note their use by hard-headed, profit-minded business people and corporations? They invest their money and they expect results.

Today, premium comics continue to thrive and are still utilized as a valuable marketing and promotional tool. "Free" comics are still packaged with action figures and video games, and offered as mail-away premiums from a variety of product manufacturers.

Today, promotional comics continue to be used as a marketing tool to reach both children and adults alike. This 2005 comic was produced by Marvel Comics as a salute to the men and women of the armed forces.

The comic industry itself has expanded its use of giveaway comics to self-promote as well, with "ashcan" and other giveaway editions turning up at conventions and comic shops to advertise upcoming series and special events. Many of these function as old-fashioned premiums, with a coupon or other response required from the reader to receive the comic.

As for the supplements and giveaways printed all those years ago, they have spawned a collectible fervor all their own, thanks to their atypical distribution and frequent rarity. For that and the desire to delve deeper into comics history, we hope that by focusing more directly on this genre, we can enhance our understanding of this vital component in the development and history of the modern comic book.

Whether you're a collector or not, we're all motivated by that desire to get something for nothing. For as long as consumers are enticed by the notion of the "free gift," promotional comics will remain a vital marketing component in many business models, but they will also continue to fight the stigma that has long been associated with the industry as a whole. "Respectable" sources like Fortune may have taken notice of the power of comic-related advertising 71 years ago, but after all this time comics still fight an uphill battle to establish some measure of dignity for the medium. Perhaps the higher visibility of promotional comics will eventually prove to be a deciding factor in that intellectual war.

| Note: All pre #79 issues came with or without a slick protective wrap-around cover over the regular cover which advertised Poll Parrot Shoes, Sears, etc. This outer cover protects the inside pages making them in nicer condition. |     |     |     |      |       |      | 146-Roy Rogers; photo-c                          | 10  | 20  | 30  | 56  | 76    | 95  |

| NOTE: Eight copies (plus one coverless) were discovered in 1974 in the estate of the deceased publisher. Covers only to issues No. 2-4 were also found which evidently were printed in advance along with #1. #1 was to be distributed only through motion picture movie houses. However, it is believed that only advanced copies were sent out and the motion picture houses not going for the idea. Possible distribution at local theaters in Boston suspected. The "pay" copy (graded at 9.0) was discovered after 1974, bringing the total known to nine. The last panel of Sub-Mariner contains a rectangular box with "Continued Next Week" printed in it. When reprinted in Marvel Mystery, the box was left in with lettering omitted. |     |     |     |      |       |       | Graphic Information Service/ Civil Defense: 1957 (16 pgs., soft-c)                                                                                                   |     |     |     |     |       |      |

NOTE: Spirit sections came out in both large and small format. Some newspapers went to the 8-pg. format months before others. Some printed the pages so they cannot be folded into a small comic book section; these are worth less. (Also see Three Comics & Spiritman).

NOTE: All issues have Superman illustrations throughout. The page count varies depending on whether a Superman-Tim comic story is inserted. If it is, the page count is either 36 or 24 pages. Otherwise all issues are 16 pages. Each issue has a special place for inserting a full color Superman stamp. The stamp album issues had spaces for the stamps given away the past year. The books were mailed as a subscription premium. The stamps were given away free (or when you made a purchase) only when you physically came into the store.
